Temporary Injunction Prevents Threatened Strike At Boeing Co.

Walkout Prevented For 10 Days

Both Sides To Appear In Court February 1

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A threatened strike against the Boeing Co., set for 12:01 a.m. Saturday, was halted by a temporary federal court injunction Friday.

U.S. Dist. Judge William J. Lindberg granted an injunction for 10 days and ordered both sides to appear before him Feb. 1 to show cause why it should not be made permanent for the 80-day cooling-off period prescribed by the Taft-Hartley Act.

It also covered the Rohr Corp. plant at Auburn, Wash., which adds accessories to jet engines for Boeing military and commercial planes.

President Kennedy ordered the Justice Department a few hours earlier to seek the injunction on grounds the national safety would be endangered by a strike against Boeing, one of the nation's largest defense suppliers.

Major issues in the lengthy dispute between Boeing and the International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO, are wages, seniority and the IAM's demand for a union shop, which would require all workers to belong to the union.

Boeing has more than 40,000 production workers in plants throughout the country, principally here, at Wichita, Kan., and Cape Canaveral, Fla. The union claims about 75 per cent as members.

The company produces the Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile, one of the nation's major defense weapons, jet military tankers and commercial planes, and is building the X20 Dyna-Soar space glider.

The President invoked the Taft-Hartley Act on Wednesday after Boeing's union workers voted 4-1 to reject the company's latest offer.

He named a three-man board of inquiry to look into the dispute, a prerequisite to seeking a court injunction.

Cooper To Try 17-Orbit Flight About April 2

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—An April 2 target date was set Friday for launching U.S. astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. on an ambitious space voyage that could keep him in orbit nearly a day and a half.

The 35-year-old Air Force major is scheduled to make at least 17 sweeps around the globe, and there is a good possibility he may go for 22 circuits—a 34-hour voyage.

In either event his planned flight would eclipse the U.S. record now held by astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., who soared six times around earth last Oct. 3.

On a 22-orbit trip Cooper, like Schirra, would land somewhere in the Pacific Ocean near Midway Island. If successful, the flight probably will be the only one this year by a U.S. spaceman.

Informed sources said the April 2 launching date "looks pretty good right now" and that, while there may yet be slips, "we should come pretty close."

Scientists and engineers already have begun modifying the 2,500-pound Mercury capsule Cooper will ride. The changes include provisions for additional power, oxygen and water for the extended flight.

The astronaut himself already is in training for the mission. He spent several hours last week at Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill, N.C., reviewing star identification techniques and has been at the Cape conferring with engineers on the preparation of the capsule.

A fully successful flight by Cooper is expected to bring the $400 million Mercury project, America's first man-into-space program, to an end. The next step is to two-man flights aboard Gemini capsules.

The first unmanned Gemini flights, which the federal space agency once said would be as early as late 1962, have now slipped to 1964. Manned flights in that program, a key step in the nation's drive to land men on the moon this decade, won't begin until after the first trial shots.

Tulane Registers Seven Negroes

Break 129-Year Record At School

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Seven Negroes registered peaceably Friday in Tulane University, a private institution with an unbroken, 129-year record of exclusive white attendance.

Tulane's board of administrators in mid-December voluntarily opened the doors of the university to Negro undergraduate and graduate students.

The seven who registered Friday are all graduate students. They are on the faculty of New Orleans. Southern is the state university for Negroes. Its main campus is at Baton Rouge.

The routine registration of the Negroes at Tulane contrasted markedly with desegregation of other schools in New Orleans. There was a year of violence and boycott at two public elementary schools integrated in 1960.

Three Persons Excommunicated

Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel excommunicated three Catholic segregation leaders last September for opposing desegregation of parochial schools in the New Orleans diocese.

Tulane's board promised to desegregate the university in 1961, if it could be done legally. When Paul Tulane endowed the school, he stipulated that it must be attended by white students only.

In 1884, a state law was passed that limited attendance at Tulane to whites.

Mrs. Pearlie Elloie and Barbara Guillory, after the board's promise to desegregate, sued in federal district court for admission to Tulane.

Ordered Tulane Desegregated

Judge J. Skelly Wright — since promoted to the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C.— ordered Tulane desegregated.

He said that Tulane had accepted enough tax benefits to qualify as a public institution and was liable for desegregation under the 14th Amendment.

Wright also suggested that Tulane wanted to be desegregated because it was losing important grants from foundations that refuse to give money to segregated institutions.

Wright's ruling failed to satisfy Tulane. The university asked Wright's successor, Frank Ellis, for a rehearing.

Ellis struck down the law forbidding Tulane to admit Negroes. But at the same time he ruled Tulane was a private institution and did not have to admit Negroes though it could do so voluntarily.

The next week, the board voluntarily admitted Negroes.

Mrs. Elloie, Addison Carey, Gloria Ann Adams, Percell Church, Elmore de Grange, Willene Pulliam and George Washington Parker were the Negroes who registered Friday.

Living Cost Shows Drop In December

Crop Freeze Seen Boosting January Figure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government dished up a mixture of good and bad news Friday for consumers.

The Labor Department reported living costs in December registered their greatest decline in the past four years, the biggest drop for any month since December 1958.

Robert J. Myers, deputy labor statistics commissioner, said however, that the adverse effects of the early December crop freeze in Florida are forcing up food prices so that January living costs will again be near a record.

The December decline was measured at two-tenths of 1 per cent, bringing the government's consumer price index to 105.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average. The December decline, a bit deeper than expected for the month, brought the index to three-tenths of 1 per cent below its peak level last September.

Myers said a look at what happened to living costs during 1962 showed they increased 1.2 per cent during the year, as compared with 1 per cent in 1961, 1.5 per cent in 1960 and .9 per cent in 1959.

The Labor Department also reported that the after-tax earnings of factory workers rose to a high in December. The average for the worker with three dependents was $86.72 a week, compared with the prior peak of $86.45 last September.

Myers said the December earnings increase was due to somewhat higher pay rates and work hours and the year-end lag in Social Security tax payroll deductions.

Lower prices for food, in a measurement taken before the winter crop freeze effects began to be felt in grocery store prices, accounted for the December living cost decline.

JFK To Visit Costa Rica

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will visit Costa Rica March 18-20 for a high-level review of plans to create a "little common market" of Central America by 1965.

The White House said Thursday Kennedy will confer with the chief executives of Costa Rica, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama at San Jose.

The President hopes this way to dramatize what his administration regards as a major success story of the Alliance for Progress —the growing economic integration of Central America.

Kennedy also is understood to be eager to reassure the six chiefs of state of the United States's determination to protect Central America from any Cuban attempts to export Communist revolutions.

1,170 Refugees Reach Florida Aboard Ship

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Another 1,170 refugees reached the United States Friday from Communist Cuba and it was like, one of them cried, "emerging from a dungeon into fresh air."

"There is no freedom in Cuba," said Felipe Latour y Bravo, one of those who rode the American freighter Shirley Lykes through rough seas from Havana to Florida. "We are going to start life anew in the United States."

Some were old and in poor physical shape and many were pale from seasickness when they left the freighter at Fort Lauderdale's Port Everglades after a pitching, rolling voyage into 25 knot winds and through eight-foot seas.

There was sadness, too, because they had left behind their native land, and the sickness contracted in the smelly holds of the ship had not aided their dispositions.

But they smiled bravely, and they looked fine in their Sunday best, when they rode from the port in a cavalcade of buses to Miami Stadium, where 5,000 friends and relatives who had come earlier gave them a loud and cheerful greeting.

A special plane, which carried another load of medicines to Cuba Friday morning, winged back to Miami filled with Cuban-Americans.

The price of release from Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Communist regime is the surrender of all worldly possessions except three changes of clothing so the emigres came decked out in their best.

Teacher Dies Saving Her Pupils

VIDALIA, Ga. (UPI) — A heroic school teacher perished Friday trying to save the lives of students inside a burning school house.

Miss Elnora Brannen, 60, brought out one student and then dashed back inside the blazing J. D. Dickerson Training School on another rescue mission. She did not come out.

Three of the 250 students in the building were reported missing for several hours but later were located in the crowd. Several students were trapped briefly in the structure, but officials managed an orderly evacuation.

Firemen said the blaze started in the boiler room where a janitor had noticed a defective steam boiler when he came to work in 19-degree weather Friday morning.

The janitor said he returned to the room after lighting heaters in other parts of the single story brick school building and was greeted by a blast of smoke that knocked him out. He was rescued.

Weather Cited In 139 Deaths

By United Press International

Rising temperatures took some of the sting out of the icy air across the nation Friday. But the slight relief failed to check the climbing death toll.

At least 139 deaths have been reported since the record-breaking cold enveloped the central section Tuesday and began to spread into the East and South.

The big freeze tightened a vise on inland waterways.

The Mississippi River froze tight at two points—just above Cairo, Ill., and just north of St. Louis. No boats from the lower river could push past the Cairo jam.

A 16-inch ice crust halted barge traffic on the Illinois River at the Starved Rock (Ill.) lock.

Floating and solid ice raised serious problems on the Ohio River. Engineers warned all boats from above Cincinnati to the river's mouth at Cairo to head for deep-water harbors.

Wind and blowing snow compounded winter miseries in some parts of Upstate New York, where the mercury ranged down to -21.

Dock Workers Will Return To Piers Today

NEW YORK (AP) — The AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association called an end Friday to its 34-day East and Gulf Coast strike, and ordered 60,000 dockers back to the piers at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Termination of the longest, costliest walkout in Atlantic maritime history meant early freedom for 698 oceangoing ships, marooned by the strike in ports from Maine to Texas.

The back-to-work order from ILA headquarters here came shortly after President Kennedy was described as fed up over local quibbling that threatened to prolong the $800-million strike.

Asst. Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds stalked out of a Galveston meeting of Texas longshoremen and shippers, after warning them: "The President has tried to keep his hands off this thing as long as he could. Now he's pretty fed up."

Kennedy intervened in the strike 10 days ago by means of a presidential settlement board after saying that the walkout "is doing intolerable injury to the national welfare."

ILA President William V. Bradley was in Texas trying to straighten out the situation there. He relayed the order for a complete return to work, with local issues to be negotiated later.

A logjam of millions of dollars worth of commodities, piled on piers and in warehouses and railroad cars, awaited the longshoremen upon their return to work. Humming waterfronts subsided into ghostly silence nearly seven weeks ago, when the strike began on Dec. 23.

The back-to-work order also affected indirectly nearly 40,000 maritime workers, who were laid off because of the longshoremen's strike.

It was expected to be at least the middle of next week before the port of New York returns to normal. Along the entire coastline, it was estimated it would take two to three weeks to get everything back on schedule.

Two Airmen Rescued After Crash Of B52

BROWNVILLE JUNCTION, Maine (UPI) — Two airmen were rescued by helicopters Friday and the bodies of two others were found near the wreckage of their B52 superfortress by searchers who braved 12-foot snow drifts and 20 below temperatures. Five others were missing.

The two men saved were picked up before noon in a dramatic rescue by Arctic-trained Air Force paramedics. Both were in good condition.

They were Lt. Col Dante E. Bulli, 40, of Cherry, Ill., the crew commander, and Capt. Gerald Adler, 31, of Houston, Tex., the navigator.

One of the missing men was T. Sgt. Michael F.P. O'Keefe, 26, of New York, the subject of a book published in 1959. The books, "Sky Sentry—a SAC Crewman in Service," followed O'Keefe in text and pictures from his enlistment in the Air Force, through his training until his assignment to a B52 bomber crew.

The $8-million Strategic Air Command jet crashed late Thursday in a section of low but rugged mountains about 70 miles northwest of Bangor.

Rescuers pushed to within a mile of the wreckage in snow tractors and then had to continue the rest of the way by snowshoe.

Dow Air Force Base did not identify the two dead airmen.

Besides O'Keefe, the other men aboard the plane were Lt. Col Joe R. Simpson Jr., 42, Jackson, Miss.; Maj. Robert J. Morrison, 36, Portland, Ore.; Maj. William W. Gabriel, 45, Indianapolis; Maj. Robert J. Hill Jr., 37, Joplin, Mo.; Capt. Herbert L. Hanson, 42, Pennington, S.D., and Capt. Charles G. Leuchter, 32, Denver.

The rescued men, Col. Bulli and Capt. Adler, bailed out as the huge plane headed down.

Pearson Urges Canada To Accept A-Arms

OTTAWA (UPI) — Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson Friday said Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's refusal to make a firm commitment on nuclear weapons for Canada as a complete evasion of national responsibility.

The Liberal leader, in a Commons speech, repeated his party's contention that this country had no present alternative but to accept nuclear arms at home and abroad to meet commitments made more than three years ago.

Get Briefing From Rusk And McCone

Stennis Promises Inquiry Into Latest Report

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Several senators said Friday after a top intelligence briefing that Russia has built a powerful military and political machine in Cuba over the past six months. Another said he heard nothing to indicate any "significant" buildup.

The briefing was given by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Intelligence Chief John A. McCone before the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on Latin America. Shortly afterward the Senate preparedness subcommittee announced new hearings on the reported Soviet buildup.

Rusk and McCone were questioned about the reported Russian "complex" in Cuba, the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion, and other foreign affairs. This hearing stemmed from charges by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., that Soviet strength in Cuba was greater than ever.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the preparedness subcommittee sat in on the briefing. Afterwards he said the group would look into reports indicated that the Soviet buildup "is rapidly converting Castro's forces into the second most powerful military power in this hemisphere."

Defines Probe's Objectives

He said the inquiry would deal with Cuba's military strength, the nature of weapons there and the "state of our own military preparedness to meet and counter this threat."

The Senate activity came as diplomatic sources reported that Rusk had advised Argentine Foreign Minister Carlos M. Muniz that action to counter Communist subversion in Latin America may be recommended soon to the Organization of American States (OAS).

The administration has about completed a high-level appraisal of subversion throughout the hemisphere and of the support it receives from the Castro regime. The appraisal is part of a long-range policy plan to deal with Cuba.

Keating has said that the military buildup in Cuba is 10 times greater than it was last July prior to the missile crisis.

Keating said he knew of no offensive missiles and bombers going to Cuba. But he said tanks, guns, MIG fighters and other arms were continuing to pour in. He said his reports were based on information from Cuban refugees.

Powerful Buildup

After the briefing, Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., told newsmen that the Russians have built "an enormously powerful military and political base in Cuba — much stronger than it was six months ago." He said he got the impression the buildup was continuing.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said "there is a big Soviet military complex in Cuba" that was constructed over the last six months.

Symington said his information was not based solely on the Rusk-McCone briefing. He expressed concern about what he said were increasing numbers of Russians in Cuba who are "members of what might be called the Russian air complex."

At the same time, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said he

California GOP Invites All Loyal To Principles

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—State Chairman Caspar W. Weinberger declared Friday the California Republican party welcomes all groups—John Birch backers or anyone else—as long as they're loyal to GOP principles.

However, he told a news conference, he would be surprised if many members of the right wing John Birch Society could work within the party under his ground rules.

"If we find anyone trying to take over the Republican party for ulterior motives and subvert it in any way, we certainly are going to oppose it," he said.

The Birch question arose after Harry J. Keaton, president of the California Young Republicans, said the John Birch Society is trying to take over Republican groups in California.

Keaton said the Birch Society aims to capture the presidence of the state Young Republicans at its Feb. 15-17 convention.

In Belmont, Mass., headquarters of the John Birch Society, a spokesman said it would have no comment.

Weinberger outlined plans for rebuilding the state GOP. The plans will be presented Saturday to the Republican State Central Committee.

The San Francisco attorney called for party reorganization, formation of unpaid volunteer precinct workers and a drive to collect $1 each from the 3 million Republican registrants in California.

Indonesia To Slash Armed Forces Budget

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesia's defense minister announced Friday that the armed forces budget will be slashed this year.

Stainless Steel Vest Would Stymie Robbers

LONDON (AP)—Tailor and Cutter, the magazine which dictates male fashion trends, gave its O.K. Friday for elegance to a stainless steel vest designed to beat payroll robbers.

The vest is worn with a bowler hat lined with steel and foam rubber. The makers claim the outfit is proof against bullets, knives, blackjacks and all other such accessories.

The vest (called here a waistcoat and pronounced weskit) is made of steel mesh like medieval chainmale. Tailor and Cutter says:

"Outside the garment is cloth finished in discreet, stylish shades of brown, gray or check. Inside it has 16 pockets capacious enough to carry $140,000 in notes.

"The waistcoat is laced up with a strong steel chain secured by a padlock. One padlock key is left behind in the office. A second key is used at the other end of the journey."

The vest costs $75 and the hat $15. The makers say demand is terrific.

"There is no freedom in Cuba," said Felipe Latour y Bravo, one of those who rode the American freighter Shirley Lykes through rough seas from Havana to Florida. "We are going to start life anew in the United States."

Some were old and in poor physical shape and many were pale from seasickness when they left the freighter at Fort Lauderdale's Port Everglades after a pitching, rolling voyage into 25 knot winds and through eight-foot seas.

There was sadness, too, because they had left behind their native land, and the sickness contracted in the smelly holds of the ship had not aided their dispositions.

But they smiled bravely, and they looked fine in their Sunday best, when they rode from the port in a cavalcade of buses to Miami Stadium, where 5,000 friends and relatives who had come earlier gave them a loud and cheerful greeting.

A special plane, which carried another load of medicines to Cuba Friday morning, winged back to Miami filled with Cuban-Americans.

The price of release from Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Communist regime is the surrender of all worldly possessions except three changes of clothing so the emigres came decked out in their best.

Called 'Beautiful Land'

OTTAWA (AP—The new eastern section of Canada's Northwest Territories has been named Nunassiaq, an Eskimo word meaning "Beautiful Land." It was the choice of a majority of Eskimos, who voted in two plebiscites.

Teacher Dies Saving Her Pupils

VIDALIA, Ga. (UPI) — A heroic school teacher perished Friday trying to save the lives of students inside a burning school house.

Miss Elnora Brannen, 60, brought out one student and then dashed back inside the blazing J. D. Dickerson Training School on another rescue mission. She did not come out.

Three of the 250 students in the building were reported missing for several hours but later were located in the crowd. Several students were trapped briefly in the structure, but officials managed an orderly evacuation.

Firemen said the blaze started in the boiler room where a janitor had noticed a defective steam boiler when he came to work in 19-degree weather Friday morning.

The janitor said he returned to the room after lighting heaters in other parts of the single story brick school building and was greeted by a blast of smoke that knocked him out. He was rescued.

Weather Cited In 139 Deaths

By United Press International

Rising temperatures took some of the sting out of the icy air across the nation Friday. But the slight relief failed to check the climbing death toll.

At least 139 deaths have been reported since the record-breaking cold enveloped the central section Tuesday and began to spread into the East and South.

The big freeze tightened a vise on inland waterways.

The Mississippi River froze tight at two points—just above Cairo, Ill., and just north of St. Louis. No boats from the lower river could push past the Cairo jam.

A 16-inch ice crust halted barge traffic on the Illinois River at the Starved Rock (Ill.) lock.

Floating and solid ice raised serious problems on the Ohio River. Engineers warned all boats from above Cincinnati to the river's mouth at Cairo to head for deep-water harbors.

Wind and blowing snow compounded winter miseries in some parts of Upstate New York, where the mercury ranged down to -21.

Dock Workers Will Return To Piers Today

NEW YORK (AP) — The AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association called an end Friday to its 34-day East and Gulf Coast strike, and ordered 60,000 dockers back to the piers at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Termination of the longest, costliest walkout in Atlantic maritime history meant early freedom for 698 oceangoing ships, marooned by the strike in ports from Maine to Texas.

The back-to-work order from ILA headquarters here came shortly after President Kennedy was described as fed up over local quibbling that threatened to prolong the $800-million strike.

Asst. Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds stalked out of a Galveston meeting of Texas longshoremen and shippers, after warning them: "The President has tried to keep his hands off this thing as long as he could. Now he's pretty fed up."

Kennedy intervened in the strike 10 days ago by means of a presidential settlement board after saying that the walkout "is doing intolerable injury to the national welfare."

ILA President William V. Bradley was in Texas trying to straighten out the situation there. He relayed the order for a complete return to work, with local issues to be negotiated later.

A logjam of millions of dollars worth of commodities, piled on piers and in warehouses and railroad cars, awaited the longshoremen upon their return to work. Humming waterfronts subsided into ghostly silence nearly seven weeks ago, when the strike began on Dec. 23.

The back-to-work order also affected indirectly nearly 40,000 maritime workers, who were laid off because of the longshoremen's strike.

It was expected to be at least the middle of next week before the port of New York returns to normal. Along the entire coastline, it was estimated it would take two to three weeks to get everything back on schedule.

Two Airmen Rescued After Crash Of B52

BROWNVILLE JUNCTION, Maine (UPI) — Two airmen were rescued by helicopters Friday and the bodies of two others were found near the wreckage of their B52 superfortress by searchers who braved 12-foot snow drifts and 20 below temperatures. Five others were missing.

The two men saved were picked up before noon in a dramatic rescue by Arctic-trained Air Force paramedics. Both were in good condition.

They were Lt. Col Dante E. Bulli, 40, of Cherry, Ill., the crew commander, and Capt. Gerald Adler, 31, of Houston, Tex., the navigator.

One of the missing men was T. Sgt. Michael F.P. O'Keefe, 26, of New York, the subject of a book published in 1959. The books, "Sky Sentry—a SAC Crewman in Service," followed O'Keefe in text and pictures from his enlistment in the Air Force, through his training until his assignment to a B52 bomber crew.

The $8-million Strategic Air Command jet crashed late Thursday in a section of low but rugged mountains about 70 miles northwest of Bangor.

Rescuers pushed to within a mile of the wreckage in snow tractors and then had to continue the rest of the way by snowshoe.

Dow Air Force Base did not identify the two dead airmen.

Besides O'Keefe, the other men aboard the plane were Lt. Col Joe R. Simpson Jr., 42, Jackson, Miss.; Maj. Robert J. Morrison, 36, Portland, Ore.; Maj. William W. Gabriel, 45, Indianapolis; Maj. Robert J. Hill Jr., 37, Joplin, Mo.; Capt. Herbert L. Hanson, 42, Pennington, S.D., and Capt. Charles G. Leuchter, 32, Denver.

The rescued men, Col. Bulli and Capt. Adler, bailed out as the huge plane headed down.

Pearson Urges Canada To Accept A-Arms

OTTAWA (UPI) — Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson Friday said Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's refusal to make a firm commitment on nuclear weapons for Canada as a complete evasion of national responsibility.

The Liberal leader, in a Commons speech, repeated his party's contention that this country had no present alternative but to accept nuclear arms at home and abroad to meet commitments made more than three years ago.

California GOP Invites All Loyal To Principles

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—State Chairman Caspar W. Weinberger declared Friday the California Republican party welcomes all groups—John Birch backers or anyone else—as long as they're loyal to GOP principles.

However, he told a news conference, he would be surprised if many members of the right wing John Birch Society could work within the party under his ground rules.

"If we find anyone trying to take over the Republican party for ulterior motives and subvert it in any way, we certainly are going to oppose it," he said.

The Birch question arose after Harry J. Keaton, president of the California Young Republicans, said the John Birch Society is trying to take over Republican groups in California.

Keaton said the Birch Society aims to capture the presidence of the state Young Republicans at its Feb. 15-17 convention.

In Belmont, Mass., headquarters of the John Birch Society, a spokesman said it would have no comment.

Weinberger outlined plans for rebuilding the state GOP. The plans will be presented Saturday to the Republican State Central Committee.

The San Francisco attorney called for party reorganization, formation of unpaid volunteer precinct workers and a drive to collect $1 each from the 3 million Republican registrants in California.

Stennis Promises Inquiry Into Latest Report

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Several senators said Friday after a top intelligence briefing that Russia has built a powerful military and political machine in Cuba over the past six months. Another said he heard nothing to indicate any "significant" buildup.

The briefing was given by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Intelligence Chief John A. McCone before the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on Latin America. Shortly afterward the Senate preparedness subcommittee announced new hearings on the reported Soviet buildup.

Rusk and McCone were questioned about the reported Russian "complex" in Cuba, the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion, and other foreign affairs. This hearing stemmed from charges by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., that Soviet strength in Cuba was greater than ever.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the preparedness subcommittee sat in on the briefing. Afterwards he said the group would look into reports indicated that the Soviet buildup "is rapidly converting Castro's forces into the second most powerful military power in this hemisphere."

Defines Probe's Objectives

He said the inquiry would deal with Cuba's military strength, the nature of weapons there and the "state of our own military preparedness to meet and counter this threat."

The Senate activity came as diplomatic sources reported that Rusk had advised Argentine Foreign Minister Carlos M. Muniz that action to counter Communist subversion in Latin America may be recommended soon to the Organization of American States (OAS).

The administration has about completed a high-level appraisal of subversion throughout the hemisphere and of the support it receives from the Castro regime. The appraisal is part of a long-range policy plan to deal with Cuba.

Keating has said that the military buildup in Cuba is 10 times greater than it was last July prior to the missile crisis.

Keating said he knew of no offensive missiles and bombers going to Cuba. But he said tanks, guns, MIG fighters and other arms were continuing to pour in. He said his reports were based on information from Cuban refugees.

Powerful Buildup

After the briefing, Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., told newsmen that the Russians have built "an enormously powerful military and political base in Cuba — much stronger than it was six months ago." He said he got the impression the buildup was continuing.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said "there is a big Soviet military complex in Cuba" that was constructed over the last six months.

Symington said his information was not based solely on the Rusk-McCone briefing. He expressed concern about what he said were increasing numbers of Russians in Cuba who are "members of what might be called the Russian air complex."

At the same time, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said he

Alarm Catches Poor Box Thieves

SALFORD, England (AP)—The burglar alarm on the Church of the Servite's poor box has proved apt at catching sinners. One caught stealing money from the box was sentenced to six months in prison. Another pleaded guilty and was jailed pending a probation report.

Stainless Steel Vest Would Stymie Robbers

LONDON (AP)—Tailor and Cutter, the magazine which dictates male fashion trends, gave its O.K. Friday for elegance to a stainless steel vest designed to beat payroll robbers.

The vest is worn with a bowler hat lined with steel and foam rubber. The makers claim the outfit is proof against bullets, knives, blackjacks and all other such accessories.

The vest (called here a waistcoat and pronounced weskit) is made of steel mesh like medieval chainmale. Tailor and Cutter says:

"Outside the garment is cloth finished in discreet, stylish shades of brown, gray or check. Inside it has 16 pockets capacious enough to carry $140,000 in notes.

"The waistcoat is laced up with a strong steel chain secured by a padlock. One padlock key is left behind in the office. A second key is used at the other end of the journey."

The vest costs $75 and the hat $15. The makers say demand is terrific.

All Income Must Be Reported When Filing Tax Returns

Editors Note: This is the last of five dispatches on how to prepare your federal income tax return so that you pay Uncle Sam just what you owe—and no more. Today's dispatch covers interest, dividends, sick pay and other often-misunderstood tax matters.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A good way to get into hot water with the Internal Revenue Service is to omit from your return income you have received during 1962 in some form other than wages.

Few taxpayers are likely to overlook their wage income, since its amount is reported to them (and simultaneously to the government) by the employer's annual Form W-2. Your copy of this form has to be attached to your tax return.

But you also must report all of the income you received in the form of interest and dividends.

It should be noted that so-called "dividends" on savings & loan,or building & loan, deposits are actually interest, and should be reported accordingly. Interest is taxable even if it was merely credited to your account and you did not draw it out in cash. Also, interest on a loan you made to someone is taxable even if the principal was not repaid during the year.

Dividends Are Taxable

Dividends are taxable income, but come in for special treatment in two ways. The first $50 you receive in dividend payments is exempt from tax. And you may generally take a credit against your tax of 4 per cent of dividends above $50.

Suppose, for example, a taxpayer received $30 in dividends in 1962. He reports this on his return but does not include it in his taxable income because it is less than $50.

Another taxpayer received $85 in dividends on his stock. He reports that but pays tax only on $35. He may also take 4 per cent of the $35 ($1.40) as a credit against his tax.

In a joint return, a husband and wife may not combine their $50 exclusions. Each may take one exclusion separately. Suppose he received $70 of dividends and she received $20. He reports the $70, pays the tax on $20 and takes a tax credit of 80 cents (4 per cent of $20.) Her $20 of dividends also is reported on the return. It is not taxable. Her unused allowance of $30 is not applicable to the husband's dividends.

Dividends on most life insurance policies are not considered income for tax purposes.

U.S. Savings Bonds — Holders of U.S. savings bonds need not report the interest that accrues each year. They may defer reporting this income until the bonds are cashed.

On Series E savings bonds the interest is the difference between the purchase price and the bond's cash value at the end of 1962.

A taxpayer also may elect to report the interest each year instead of waiting until he cashes his bonds and then having to report it all at once. If he chooses yearly reporting he must stick to it, even for bonds he acquires in the future. To change to deferred reporting he must first get permission from the revenue service.

Sick Pay — You may exclude up to $100 a week of sick pay under certain conditions.

If you were sick at home for more than seven consecutive days, the pay you received starting with the eighth day may be excluded from your income. You may deduct one-fifth of your weekly pay (but not more than $20) for each day missed if you are on a five-day week; one-sixth (but not more than $16.67) if you work a six-day week.

You may deduct sick pay starting with the first day if you are away from the job because of injury, no matter where suffered, or if your illness caused you to be a hospital patient for at least one day. Again, you may not deduct more than $100 a week.

If you claim the sick pay exclusion,attach Form 2440 to your return to support the claim. This form can be obtained at your nearest Internal Revenue Service office. Or you can write a detailed statement on a piece of paper, following the directions given in the tax instruction booklet.

Retirement Income — There are several special rules governing taxation of retirement income. If you received retirement income in 1962 and have any doubt about how to treat it on your tax return, consult your tax adviser or the Internal Revenue Service.

Retirement income which is not taxable and need not be reported includes Social Security payments, railroad retirement act pensions, veterans benefits, or payments for injury or sickness to military personnel disabled in active service.

Whether other retirement income is taxable, and how much, depends on several things, especially whether you or your employer or both of you made contribution to the pension fund and whether taxes were paid on these amounts.

There also are provisions for special retirement income credits. These rules were somewhat liberalized last year and if you have been claiming such credits you should check on the new rules.

Persons 65 or older should remember that by virtue of their age they are entitled to two $600 exemptions, or a total of $1,200.

Regardless of your age, retirement income does not include money you are now earning by work.

Here are some other forms of income which should be reported, but are often overlooked:

Alimony, annuities, awards, back pay, bonuses, breach of contract damages, commissions, compensation for personal services, debts which have been "forgiven" or cancelled by the person to whom you owed the money, directors' fees, gains from sale of property, gambling winnings, hobby earnings, jury duty fees and prizes won in contests or lotteries.

Some of these forms of income come in for special treatment and involve complex regulations. If you have reportable income in these categories, consult the nearest Internal Revenue Service office, or obtain a copy of the service's handbook entitled "Your Federal Income Tax, 1963 Edition, For Individuals."This has complete details on how to handle special forms of income. It can be ordered for 40 cents from the Government Printing Office, Washington25 , D.C., or at your local internal revenue office.

University To Establish New Campus

Baltimore County Will Be Location

BALTIMORE (AP) — The University of Maryland Board of Regents voted Friday to establish a new campus of the university in Baltimore County. No site has been selected.

The unanimous vote came on a report by the board's expansion committee, which recommended establishment of a third campus in Baltimore County.

The committee cited as reasons the continuing growth of student enrollments at the College Park campus and the fact that 30 per cent come from the Baltimore area.

While all land purchases must be approved by the Board of Public Works and all funds must be appropriated by the General Assembly, the regents — an autonomous body — can make its own expansion moves.

Comptroller Louis Goldstein asked why the new undergraduate campus could not be located in the urban renewal area, along with the existing campus for professional schools in downtown Baltimore.

"It might be as much of a problem getting from the city to a Baltimore County campus as it is in getting to College Park," Goldstein said.

Richard Case, one of the regents, cited the delays involved in obtaining approval in an urban renewal project. "We can't wait that long," he said.

Edward F. Holter, expansion committee chairman, also said that land would be more expensive in an urban renewal area.

University officials told the regents the existing facilities on the present Baltimore campus are overcrowded and would not accommodate an undergraduate program as well.

In other business, the board approved a report and recommendations of the Curlett Commission on higher education. The report is now being considered by the General Assembly.

Whereabouts Of Teacher Still Unknown

WASHINGTON (AP) — William S. Replane, whose wife mysteriously disappeared four days ago, came to police headquarters here Friday to examine a photograph of a woman.

Police said a snapshot was found on a Northwest Washington street and they wanted Replane, 28-year-old science teacher at Laurel Junior High School, to examine it.

Replane said the woman in the picture was not his wife, although there was a resemblance.

Mrs. Replane, 25, has been missing since Monday night. Her car was found on a lonely road three hours after she finished teaching an adult sewing class at Laurel Senior High School.

In Maryland, meanwhile, State Police continued their check of telephone calls and other leads Friday in an effort to solve the mystery of Mrs. Replane's disappearance.

Her husband underwent lie detector tests Thursday, but police said the results will not be known for several days.

Pilot Missing After Takeoff

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A Navy fighter plane vanished shortly after takeoff Thursday night and was still missing today.

The Navy said the one-man F8A Crusader left North Island Naval Air Station with three other planes and was supposed to rendezvous with them over the Pacific five minutes later, but it failed to appear.

The Navy identified the missing pilot as Lt. (J.G.) Duane R. Garrett, 25, USNR, son of James Garrett, Hyattsville, Md.

During the 1961-62 season, 50 three-game series of 800 or more were recorded by men bowlers.

Cuban Comic Wasn't Funny To Militia

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla., (UPI) — A Cuban comic who arrived here on the freighter Shirley Lykes Friday told how he was arrested six months ago when Castro militiamen became irked by his performance.

Leopoldo Fernandez, known as "Pototo," said he was doing a comedy sketch in Havana's National Theater. In the sketch, he said, he and workmen were hanging pictures of Cuban leaders on a wall.

Workmen brought in a portrait of former Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista, and he said "throw that one in the garbage."

When they brought in a picture of another former Cuban leader, he said, "put that one over there."

A picture of Fidel Castro was then brought in, and Fernandez said "I'll hang that one myself."

He said as soon as he finished the line, militiamen jumped on the stage and dragged him off to a jail.

He said he was imprisoned for two months and when he was released he found the National Theater had been closed.

Cuban Refugees Land

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Pan American World Airways plane brought 100 Cuban-Americans from Havana today. The passengers included three infants.

The plane carried a load of ransom medicines to Fidel Castro's regime, then returned with the refugees.

Legislators Air Probe On Safety

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Prince Georges County delegation had under advisement Friday a request by a labor leader to introduce a resolution calling for an inquiry by the General Assembly into Maryland's safety regulations and their enforcement.

Woodrow F. Strong, president of the Maryland-D.C. AFL-CIO, in asking for the resolution, said the way in which workers are being killed in sewer ditch cave-ins is "almost legalized murder."

Strong said he wanted the inquiry not only because of a Greenbelt Shopping Center cave-in last December which killed five persons and injured 11 but because of others as well. He said in a six-month period in 1960, seven persons were killed in other construction cave-ins in Prince Georges County.

Del. Edward T. Conroy, D-Prince Georges, said: "We told Mr. Strong that we would consider such a resolution and advise him of our decision at some future date. We have not yet made a decision."

Meanwhile, plans were announced Friday for a grand jury investigation in Prince Georges County of the Greenbelt accident.

State's Atty. Arthur A. Marshall Jr., who recently concluded his own study of the accident, said he will bring the case to the grand jury when it reconvenes Feb. 18.

Marshall said he would take the action because of "the most serious nature of the alleged violations, as well as the apparent confusion existing regarding the existence of certain safety regulations which might be applicable in the instant case."

Byrd To Seek $25,000 Grant For Center

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $25,000 appropriation from Congress to begin work on a visitors information center in Monongahela National Forest will be sought by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va.

Byrd said Friday he will try to amend the money bill for that agency "so that the architectural planning and engineering of the Information Center can be started during fiscal year 1964."

Byrd is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee which handles money for the U. S. Forest Service.

The senator said the center would cost a total of $100,000 and would be located in the vicinity of Cranberry Glades between Richwood and Marlinton.

Newsman Jailed For Refusal To Tell Source

LONDON (UPI) — Lord Chief Justice Lord Parker of the high court Friday sentenced newsman Desmond Clough of the London Daily Sketch to six months in prison for refusing to divulge his source for stories about a convicted Soviet spy.

Clough was held in contempt by the court Thursday in the first case involving a journalist and his sources of information in British judicial history.

In passing sentence, Parker ruled that if Clough did identify his source to the special tribunal investigating spying in the Admiralty within 10 days he would suspend the prison term.

A spokesman for Clough said the case will be taken to the court of appeals. Failing there, Clough will appeal to the House of Lords, the highest appeal court in Britain.

Clough was one of three newsmen referred to the high court by the tribunal for refusing to name sources for stories they wrote about the case of Admiralty Clerk William John Vassall. Vassall, an admitted homosexual who said he was blackmailed into spying by the Russians, was convicted and sentenced to 18 years in prison.

The tribunal called on Clough to identify the government source who told him that information supplied by Bassall enabled Soviet "trawlers" to turn up at secret NATO naval maneuvers with uncanny accuracy.

Parker has expressed sympathy with Clough's position but held that the issue was one of "urgent" interest to the state and that all other interests — "private, professional" — must be subordinated.

But Clough, 34, stood firm. He said that disclosing his source would be a breach of trust and a betrayal of his profession.

"The freedom of the press would be completely undermined." Clough said. "I would be breaking a firm trust and I and all journalists feel passionately on this issue of the freedom of the press."

heard nothing to indicate there had been a significant Soviet buildup. Humphrey, who left the session before it ended, also referred to statements by President Kennedy at his Thursday news conference.

No Evidence Of Threat

The President said continued daily surveillance of Cuba had disclosed no influx of offensive Soviet equipment. He said one Soviet ship might have brought arms t Cuba but there was no evidence it carried weapons posing a threat to the United States.

Humphrey said the cargo apparently consisted of small arms. Subcommittee Chairman Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said in reply to one newsman's question that the subcommittee heard nothing to indicate that a Soviet bloc ship had hauled nuclear materials to Cuba.

Maryland Briefs

By The Associated Press

FERNDALE, Md. (AP) — A policeman gave a volunteer fireman, Charles I. Boteler, a traffic ticket Thursday after he parked a fire truck in the fire company headquarters.

The policeman, Cpl. Thomas R. Ezell, said the truck returned from a fire with the emergency light flashing and crossed over a double white line forcing several cars from the road. Boteler will face charges in magistrate's court.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Equal Opportunities Commission has adopted a new regulation prohibiting racial discrimination at social affairs sponsored by employers subject to the city's equal employment law.

The commission adopted the ordinance Friday on the basis that social functions, such as office parties, are privileges of employment. The city civil rights statute prohibits denying any privileges of employment because of race.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sunpapers television stations WBOC in Salisbury and WMAR in Baltimore will present a documentary film on tours of state mental hospitals by Maryland legislators. The show is scheduled for showing Feb. 3.

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) — Msgr. Robert R. Kline, president of Mt. St. Mary's College, announced Friday that the construction of a new science building will begin this spring.

Msgr. Kline said the building was financed by $600,000 in private subscriptions and a $500,000 grant from the state.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore health commissioner, Dr. Robert Farber, says the best way to cure the flu that has been going around is to get plenty of rest, plenty of fluids and an aspirin every four hours.

If that doesn't cure the illness, Dr. Farber offers the consoling probability that the flu will cure itself in three to four days.

Slogan Skirmish Battle Lines Are Drawn

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Battle lines for a slogan skirmish were drawn Friday in the Maryland Legislature.

Del. Maurice Cardin, D-Balto 5th, introduced a bill to use the slogan "Star Spangled Banner State" on Maryland license plates.

The slogan "America in Miniature," suggested by Sen. George E. Snyder, D-Washington, already has been tentatively approved by the senate.

"I don't want to get in a hassle over slogans," Snyder said Friday, "but I think mine is the most descriptive of the state."

Snyder, who had a sample license tag imprinted with his slogan made at the Maryland Penitentiary, said Cardin's suggestion was longer and may require a longer plate to accommodate it.

Otherwise, he said, the letters would have to be so small as to negate their value.

Named Ambassador To Ethiopia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Friday selected former United Press International newsman Edward M. Korry of New York as United States ambassador to Ethiopia.

Korry, 41, is presently manager of special projects and assistant to the president of Cowles Magazine and Broadcasting, Inc. He will succeed Arthur L. Richard, in the diplomatic post at Addis Ababa.

Korry served as chief United Press correspondent for Europe in 1954. He previously had served in the New York, London, Belgrade and Paris bureaus of United Press International.

A taxpayer also may elect to report the interest each year instead of waiting until he cashes his bonds and then having to report it all at once. If he chooses yearly reporting he must stick to it, even for bonds he acquires in the future. To change to deferred reporting he must first get permission from the revenue service.

Sick Pay — You may exclude up to $100 a week of sick pay under certain conditions.

If you were sick at home for more than seven consecutive days, the pay you received starting with the eighth day may be excluded from your income. You may deduct one-fifth of your weekly pay (but not more than $20) for each day missed if you are on a five-day week; one-sixth (but not more than $16.67) if you work a six-day week.

You may deduct sick pay starting with the first day if you are away from the job because of injury, no matter where suffered, or if your illness caused you to be a hospital patient for at least one day. Again, you may not deduct more than $100 a week.

If you claim the sick pay exclusion,attach Form 2440 to your return to support the claim. This form can be obtained at your nearest Internal Revenue Service office. Or you can write a detailed statement on a piece of paper, following the directions given in the tax instruction booklet.

Retirement Income — There are several special rules governing taxation of retirement income. If you received retirement income in 1962 and have any doubt about how to treat it on your tax return, consult your tax adviser or the Internal Revenue Service.

Retirement income which is not taxable and need not be reported includes Social Security payments, railroad retirement act pensions, veterans benefits, or payments for injury or sickness to military personnel disabled in active service.

Whether other retirement income is taxable, and how much, depends on several things, especially whether you or your employer or both of you made contribution to the pension fund and whether taxes were paid on these amounts.

There also are provisions for special retirement income credits. These rules were somewhat liberalized last year and if you have been claiming such credits you should check on the new rules.

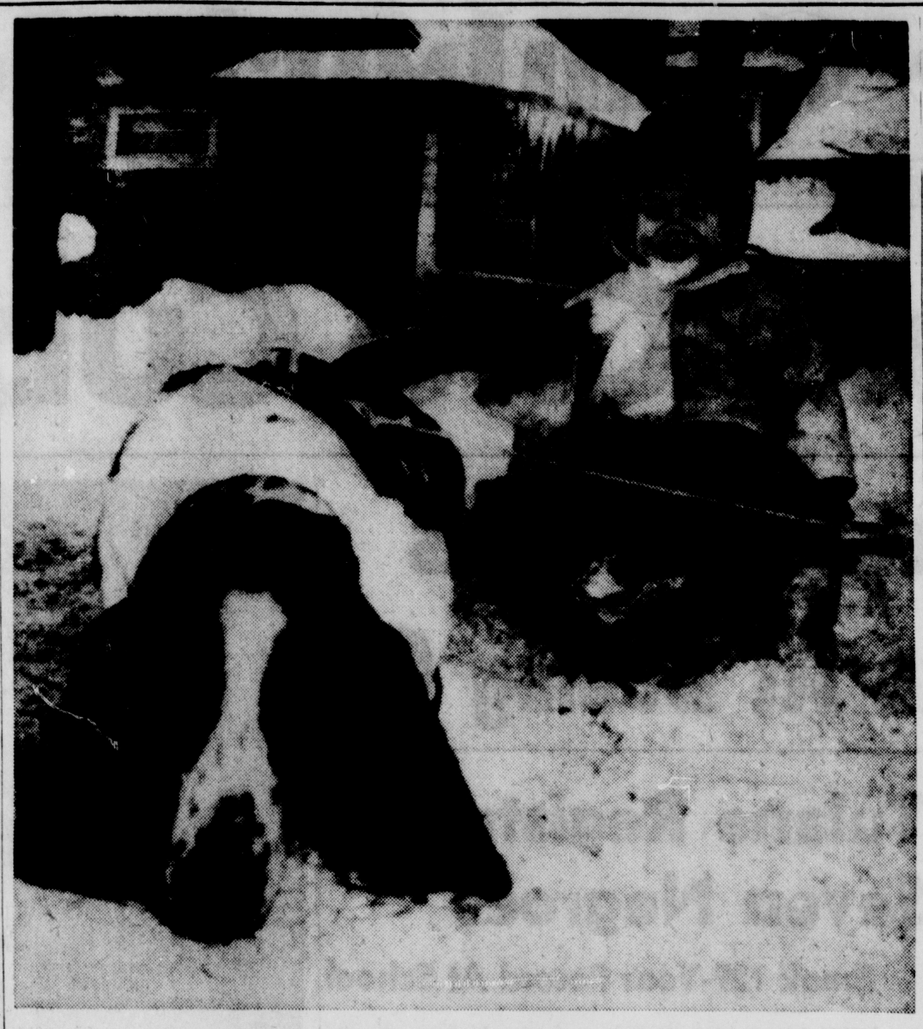
Persons 65 or older should remember that by virtue of their age they are entitled to two $600 exemptions, or a total of $1,200.

Regardless of your age, retirement income does not include money you are now earning by work.

Here are some other forms of income which should be reported, but are often overlooked:

Alimony, annuities, awards, back pay, bonuses, breach of contract damages, commissions, compensation for personal services, debts which have been "forgiven" or cancelled by the person to whom you owed the money, directors' fees, gains from sale of property, gambling winnings, hobby earnings, jury duty fees and prizes won in contests or lotteries.

Some of these forms of income come in for special treatment and involve complex regulations. If you have reportable income in these categories, consult the nearest Internal Revenue Service office, or obtain a copy of the service's handbook entitled "Your Federal Income Tax, 1963 Edition, For Individuals."This has complete details on how to handle special forms of income. It can be ordered for 40 cents from the Government Printing Office, Washington25 , D.C., or at your local internal revenue office.



It's 'One Dog' Power

The expression on the face of Toots, a year-old Basset hound, doesn't match the smile on Phillip Hadley, 3, as Toots plays horse in Benton Harbor, Mich. The mournful expression, however, is typical of her breed. Toots really likes to play horse. Phillip's dad, John Hadley, a newspaper photographer, mad the photo. (AP Photofax)

University To Establish New Campus

Baltimore County Will Be Location

BALTIMORE (AP) — The University of Maryland Board of Regents voted Friday to establish a new campus of the university in Baltimore County. No site has been selected.

The unanimous vote came on a report by the board's expansion committee, which recommended establishment of a third campus in Baltimore County.

The committee cited as reasons the continuing growth of student enrollments at the College Park campus and the fact that 30 per cent come from the Baltimore area.

While all land purchases must be approved by the Board of Public Works and all funds must be appropriated by the General Assembly, the regents — an autonomous body — can make its own expansion moves.

Comptroller Louis Goldstein asked why the new undergraduate campus could not be located in the urban renewal area, along with the existing campus for professional schools in downtown Baltimore.

"It might be as much of a problem getting from the city to a Baltimore County campus as it is in getting to College Park," Goldstein said.

Richard Case, one of the regents, cited the delays involved in obtaining approval in an urban renewal project. "We can't wait that long," he said.

Edward F. Holter, expansion committee chairman, also said that land would be more expensive in an urban renewal area.

University officials told the regents the existing facilities on the present Baltimore campus are overcrowded and would not accommodate an undergraduate program as well.

In other business, the board approved a report and recommendations of the Curlett Commission on higher education. The report is now being considered by the General Assembly.

Whereabouts Of Teacher Still Unknown

WASHINGTON (AP) — William S. Replane, whose wife mysteriously disappeared four days ago, came to police headquarters here Friday to examine a photograph of a woman.

Police said a snapshot was found on a Northwest Washington street and they wanted Replane, 28-year-old science teacher at Laurel Junior High School, to examine it.

Replane said the woman in the picture was not his wife, although there was a resemblance.

Mrs. Replane, 25, has been missing since Monday night. Her car was found on a lonely road three hours after she finished teaching an adult sewing class at Laurel Senior High School.

In Maryland, meanwhile, State Police continued their check of telephone calls and other leads Friday in an effort to solve the mystery of Mrs. Replane's disappearance.

Her husband underwent lie detector tests Thursday, but police said the results will not be known for several days.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A Navy fighter plane vanished shortly after takeoff Thursday night and was still missing today.

The Navy said the one-man F8A Crusader left North Island Naval Air Station with three other planes and was supposed to rendezvous with them over the Pacific five minutes later, but it failed to appear.

The Navy identified the missing pilot as Lt. (J.G.) Duane R. Garrett, 25, USNR, son of James Garrett, Hyattsville, Md.

During the 1961-62 season, 50 three-game series of 800 or more were recorded by men bowlers.

Cuban Comic Wasn't Funny To Militia

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla., (UPI) — A Cuban comic who arrived here on the freighter Shirley Lykes Friday told how he was arrested six months ago when Castro militiamen became irked by his performance.

Leopoldo Fernandez, known as "Pototo," said he was doing a comedy sketch in Havana's National Theater. In the sketch, he said, he and workmen were hanging pictures of Cuban leaders on a wall.

Workmen brought in a portrait of former Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista, and he said "throw that one in the garbage."

When they brought in a picture of another former Cuban leader, he said, "put that one over there."

A picture of Fidel Castro was then brought in, and Fernandez said "I'll hang that one myself."

He said as soon as he finished the line, militiamen jumped on the stage and dragged him off to a jail.

He said he was imprisoned for two months and when he was released he found the National Theater had been closed.

Cuban Refugees Land

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Pan American World Airways plane brought 100 Cuban-Americans from Havana today. The passengers included three infants.

The plane carried a load of ransom medicines to Fidel Castro's regime, then returned with the refugees.

Legislators Air Probe On Safety

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Prince Georges County delegation had under advisement Friday a request by a labor leader to introduce a resolution calling for an inquiry by the General Assembly into Maryland's safety regulations and their enforcement.

Woodrow F. Strong, president of the Maryland-D.C. AFL-CIO, in asking for the resolution, said the way in which workers are being killed in sewer ditch cave-ins is "almost legalized murder."

Strong said he wanted the inquiry not only because of a Greenbelt Shopping Center cave-in last December which killed five persons and injured 11 but because of others as well. He said in a six-month period in 1960, seven persons were killed in other construction cave-ins in Prince Georges County.

Del. Edward T. Conroy, D-Prince Georges, said: "We told Mr. Strong that we would consider such a resolution and advise him of our decision at some future date. We have not yet made a decision."

Meanwhile, plans were announced Friday for a grand jury investigation in Prince Georges County of the Greenbelt accident.

State's Atty. Arthur A. Marshall Jr., who recently concluded his own study of the accident, said he will bring the case to the grand jury when it reconvenes Feb. 18.

Marshall said he would take the action because of "the most serious nature of the alleged violations, as well as the apparent confusion existing regarding the existence of certain safety regulations which might be applicable in the instant case."

Byrd is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee which handles money for the U. S. Forest Service.

The senator said the center would cost a total of $100,000 and would be located in the vicinity of Cranberry Glades between Richwood and Marlinton.

Newsman Jailed For Refusal To Tell Source

LONDON (UPI) — Lord Chief Justice Lord Parker of the high court Friday sentenced newsman Desmond Clough of the London Daily Sketch to six months in prison for refusing to divulge his source for stories about a convicted Soviet spy.

Clough was held in contempt by the court Thursday in the first case involving a journalist and his sources of information in British judicial history.

In passing sentence, Parker ruled that if Clough did identify his source to the special tribunal investigating spying in the Admiralty within 10 days he would suspend the prison term.

A spokesman for Clough said the case will be taken to the court of appeals. Failing there, Clough will appeal to the House of Lords, the highest appeal court in Britain.

Clough was one of three newsmen referred to the high court by the tribunal for refusing to name sources for stories they wrote about the case of Admiralty Clerk William John Vassall. Vassall, an admitted homosexual who said he was blackmailed into spying by the Russians, was convicted and sentenced to 18 years in prison.

The tribunal called on Clough to identify the government source who told him that information supplied by Bassall enabled Soviet "trawlers" to turn up at secret NATO naval maneuvers with uncanny accuracy.

Parker has expressed sympathy with Clough's position but held that the issue was one of "urgent" interest to the state and that all other interests — "private, professional" — must be subordinated.

But Clough, 34, stood firm. He said that disclosing his source would be a breach of trust and a betrayal of his profession.

"The freedom of the press would be completely undermined." Clough said. "I would be breaking a firm trust and I and all journalists feel passionately on this issue of the freedom of the press."

heard nothing to indicate there had been a significant Soviet buildup. Humphrey, who left the session before it ended, also referred to statements by President Kennedy at his Thursday news conference.

No Evidence Of Threat

The President said continued daily surveillance of Cuba had disclosed no influx of offensive Soviet equipment. He said one Soviet ship might have brought arms t Cuba but there was no evidence it carried weapons posing a threat to the United States.

Humphrey said the cargo apparently consisted of small arms. Subcommittee Chairman Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said in reply to one newsman's question that the subcommittee heard nothing to indicate that a Soviet bloc ship had hauled nuclear materials to Cuba.

FERNDALE, Md. (AP) — A policeman gave a volunteer fireman, Charles I. Boteler, a traffic ticket Thursday after he parked a fire truck in the fire company headquarters.

The policeman, Cpl. Thomas R. Ezell, said the truck returned from a fire with the emergency light flashing and crossed over a double white line forcing several cars from the road. Boteler will face charges in magistrate's court.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Equal Opportunities Commission has adopted a new regulation prohibiting racial discrimination at social affairs sponsored by employers subject to the city's equal employment law.

The commission adopted the ordinance Friday on the basis that social functions, such as office parties, are privileges of employment. The city civil rights statute prohibits denying any privileges of employment because of race.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sunpapers television stations WBOC in Salisbury and WMAR in Baltimore will present a documentary film on tours of state mental hospitals by Maryland legislators. The show is scheduled for showing Feb. 3.

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) — Msgr. Robert R. Kline, president of Mt. St. Mary's College, announced Friday that the construction of a new science building will begin this spring.

Msgr. Kline said the building was financed by $600,000 in private subscriptions and a $500,000 grant from the state.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore health commissioner, Dr. Robert Farber, says the best way to cure the flu that has been going around is to get plenty of rest, plenty of fluids and an aspirin every four hours.

If that doesn't cure the illness, Dr. Farber offers the consoling probability that the flu will cure itself in three to four days.

Slogan Skirmish Battle Lines Are Drawn

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Battle lines for a slogan skirmish were drawn Friday in the Maryland Legislature.

Del. Maurice Cardin, D-Balto 5th, introduced a bill to use the slogan "Star Spangled Banner State" on Maryland license plates.

The slogan "America in Miniature," suggested by Sen. George E. Snyder, D-Washington, already has been tentatively approved by the senate.

"I don't want to get in a hassle over slogans," Snyder said Friday, "but I think mine is the most descriptive of the state."

Snyder, who had a sample license tag imprinted with his slogan made at the Maryland Penitentiary, said Cardin's suggestion was longer and may require a longer plate to accommodate it.

Otherwise, he said, the letters would have to be so small as to negate their value.

Legislators Introduce Area Bills

Western Maryland legislators have started to drop local legislation into the hoppers of the General Assembly.

State Sen. George R. Hughes of Allegany County this week sponsored Senate Bill 129 providing for the establishment of a redevelopment and urban renewal plan for carrying out urban renewal projects in Westernport.

The purpose of the plan is to rehabilitate slum areas and includes the acquisition of property for these purposes. The plan is to be administered by the Mayor and Council of Westernport.

State Sen. Hughes Thursday introduced Senate Bill 142 which would increase the salary of the Allegany County treasurer from $2,000 annually to $2,400 a year. The pay boost would become effective in 1966.

Also introduced this week were two bills by the Garrett County delegation. House Bill 167 provides that jurors in Garrett County shall receive $8 per day with no extra allowance for mileage.

At present, Garrett County jurors receive $5 per day and 15 cents a mile, one-way from their homes to the Court House.

House Bill 168 introduced by the Garrett legislators would authorize the sheriff of that county to appoint two deputies and a cook. In addition the sheriff would receive $1 per day for boarding each prisoner committed to the County Jail.

Last week, the first piece of local legislation sponsored by the six Allegany County delegates was House Bill 152.

This would put the two substitute registrars in the office of the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Allegany County under classified service.

HB 152 provides that the two persons holding these jobs as of June 1, provided they have been there for not less than six months immediately prior to that date, shall automatically be placed under classified service.

While they are now paid on a daily basis, the pay system would be changed to be not less than $800 per year each by the Allegany County Commissioners.

Plans to make minor amendments to the bill were made by the Delegation this week.

Again this year a joint session will be held in the morning and topics for discussion will be of equal interest to the growers and producers.

In the afternoon there will be separate sessions for the two groups, in order that more specific problems can be discussed. Question and answer periods will be held in the morning and after, said Mr. Steger.

A break in a water main on Kelly Boulevard was repaired by Water Department crews this week.

Legislators Introduce Area Bills

Western Maryland legislators have started to drop local legislation into the hoppers of the General Assembly.

State Sen. George R. Hughes of Allegany County this week sponsored Senate Bill 129 providing for the establishment of a redevelopment and urban renewal plan for carrying out urban renewal projects in Westernport.

The purpose of the plan is to rehabilitate slum areas and includes the acquisition of property for these purposes. The plan is to be administered by the Mayor and Council of Westernport.

State Sen. Hughes Thursday introduced Senate Bill 142 which would increase the salary of the Allegany County treasurer from $2,000 annually to $2,400 a year. The pay boost would become effective in 1966.

Also introduced this week were two bills by the Garrett County delegation. House Bill 167 provides that jurors in Garrett County shall receive $8 per day with no extra allowance for mileage.

At present, Garrett County jurors receive $5 per day and 15 cents a mile, one-way from their homes to the Court House.

House Bill 168 introduced by the Garrett legislators would authorize the sheriff of that county to appoint two deputies and a cook. In addition the sheriff would receive $1 per day for boarding each prisoner committed to the County Jail.

Last week, the first piece of local legislation sponsored by the six Allegany County delegates was House Bill 152.

This would put the two substitute registrars in the office of the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Allegany County under classified service.

HB 152 provides that the two persons holding these jobs as of June 1, provided they have been there for not less than six months immediately prior to that date, shall automatically be placed under classified service.

While they are now paid on a daily basis, the pay system would be changed to be not less than $800 per year each by the Allegany County Commissioners.

Plans to make minor amendments to the bill were made by the Delegation this week.

Again this year a joint session will be held in the morning and topics for discussion will be of equal interest to the growers and producers.

In the afternoon there will be separate sessions for the two groups, in order that more specific problems can be discussed. Question and answer periods will be held in the morning and after, said Mr. Steger.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girl friend and I are both 16. She goes with a fellow named Tom. I go with Jerry. They are both nice guys, but they have completely opposite personalities. Tom is quiet and reserved and Jerry is the life of the party and full of jokes.

We got to talking seriously about our fellows the other night and it turns out that I admire Tom and she goes for Jerry. I'm fed up on Jerry's jokes and she is bored with Tom's quietness. We would like to trade. This thought has crosed my mind before but I never had the nerve to mention it. Now that I know she feels the same way, how do you think we should go about it?

—FAIR EXCHANGE

DEAR FAIR: You can't just trade steadies as if they were stuffed monkeys.

Since both of you obviously are dissatisfied with your boy friends why not simply break up the steady arrangement (which is for the birds anyway.) With a little luck Tom may come your way and Jerry may go hers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was disturbed by the letter signed, "London Observer." He made the statement that English and European children show more respect for adults than American children. The expresion he used was "less cheeky."

I've had experience with both and it is my belief that while English and European children may seem better behaved it is a hyprocritical type of behavior which does not reflect their true feelings. They are more terrified than respectful.

American children communicate more easily with adults. They are not stifled by an atmosphere of rigid authority. They feel free to be frank and outspoken which is a healthier climate for an adolescent. The "Beautifully mannered" children often seethe underneath with hostility. Their problems come later.

—NICHOLAS J. P.

Dear Nickey: I agree that "respect" rooted in fear may be flattering to the adult but can be damaging to the child.

Children should not be terrified of their parents. But neither should parents be terrified of their children. I believe in a give and take relationship, but the parents shouldn't take too much —guff, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: I started to date Joyce in my freshman year of college. We were inseparable for two and a half years. As you can imagine, we became too intimate for our own good and on three separate occasions I thought we would have to get married.

I was willing to do the decent thing but she said she'd marry me only if it was absolutely necessary because her freedom meant too much. One day Joyce handed my fraternity pin back to me and said, "I've lost interest. Goodby and good luck." I was deeply hurt. I haven't seen her since November and have healed nicely, thank you. I'm dating several nice gals and am not involved with anyone.

Yesterday Joyce phoned and said she misses me and wants to get married at once. The tone of urgency in her voice suggested she might be in a tough spot. I feel an obligation to Joyce because I was her first serious boy friend, but I have no desire to marry her. Am I a heel?

— LOOSE HANGER

Dear Loose: If you haven't seen Joyce since November the "tough spot" she may be in has nothing to do with you. Consider yourself lucky to have unwound from this girl and let this be a lesson to you — as well as to others.

Confidential to TONS OF TROUBLE: Some people who have tons of trouble grow wings and fly above it. Others get crutches and join the ranks of the crippled. You can take your choice.

Secrets Of Charm

A Bachelor's View On Dinner Date Bait

What makes one girl a popular dinner date choice and another less so?

I put that question to one of the most eligible (and popular) young bachelors I know. This is what he said:

"It makes any man proud to have a delightful looking woman seated across from him at the dinner table. But what makes him feel downright lucky is when she's the kind of girl who has a deep-down liking for people. Then she's sure to have a fun approach to life in general. A man feels highly privileged to be the escort of such a woman.

"There's just one other matter that enters into the perfect dinner date. The woman must known how to conduct herself — she must be able to blend into the social scene without causing any embarrassment to herself or the man. And when a gal is all that —and can also select a delightful dinner from the menu without making her escort feel that he is buying the restaurant when the check arrives — ah, you can be sure that she's a girl whose telephone jangles the most often!"

Smooth looks, smooth personality, smooth manners! It's the latter that troubles many a lass making her first bows in the dinner-dating world. But you'll have no trouble at all if you can come through the following quiz with the right answers. Just mark each of the following true or false:

1. If your escort leaves the choice of the dining spot to you, it's sophisticated to pick an expensive restaurant.
2. You should insist that he make the choice of eating place.
3. You usually check your coat on entering a restaurant.
4. You do not remove your gloves until the food is served.
5. You precede the captain to the table.
6. You must give your order to the waiter.
7. You should not ask what an unknown or foreign dish is.
8. Lacking something, you signal the waiter.
9. You should choose the least costly dish on the menu.
10. It is your right to complain of poor food service.
11. Exclusive places call for better than ordinary manners.
12. You may not use lipstick at the table but may run a comb through your hair if it is windblown on arrival.
13. Whether your escort smokes or not, you light up at any time during dinner.

In each statement, false is the answer that rates you as a charmer. If you slipped, find out why in a book of etiquette. Lost are your charming looks unless your manners measure up!

Secrets Of Charm

A Bachelor's View On Dinner Date Bait

What makes one girl a popular dinner date choice and another less so?

I put that question to one of the most eligible (and popular) young bachelors I know. This is what he said:

"It makes any man proud to have a delightful looking woman seated across from him at the dinner table. But what makes him feel downright lucky is when she's the kind of girl who has a deep-down liking for people. Then she's sure to have a fun approach to life in general. A man feels highly privileged to be the escort of such a woman.

"There's just one other matter that enters into the perfect dinner date. The woman must known how to conduct herself — she must be able to blend into the social scene without causing any embarrassment to herself or the man. And when a gal is all that —and can also select a delightful dinner from the menu without making her escort feel that he is buying the restaurant when the check arrives — ah, you can be sure that she's a girl whose telephone jangles the most often!"

Smooth looks, smooth personality, smooth manners! It's the latter that troubles many a lass making her first bows in the dinner-dating world. But you'll have no trouble at all if you can come through the following quiz with the right answers. Just mark each of the following true or false:

1. If your escort leaves the choice of the dining spot to you, it's sophisticated to pick an expensive restaurant.
2. You should insist that he make the choice of eating place.
3. You usually check your coat on entering a restaurant.
4. You do not remove your gloves until the food is served.
5. You precede the captain to the table.
6. You must give your order to the waiter.
7. You should not ask what an unknown or foreign dish is.
8. Lacking something, you signal the waiter.
9. You should choose the least costly dish on the menu.
10. It is your right to complain of poor food service.
11. Exclusive places call for better than ordinary manners.
12. You may not use lipstick at the table but may run a comb through your hair if it is windblown on arrival.
13. Whether your escort smokes or not, you light up at any time during dinner.

In each statement, false is the answer that rates you as a charmer. If you slipped, find out why in a book of etiquette. Lost are your charming looks unless your manners measure up!

CHURCH IN THE HILLS

The little frame church in this snow-blanketed mountain village lifts its tall spire above its rugged environment like a sentinel guarding a sacred trust or a lighthouse on a rock-bound coast.

Wherever man has pushed his habitations — in the bleak wastes of the polar regions, under the blazing tropical sun, or in the milder climates of the world — he has built his churches dedicated to the worship of God.

The fact that no community seems complete without its house of worship bears eloquent testimony to the universal recognition of man's need of religion.

The village church plays a vital part in the life of the community. The spiritual standards of the people are fashioned there; marriage vows are spoken at its altar, and the honored dead sleep in its sacred soil.

There it stands in every community — the little frame church — pointing the people to God, teaching them the way of life, giving them strength and faith for every need.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

CHURCH IN THE HILLS

The little frame church in this snow-blanketed mountain village lifts its tall spire above its rugged environment like a sentinel guarding a sacred trust or a lighthouse on a rock-bound coast.

Wherever man has pushed his habitations — in the bleak wastes of the polar regions, under the blazing tropical sun, or in the milder climates of the world — he has built his churches dedicated to the worship of God.

The fact that no community seems complete without its house of worship bears eloquent testimony to the universal recognition of man's need of religion.

The village church plays a vital part in the life of the community. The spiritual standards of the people are fashioned there; marriage vows are spoken at its altar, and the honored dead sleep in its sacred soil.

There it stands in every community — the little frame church — pointing the people to God, teaching them the way of life, giving them strength and faith for every need.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The world's largest natural amphitheater, the Hollywood Bowl in Los Angeles, has such superb acoustics that performers hardly need microphones to be heard in the farthest rows. The 120-acre bowl seats 20,000. In 40 years of concerts, rain has postponed only three performances.

City Seeks Aid For Developing Candoc Areas

The National Park Service will go as far as it can to cooperate with the City of Cumberland in developing stretches of the C&O Canal property on the southern perimeter of the city.

That was the opinion of Edwin M. Dale, Hagerstown, area superintendent for the C&O Canal Historical Park, when he conferred with city officials yesterday in City Hall.

He was informed that the city is interested in cooperating with the National Parks Service in developing areas on either side of the Candoc skating area near Offutt Street.

C. Eugene Mason, city recreation director, asked about the possibilities of landscaping the canal property so that grass could be grown, placing picnic tables and fireplaces.

All present at the conference agreed that the canal development would be a natural combination of historical and pleasant restoration.

Dale said a walking area for outings could be provided along the canal land from the vicinity of Smith Island along the Potomac River to the Evitts Creek aqueduct.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said the project comes at an interesting time due to the city getting into urban renewal.

Dale declared that he will present the city's request to the National Parks Service planning section in Philadelphia.

He observed that the NPS financial "pot" is not too great.

The actual cost of restoration, landscaping and planning is minimal compared to the upkeep, Dale pointed out.

However, Mrs. Roeder and City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said that the city has grass-cutting equipment that could be used in the cooperative effort to provide a restoration.

Another point brought out by Dale was the increasing importance of city's keeping the "green belt" around their perimeters.

Industrial development reduces the size of these green areas which are places for "people to go" for recreation.

It was suggested that the immediate proposal that would be presented to the NPS planning section would be development of the canal property both upstream and downstream from the Candoc skating area.

Dale suggested that perhaps in the future the canal could be filled at a depth of from one to two feet.

Some other source of water for the canal other than from the Potomac was also proposed.

The skating area is filled by 1,000,000 gallons of city water, or one-twelfth of a day's consumption. River water, due to its upstream contamination, is difficult to freeze into ice, Nuzum pointed out.

Dale informed the session that he will pass along to his superiors a favorable recommendation for the possibilities of the canal area restoration in Cumberland.

Grim Submits Patient List

Earl E. Grim, superintendent of the County Infirmary, yesterday submitted a list of 86 patients in the institution who are over 65 years of age who might qualify for the chronic hospital care program of the State Department of Public Welfare.

The state agency has requested the county to provide information on the number of patients in the Infirmary who might be in the category of those who would receive assistance under the medical care for the aged.

The Allegany County Welfare Board will be asked to check into the list to determine those persons who qualify.

Sewage Unit Report Is Adopted

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday adopted the report submitted by the County Sewage Study Committee, which was based on engineering data compiled by Buckhart-Horn, engineering consultants of York, Pa.

Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon made the motion to adopt the report and it was passed unanimously.

The adoption of the report, which contained recommendations for handling the sewage problem in the county, will be subject to approval of the State Department of Health.

A letter will be sent to the State Health Department requesting speedy action in the matter as time is of the essence, the commissioners stated.

One recommendation of the study group was the employment of a full-time professional engineer to conduct the program as recommended by the committee.

The members of the committee are being sent letters discharging them of their duties and also thanking them for their efforts on behalf of the county.

Members of the committee were John E. Geare, chairman; Chester A. Fisher, William A. Douglas, Playford S. Aldridge and William R. Carscaden.

Mothers Plan Dimes March On Sunday

The 1963 March of Dimes in Allegany County will be culminated Sunday with the traditional Mothers March, according to Philmore F. Fleming, Allegany County general chairman of the 1963 appeal.

Heading the Mothers March is Mrs. Joyce Vowell, who points out that contributions will help in the fight against crippling birth defects, as well as against arthritis and polio. Assisting Mrs. Vowell is Mrs. Elizabeth Nave, a veteran of many other March of Dimes campaigns.

Mrs. Vowell said an all-out effort will be needed if this year's appeal is to equal or surpass the 1962 Mothers March, when better than $6,000 was realized.

Additional volunteers can be used in the various areas of town, Mrs. Vowell stated, and those interested in offering their services can do so by calling the Mothers March chairman at 722-5045. Arrangements also can be made with Mrs. Robert Watkins, South Cumberland chairman, at 724-0584, or Mrs. Glenn McCreery, executive secretary of the March of Dimes, at 724-3759.

Quota for the 1963 March of Dimes has been set at $13,000, Fleming said.

Assisting in the 1963 campaign are the various American Legion posts in the county, and their Auxiliary units, the general chairman said.

Events scheduled this weekend by Legion posts include a dance tomorrow evening by Midland Post 189, and one by Farrady Post 24 of Frostburg.

Victory Post 155, Westernport, again will conduct a radiothon, Fleming said, pointing out that the post last year raised better than $1,000 for the March of Dimes. The Post Auxiliary will conduct the Mothers March that day in the Westernport area, Fleming added.

Mrs. Vowell said that volunteers unable to work Sunday can solicit their areas Monday through Thursday, January 31, the concluding day for March of Dimes month.

Druids decked their halls with boughs of holly to shelter sylvan spirits threatened by frost and winter winds.

Alumnae Pledge $5,000 To Sacred Heart Hospital

Miss Catherine E. Stakem, president of the Sacred Heart Hospital Alumnae Association, yesterday announced that the hospital graduates have subscribed $5,000 to the $500,000 drive to put the new Sacred Heart on Haystack Mountain.

Miss Stakem pointed out that the alumnae provided a room in the present hospital, adding that "the members are gratified by the response of the community to the new Sacred Heart drive, and will make every effort to do their part to make the new hospital a reality."

The type of memorial that the alumnae wishes to provide in the new hospital will be selected at the next general meeting, the president stated, and Lewis J. Ort, general chairman of the hospital campaign, said that the loyalty and generosity shown by the hospital "family" will serve as an inspiration to others in the community in the provision of permanent memorials in the new building.

Hospital employes have passed the $21,700 mark in their support of the building fund, the chairman said.

Miss Stakem pointed out that it was the practice of the 50-year-old alumnae group to provide a three-year scholarship to the nursing school at Sacred Heart, and that this practice will no doubt be renewed when the nursing school at the new hospital is instituted.

"Every member will be given an opportunity to participate in the current hospital drive," Miss Stakem said. "This is a homecoming year for the alumnae, and there will be a variety of activities throughout the year."

Sister Mary Richard, Sacred Heart administrator, said "We are grateful to the alumnae for accepting this great challenge and for demonstrating the kind of 'family spirit' that will make the new hospital a success."

Other officers of the alumnae are Mrs. Betty Sell, vice president; Miss Mary Margaret King, secretary, and Mrs. Margaret Lee King, treasurer. Board members are Mrs. Margaret Conlon, Miss Christine Williams, Mrs. Stella Sell and Mrs. Catherine Murray.

To Drink Tea

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Boy Scouts attending their World Jamboree in August near Athens will have plenty of tea to drink—two tons of it, donated by the Tea Board of India.

It is believed that the custom of Christmas trees crossed the Atlantic with Hessian mercenaries during the American Revolution.

City Seeks Aid For Developing Candoc Areas

The National Park Service will go as far as it can to cooperate with the City of Cumberland in developing stretches of the C&O Canal property on the southern perimeter of the city.

That was the opinion of Edwin M. Dale, Hagerstown, area superintendent for the C&O Canal Historical Park, when he conferred with city officials yesterday in City Hall.

He was informed that the city is interested in cooperating with the National Parks Service in developing areas on either side of the Candoc skating area near Offutt Street.

C. Eugene Mason, city recreation director, asked about the possibilities of landscaping the canal property so that grass could be grown, placing picnic tables and fireplaces.

All present at the conference agreed that the canal development would be a natural combination of historical and pleasant restoration.

Dale said a walking area for outings could be provided along the canal land from the vicinity of Smith Island along the Potomac River to the Evitts Creek aqueduct.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said the project comes at an interesting time due to the city getting into urban renewal.

Dale declared that he will present the city's request to the National Parks Service planning section in Philadelphia.

He observed that the NPS financial "pot" is not too great.

The actual cost of restoration, landscaping and planning is minimal compared to the upkeep, Dale pointed out.

However, Mrs. Roeder and City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said that the city has grass-cutting equipment that could be used in the cooperative effort to provide a restoration.

Another point brought out by Dale was the increasing importance of city's keeping the "green belt" around their perimeters.

Industrial development reduces the size of these green areas which are places for "people to go" for recreation.

It was suggested that the immediate proposal that would be presented to the NPS planning section would be development of the canal property both upstream and downstream from the Candoc skating area.

Dale suggested that perhaps in the future the canal could be filled at a depth of from one to two feet.

Some other source of water for the canal other than from the Potomac was also proposed.

The skating area is filled by 1,000,000 gallons of city water, or one-twelfth of a day's consumption. River water, due to its upstream contamination, is difficult to freeze into ice, Nuzum pointed out.

Dale informed the session that he will pass along to his superiors a favorable recommendation for the possibilities of the canal area restoration in Cumberland.

Grim Submits Patient List

Earl E. Grim, superintendent of the County Infirmary, yesterday submitted a list of 86 patients in the institution who are over 65 years of age who might qualify for the chronic hospital care program of the State Department of Public Welfare.

The state agency has requested the county to provide information on the number of patients in the Infirmary who might be in the category of those who would receive assistance under the medical care for the aged.

The Allegany County Welfare Board will be asked to check into the list to determine those persons who qualify.

Sewage Unit Report Is Adopted

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday adopted the report submitted by the County Sewage Study Committee, which was based on engineering data compiled by Buckhart-Horn, engineering consultants of York, Pa.

Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon made the motion to adopt the report and it was passed unanimously.

The adoption of the report, which contained recommendations for handling the sewage problem in the county, will be subject to approval of the State Department of Health.

A letter will be sent to the State Health Department requesting speedy action in the matter as time is of the essence, the commissioners stated.

One recommendation of the study group was the employment of a full-time professional engineer to conduct the program as recommended by the committee.

The members of the committee are being sent letters discharging them of their duties and also thanking them for their efforts on behalf of the county.

Members of the committee were John E. Geare, chairman; Chester A. Fisher, William A. Douglas, Playford S. Aldridge and William R. Carscaden.

Mothers Plan Dimes March On Sunday

The 1963 March of Dimes in Allegany County will be culminated Sunday with the traditional Mothers March, according to Philmore F. Fleming, Allegany County general chairman of the 1963 appeal.

Heading the Mothers March is Mrs. Joyce Vowell, who points out that contributions will help in the fight against crippling birth defects, as well as against arthritis and polio. Assisting Mrs. Vowell is Mrs. Elizabeth Nave, a veteran of many other March of Dimes campaigns.

Mrs. Vowell said an all-out effort will be needed if this year's appeal is to equal or surpass the 1962 Mothers March, when better than $6,000 was realized.

Additional volunteers can be used in the various areas of town, Mrs. Vowell stated, and those interested in offering their services can do so by calling the Mothers March chairman at 722-5045. Arrangements also can be made with Mrs. Robert Watkins, South Cumberland chairman, at 724-0584, or Mrs. Glenn McCreery, executive secretary of the March of Dimes, at 724-3759.

Quota for the 1963 March of Dimes has been set at $13,000, Fleming said.

Assisting in the 1963 campaign are the various American Legion posts in the county, and their Auxiliary units, the general chairman said.

Events scheduled this weekend by Legion posts include a dance tomorrow evening by Midland Post 189, and one by Farrady Post 24 of Frostburg.

Victory Post 155, Westernport, again will conduct a radiothon, Fleming said, pointing out that the post last year raised better than $1,000 for the March of Dimes. The Post Auxiliary will conduct the Mothers March that day in the Westernport area, Fleming added.

Mrs. Vowell said that volunteers unable to work Sunday can solicit their areas Monday through Thursday, January 31, the concluding day for March of Dimes month.

Druids decked their halls with boughs of holly to shelter sylvan spirits threatened by frost and winter winds.

Alumnae Pledge $5,000 To Sacred Heart Hospital

Miss Catherine E. Stakem, president of the Sacred Heart Hospital Alumnae Association, yesterday announced that the hospital graduates have subscribed $5,000 to the $500,000 drive to put the new Sacred Heart on Haystack Mountain.

Miss Stakem pointed out that the alumnae provided a room in the present hospital, adding that "the members are gratified by the response of the community to the new Sacred Heart drive, and will make every effort to do their part to make the new hospital a reality."

The type of memorial that the alumnae wishes to provide in the new hospital will be selected at the next general meeting, the president stated, and Lewis J. Ort, general chairman of the hospital campaign, said that the loyalty and generosity shown by the hospital "family" will serve as an inspiration to others in the community in the provision of permanent memorials in the new building.

Hospital employes have passed the $21,700 mark in their support of the building fund, the chairman said.

Miss Stakem pointed out that it was the practice of the 50-year-old alumnae group to provide a three-year scholarship to the nursing school at Sacred Heart, and that this practice will no doubt be renewed when the nursing school at the new hospital is instituted.

"Every member will be given an opportunity to participate in the current hospital drive," Miss Stakem said. "This is a homecoming year for the alumnae, and there will be a variety of activities throughout the year."

Sister Mary Richard, Sacred Heart administrator, said "We are grateful to the alumnae for accepting this great challenge and for demonstrating the kind of 'family spirit' that will make the new hospital a success."

Other officers of the alumnae are Mrs. Betty Sell, vice president; Miss Mary Margaret King, secretary, and Mrs. Margaret Lee King, treasurer. Board members are Mrs. Margaret Conlon, Miss Christine Williams, Mrs. Stella Sell and Mrs. Catherine Murray.

To Drink Tea

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Boy Scouts attending their World Jamboree in August near Athens will have plenty of tea to drink—two tons of it, donated by the Tea Board of India.

It is believed that the custom of Christmas trees crossed the Atlantic with Hessian mercenaries during the American Revolution.

A Ready Remedy For Deficits

Federal budgets are nothing more than economic assumptions. At best, they are informed guesses on what may happen in the next fiscal year — and experience proves that more often than not they have been bad guesses.

A year ago, for example, President Kennedy predicted a surplus for the current fiscal year of about $500 million, but the latest estimate indicates 1962-63 will wind up with an $8.8 billion deficit. Not in a score of years has a President guessed within a billion dollars of the fiscal facts.

Maybe the $11.9 billion deficit Mr. Kennedy projects for 1963-64 was pitched too high and it may wind up as only $10 billion in red ink. Such a moderately happy circumstance, if it occurs, could be extremely useful to any administration on the eve of a national election.

Another of Mr. Kennedy's guesses was that Congress might be hostile to his record-breaking $98.8 billion budget and a $10 billion tax cut, all in a single year. Perhaps that explains his promises that after an interim of annual deficits the tax cut would produce balanced budgets and economic prosperity in the years to come.

But members on both sides of the Capitol seem unimpressed. They complain loudly and at length of grandiose spending plans, fiscal irresponsibility, visionary figures, financial ruin, and so on. But they have an antidote ready at hand. There's nothing to stop them from chopping away at Mr. Kennedy's requests.

The budget is supposed to serve Congress merely as a guideline to the President's spending priorities. The rest is up to the members. Only Congress has the power of the purse—and upon Congress alone rests the responsibility for determining federal spending.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Toothless Congress

Senator Barry Goldwater has indicated that he may be willing to seek the Republican nomination for the Presidency if enough support materializes in the next year or so. But if he is actually making a pitch for the privilege of leading his party as a Presidential candidate in the effort to unseat the Kennedy Administration, he is doing it in a most paradoxical way, by knocking all the traditional implied powers of the Presidential office.

Senator Goldwater paid his disrespect to the doctrine of the "strong" executive in a little-noticed speech delivered last week before the Air War College at Maxwell Air Base, Montgomery, Ala. The speech was superficially noteworthy in that Goldwater, in criticizing President Kennedy for a series of "tiny coup d'etats" which are reshaping the federal system into a "lopsided monster" that is virtually "all executive," served notice that he himself would, if elected, endeavor to be a "constitutional" President. But of deeper import was Goldwater's implied accusation that the U.S. Senate cannot be an effective policy maker in an age that demands expertise as the basis for important political decision.

The real "legislators" for the nation, so Goldwater indicated to the air officers at Maxwell base, are the civilian research and consultative groups that work for the cabinet departments. What the technical "experts," who have never been elected to office, recommend to the Department of Defense or the State Department, to pick two examples, seldom even comes to the attention of the supposedly appropriate Senatorial committees. Yet the expertise becomes the basis for national policy. There is no Senatorial "advice," no "consent," before the civilian recommendations are transformed into the fait accompli of executive decision.

The Goldwater complaints were not only general; they were also specific. Item: no member of the Senate Armed Services Committee was apprised of the decision to scrap Skybolt and to offer the Polaris missile to NATO countries. Item: the most recent disarmament proposal offered at Geneva by the U.S. has never, to the Senator's knowledge, been discussed by the foreign affairs committee of either House. Item: the 87th Congress almost unanimously supported additional appropriations for the B-70 program, but the Department of Defense, relying on its own advisers, has "consistently refused to recognize the will of the people as expressed through the votes of the Congress" in making use of the money.

In the matter of medical care for the aged, said Goldwater, Congress has already spoken its wish on policy by passing the Kerr-Mills bill. But simply because this legislation has failed to please the executive, the "Department of Health, Education and Welfare is deliberately using its powers to stultify the Kerr-Mills procedures." As for Cuba, Senator Goldwater told the air officers that Congress is opposed not just to missiles in Cuba but to the toleration of a Communist base there at all. Yet the President, relying on his own "technicians," appears to be entirely complaisant about missiles in Cuba provided they are of a "defensive" nature.

The upshot of Goldwater's Maxwell Air Base remarks is that he is starting a crusade to vindicate the powers of the U.S. Senate. But he doesn't say how this is to be done, or even that it can be done. In every legislative body of the Western world the difficulty of assembling the necessary expertise to serve as the basis for effective foreign, military and even domestic policy is defeating the best efforts of elected officials. In England it is notorious that pressure groups, when they are interested in affecting policy, seldom bother with old-fashioned lobbying in the House of Commons corridors. Instead, they lobby the appropriate Whitehall bureaucrats. If Senator Goldwater can restore policy-making effectiveness to the U.S. Congress he will prove himself a genius. And, ironically, he will have made it more important to remain a Senator than to become President of the United States.

That Head Refuses To Shrink

Tangling With Atty. Gen. Kennedy Will Be Nothing New To Roy Cohn

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Roy Cohn, former counsel to Sen. Joe McCarthy, has glowered at many a witness across the Senate investigation table but now has to glower at one of the toughest members of the Kennedy administration — namely, Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

The Justice Department is now probing Cohn's tangled tax situation as a result of multiplicity of corporations set up to handle the Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson and Sonny Liston prize fights.

Once before, Cohn almost got into a fight with Bob Kennedy. In their whippersnapper days they were both junior gumshoes on McCarthy's staff—until Kennedy got fed up with McCarthy's cry-wolf tactics and warned him that he was headed for disaster.

Shortly before his departure, Kennedy objected to Roy Cohn's threat to "get" Sen. Harry Jackson, the Washington Democrat who had belittled Cohn's pal David Schine, the young private at Fort Dix whose demand for privileged treatment caused a Senate investigation. Kennedy objected to Cohn's threat against the Senator from Washington.

"Do you want to fight now?" Cohn shouted back.

"Don't warn me," snapped Kennedy. "Don't try it again, Cohn."

New FPC Commissioner

Far Western Senators are already looking for a public power-minded man to replace Commissioner Howard Morgan, who has written a critical letter to Kennedy declining to accept reappointment on the Federal Power Commission. Western Senators want a man who will have the courage to buck the big utilities, and they plan to pressure the White House to make sure a protector of the consumer is selected.

They have been joined by Gov. Pat Brown, Democrat of California, whose state is dependent on natural gas from Texas and also had incerasing water power needs for its expanding industry.

Two men under consideration are:

William Bennett of California, who has battled against El Paso Natural Gas and the power interests and who has just been made public service commissioner for California. Governor Brown would hate to lose Bennett, but on the other hand would like to see a tough, consumer-minded commissioner on the FPC.

Leif Erickson of Montana, who was the youngest justice ever to serve on the Montana Supreme Court and in 1944 defeated the venerable Sen. Burton K. Wheeler in the Democratic Primary, later to be defeated in the final election by Republican Zale Ecton.

Erickson is backed by various Northwest Senators as a 100 per cent protector of the consumer. However, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, who has been voting with the oil interests of late, regards him as a "bit too courageous."

It will be interesting to see what President Kennedy does.

Friend Of Fidel

James Donovan, the New York attorney who negotiated the release of the Cuban Freedom Fighters, had so many talks with Fidel Castro that the two men became rather friendly.

As they neared what looked to be their final agreement, Castro confided to Donovan: "Thank goodness there is one American I can talk to. If we get this finished, I'm going to tell the world that you are one American we could get along with."

"If we ever do conclude it," remarked Donovan. "Please don't tell anybody what you think of me, Fidel. Bacause with friends like you, I don't need enemies."

Fresh Approach To Space

Members of the Senate Space Committee were surprised when they got a telephone call from new space chairman Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, asking whether it would be OK to hold a meeting on last Thursday.

They were surprised because the late chairman Bob Kerr never game them more than an hour or two notice when he called a meeting.

"If you can't be there, give me your proxy," he would notify them.

When they asked what the meeting was about, the reply wouludl be, "I'll tell you when you get there."

Chairman Anderson is adopting a different approach.

Louisiana Tax Czar

Shreveport oilmen who did their best to defeat Russell Long of Louisiana for re-election are singing another tune, now that Russell has become No. 2 man on the powerful Senate Finance Committee. They know he can chop down the 27½ per cent oil depletion loophole if he wants to. So they've been approaching the Senator's close friend, Joe Cawthorn.

"Is Russell going to stand pat on the 27½ per cent depletion?" they asked. "Won't you talk to Russell and see if he needs any campaign contributions?"

"You better not let Russell know how you feel," advised Cawthorn. "He knows all too well who was against him in the last election. And if he knows you're for him now, he might change his mind and cut down on oil depletion."

U.S. On The Brink Of 'War' With Gen. De Gaulle

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

No one has quite admitted it as yet; but the fact remains that the European policy of the Kennedy administration has been brought to a jarring, shuddering halt by Gen. de Gaulle.

The aim was to "wait to do business with Europe." For two years, this has been the strongest of several reasons cited by the Kennedy policy-makers for not doing business with the intransigent de Gaulle. And for two years, the hope has been that this larger, more amiable Europe, with which business could be done, would come into being with Britain's admission to the European Common Market.

The aim has been blocked, the hope has been frustrated, by de Gaulle's brutal veto on Britain's admission. Furthermore, the protests of the other five members of the Common Market have been pallidly ineffectual; and the Germans, long our warmest European friends, have now interrupted their protests to sign the new Franco-German accord.

In these circumstances, at least for the time being, doing business with the European Common Market means doing business with de Daulle. Yet de Gaulle's actions can only be interpreted as sharply hostile to the U. S. His almost openly announced eventual objective is to eliminate American influence from Europe's sacred soil.

The first impulse of the Kennedy administration has been to retaliate in kind. Eyes roll piously heavenwards. Strong denials are instantly and probably sincerely entered, when the question is asked: "Are we now going to war against de Gaulle?" Our policy, it is stated, is always to leave an open chair at the conference table, which the General will be welcome to occupy whenever he wishes to talk with the President.

Yet consider the actions which are being taken, or are now being contemplated. First of all, despite the total disarray produced by de Gaulle's veto against Britain, our able Trade Act negotiator, former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, has already left for Europe to get the European-American trade and tariff talks going.

It is accepted as almost certain that when and if serious talks begin, the French negotiators will do everything in their power to make life harder for Herter. But the intention is to try to surround and checkmate the French, by seeking to organize a pro-American united front of the Italians, Germans, Belgian, Dutch, and Luxembourgers.

Secondly, the multi-lateral deterrent, which the British approved at Nassau, is a fine bright red rag to the Gaullist bull. Knowing this, we have already sought and won the approval of the Germans and the Italians. And we are going to go on pressing forward with the multi-lateral deterrent scheme in talks with other NATO nations, come hell or high water.

Finally, if the going gets too rough, there is talk about asking the Germans, point blank, to choose once and for all between France and the United States. For the Germans, there could be no more agonizing choice. For Gen. de Gaulle, there could be no more infuriating act.

Right there is the central point that must be faced.

The American actions now under way or under contemplation in Europe really add up to going to war against de Gaulle, whatever one may say about open chairs. At any rate, de Gaulle will think that the U. S. has declared war upon him, and that is what mainly matters.

There are two reasons why this is a profoundly serious and dangerous prospect. In the first place, if we seem to be going to war on de Gaulle, he will move on to the next stage. From seeking to limit our influence in Europe, he will proceed to active retaliation. And he can do us very serious damage in this way, by ordering the Bank of France to use its power against the dollar on the world markets, for instance.

There are things of the same sort we can do against de Gaulle —temporarily crippling his nuclear deterrent scheme, for instance, by refusing to supply France with the American tanker aircraft needed to give the French Mirage IV bombers the range they will otherwise lack.

As these examples may suggest, the second reason for worrying about an open political war between de Gaulle and the Kennedy administration is, quite simply, that it will be very difficult to keep within bounds.

Such a contest, if permitted to develop, will be a fight with no holds barred.

Hence the only sensible American objective, in case of war, will be nothing less than breaking up the European Common Market. That is the only truly effective, truly decisive way of isolating de Gaulle, the only sure way of doing business with the rest of Europe without worrying about de Gaulle's strange quirks and grandiose views.

It can be seen, then, why careful stock-taking and honest fact-facing are now urgent. Above all, if we mean to take the actions that de Gaulle will interpret meaning war to the knife, it is vital not to cherish any illusions about where those actions must lead. A wholly new situation confronts the U. S. and some months given to studying it will not be time wasted.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

INVENTIVE THINKING — If you think you have an inventive mind and want to know what to devote your energies to, contact the National Inventor's Council, in the Department of Commerce, in Washington. They've just issued a new bulletin on things that need inventing.

The council is composed of scientists, engineers and research officials of the Army, Navy and Air Force. They don't say how a thing should be invented, but rather the kind of thing that is needed.

Says the council: We need some method of keeping troops' eyes from tearing when they work around Diesel engines, parachutes that can be steered better, and tires that are more blow-out proof under rigorous combat conditions. We need a remote control method of rescuing men drowning at sea, something to keep pilots and space flyers from getting dizzy, something to keep them from getting "seasick" in flight.

We also need a fool-proof way to automatically warn pilots of military and civilian aircraft that they're on a collision course with another plane in time for them to do something about it — or better yet, to find a device that will instantly take over control of both aircraft and guide them away from an air accident.

You get the idea. Nothing is too far out for the council. And, incidentally, they don't put these lists together for light reading. The council has unbounded faith in the ingenuity of American inventors. Their idea is to stimulate the kind of original, inventive thinking that will open the way toward solution of some of the toughest problems now facing the technical minds in government.

It's Colder In French

By John Crosby

PARIS.

I'm an old connoisseur of weather stories. "Blizzards Howl Across Great Plains." There's a headline yo ucan get your teeth into: "Midwest Paralyzed by Arctic Blasts. No Relief In Sight." Nothing like a weather story because it has no politics, no religion, and it strikes at all ages.

I think the first newspaper story I ever read, as a wee tot, was a weather story—for a very simple reason: if it got cold enough in Wisconsin, they closed the schools. This didn't happen often. It had to get damned cold in Wisconsin before they closed the schools. We'd sit in our overcoats, declining Latin verbs in our shrill frozen voices, and believe me there's nothing colder than a Latin verb in an overcoat. Ever since that's been my criterion for cold: until they close the schools it isn't really cold. Consequently when I read here that the schools were closed in Normandy, I knew we had a real winter on our hands.

The French are pretty good at the weather story bit, too, and sometimes, I think it sounds colder in French. "Un vent glacial a souffle hiver sur Paris." Doesn't that sound cold? My favorite French weather word is gele. Everything has gele-ed here. The Rhine has gele-ed. The Danube has gele-ed in Budapest. The Seine has gele-ed. My feet are gele-ed and that takes lots of froideur.

French has some wonderfully cold words. Verglas, for instance, which just sounds colder and more slippery than ice.

Le verglas perturbs the life economic. La vie ralents in Paris because of the froid. The factories are abandonnees, the maisons are inert. It says in the newspapers: "Ce froid glacial constitue une veritable catastrophe."

Somehow weather always sounds much worse in the newspapers than it does out the front window. There's nothing more satisfying than to read about someone else's lousy weather from a good safe distance. Here in Paris we've been reading about how the froideur paralyse the Midwest. At the same time the Times reports: "Temperature fell so low in Switzerland that the hardy monks and trusty dogs of St. Bernard retreated to the valley from their Alpine monastery."

That's a real weather sentence. It's got a famous place name like St. Bernard, a famous animal, humans — and it's far away. A great weather sentence is something like: "Temperature fell so low in the Pyrenees that the wolves are coming out of the forests and attacking the peasants in the villages."

That's got peasants, wolves, hunger — and it's a long way from Chicago. In the Pyrenees they like to read: "Blizzards paralyze Midwest, cutting rail lines and tying up shipping."

When I was in California, the newspapers revelled in headlines like: "Citrus Crop Threatened By Frost In Florida." Distance lends verisimilitude. Somehow weather up close never seems that bad. I've walked through many a city that is "paralyzed" by cold, or "lashed" by the winds of the hurricane, forced or battered by storms, and all the rest of it, and things never seemed all that bad.

I just got back from Switzerland where the weather was terribly picturesque in the newspapers. Avalanches. Record cold. Towns cut off. Villages paralyzed. Well, it was winter, all right. No doubt about that. Snow on the roofs. Cold.

While in Gstaad I read with delicious appreciation about dropping bales of hay to fed the sheep in Britain. I'm sure the British were reading about the threat of avalanches in Switzerland. Other people's weather is more fun to read about. The U. S. Weather Bureau had to stick its big nose in our business and predict severe cold in Europe for the next 30 days. Now why predict stuff like that, U. S. Weather Bureau? Whyn't you mind your own business? Predict some record cold for Colorado or Maine and leave us alone. We got more weather than we know what to do with without having you ship us more.

Me, I like to read about the chutes de neige, the froid toujours rigoureux, the glace bloque les rives, the vent glacial souffle sur les littorals. My God, what a cold language French is!

The other day one of the French papers came out with a headline: "Brrr..." and the headline writer was promptly rebuked by a newspaperman on the Tribune Libre who wrote: "The newspaper people think that in reading 'it's cold' or 'cold discended on France' the public would not have the necessary maturity to think that the cold would have an effect on his physical well-being. On the other hand, 'Brrr...' requires him to shiver, to chatter his teeth. The reader is not supposed to have enough sense to make the relation between a headline and his body."

Sewing On Disjoined Parts Difficult Operation

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Headlines were made recently when a man lost his hand in an accident and surgeons sewed it back into place. This meant connecting all the disjoined blood vessels, nerves, tendons and other structures—a difficult and time consuming operation. Speed is important because, with each passing minute, tissues die, nerve cells degenerate, and clots develop in the arteries, veins, and capillaries.

These news stories are followed by letters from readers describing experiences of their own. A woman from Chicago Heights, Ill., told of her mother whose thumb was almost chopped off when she was a pre-schooler. The physician sewed it back in place. "It left a horrible scar and was a little stiff, but usable."

This is not uncommon but as a rule the tip of the digit is cut and in the case just mentioned, the part is not severed completely. The small piece of connecting skin or tissue may carry enough blood to nourish the part until healing occurs.

I worked in a first aid station when I was a senior medical student. A man came in with his ear dangling by a few shreds and I sewed it back in place. It "took" but my work went for nought because the man was injured fatally four months later when he attempted to even the score.

Mrs. M. M. writes: "Recently you had an article on a new hot water cure for warts. My 11 year old son started the treatment the next day. He had at least 40 warts, large and small, on his hands. Two weeks after he started soaking the hands in hot water each night, we could see a change. He continued the procedure, but just two or three times a week, and his warts have all disappeared."

It is difficult to evaluate any wart treatment because suggestion also enters the picture. It is surprising how often these lesions disappear with a little hocus-pocus. On the other hand, heat alters the gowth of tumors and should affect warts also. The use of ultrasound waves is another wart remedy that was introduced recently.

MEAL SCHEDULES

C. J. writes: How much time should there be between meals, and is the body affected by eating meals too close together?

REPLY

There is no set time. In the animal kingdom, eating when hungry is the rule. Our present schedules are man made and coincide with the hours when we become hungry. We all know individuals who thrive on two meals a day, a few on only one, and others on four or five. It is an individual problem which we fit into our scheme of living.

SCAR TISSUE

M. S. writes: What causes adhesions after surgery?

REPLY

Adhesions represent scar tissue that develops over areas that were irritated or infected. They rarely cause trouble unless an abdominal scar pulls on the intestine, causing a kink or obstruction. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this subject.

EAT WHAT AGREES

B. A. writes: Are there certain foods, such as cabbage and onions, a person cannot eat after having the gall bladder removed?

REPLY

Only if the individual has an idosyncrasy to these foods that is unrelated to the gall bladder condition.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

The staff at an upper Park Avenue hospital recall with relish the day one of the biggest doctors on the staff shook a pampered patient by the arm, looked about at the lavish baskets of fruit and flowers in the room, and announced, "You have now occupied this room for four weeks, though you know there is a long waiting list. So I have just had a definite consultation about your case with Doctor Rodgers, Doctor Lippman, Doctor Shannon, and Doctor Hayes — and we all will give you exactly twenty minutes to get the heck out of that bed!"

David Green, in a Cosmopolitan article on "news slanting," cites the famous series of headlines in a Paris journal reporting the day-to-day progress of Napoleon's escape from his first exile in Elba:

First Day: "The Corsican Monster Has Landed in The Gulf of Juan."

Second Day: "The Cannibal Approaches Grasse."

Third Day: "The Usurper Has Entered Grenoble."

Fourth Day: "Bonaparte Cheered by Lyons Populace."

Fifth Day: "Napoleon Awaited Eagerly in Fontainebleau."

Sixth Day: "His Imperial Majesty Returns in Triumph to Paris."

One of the greatest New Year's Eve parties ever given in New York was hosted by the late editor of Vanity Fair, Frank Crowninshield. Printed invitations read, "Admit Bearer and One Wife."

What the technical "experts," who have never been elected to office, recommend to the Department of Defense or the State Department, to pick two examples, seldom even comes to the attention of the supposedly appropriate Senatorial committees. Yet the expertise becomes the basis for national policy. There is no Senatorial "advice," no "consent," before the civilian recommendations are transformed into the fait accompli of executive decision.

The Goldwater complaints were not only general; they were also specific. Item: no member of the Senate Armed Services Committee was apprised of the decision to scrap Skybolt and to offer the Polaris missile to NATO countries. Item: the most recent disarmament proposal offered at Geneva by the U.S. has never, to the Senator's knowledge, been discussed by the foreign affairs committee of either House. Item: the 87th Congress almost unanimously supported additional appropriations for the B-70 program, but the Department of Defense, relying on its own advisers, has "consistently refused to recognize the will of the people as expressed through the votes of the Congress" in making use of the money.

In the matter of medical care for the aged, said Goldwater, Congress has already spoken its wish on policy by passing the Kerr-Mills bill. But simply because this legislation has failed to please the executive, the "Department of Health, Education and Welfare is deliberately using its powers to stultify the Kerr-Mills procedures." As for Cuba, Senator Goldwater told the air officers that Congress is opposed not just to missiles in Cuba but to the toleration of a Communist base there at all. Yet the President, relying on his own "technicians," appears to be entirely complaisant about missiles in Cuba provided they are of a "defensive" nature.

The upshot of Goldwater's Maxwell Air Base remarks is that he is starting a crusade to vindicate the powers of the U.S. Senate. But he doesn't say how this is to be done, or even that it can be done. In every legislative body of the Western world the difficulty of assembling the necessary expertise to serve as the basis for effective foreign, military and even domestic policy is defeating the best efforts of elected officials. In England it is notorious that pressure groups, when they are interested in affecting policy, seldom bother with old-fashioned lobbying in the House of Commons corridors. Instead, they lobby the appropriate Whitehall bureaucrats. If Senator Goldwater can restore policy-making effectiveness to the U.S. Congress he will prove himself a genius. And, ironically, he will have made it more important to remain a Senator than to become President of the United States.

That Head Refuses To Shrink

Tangling With Atty. Gen. Kennedy Will Be Nothing New To Roy Cohn

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Roy Cohn, former counsel to Sen. Joe McCarthy, has glowered at many a witness across the Senate investigation table but now has to glower at one of the toughest members of the Kennedy administration — namely, Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

The Justice Department is now probing Cohn's tangled tax situation as a result of multiplicity of corporations set up to handle the Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson and Sonny Liston prize fights.

Once before, Cohn almost got into a fight with Bob Kennedy. In their whippersnapper days they were both junior gumshoes on McCarthy's staff—until Kennedy got fed up with McCarthy's cry-wolf tactics and warned him that he was headed for disaster.

Shortly before his departure, Kennedy objected to Roy Cohn's threat to "get" Sen. Harry Jackson, the Washington Democrat who had belittled Cohn's pal David Schine, the young private at Fort Dix whose demand for privileged treatment caused a Senate investigation. Kennedy objected to Cohn's threat against the Senator from Washington.

"Do you want to fight now?" Cohn shouted back.

"Don't warn me," snapped Kennedy. "Don't try it again, Cohn."

New FPC Commissioner

Far Western Senators are already looking for a public power-minded man to replace Commissioner Howard Morgan, who has written a critical letter to Kennedy declining to accept reappointment on the Federal Power Commission. Western Senators want a man who will have the courage to buck the big utilities, and they plan to pressure the White House to make sure a protector of the consumer is selected.

They have been joined by Gov. Pat Brown, Democrat of California, whose state is dependent on natural gas from Texas and also had incerasing water power needs for its expanding industry.

Two men under consideration are:

William Bennett of California, who has battled against El Paso Natural Gas and the power interests and who has just been made public service commissioner for California. Governor Brown would hate to lose Bennett, but on the other hand would like to see a tough, consumer-minded commissioner on the FPC.

Leif Erickson of Montana, who was the youngest justice ever to serve on the Montana Supreme Court and in 1944 defeated the venerable Sen. Burton K. Wheeler in the Democratic Primary, later to be defeated in the final election by Republican Zale Ecton.

Erickson is backed by various Northwest Senators as a 100 per cent protector of the consumer. However, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, who has been voting with the oil interests of late, regards him as a "bit too courageous."

It will be interesting to see what President Kennedy does.

Friend Of Fidel

James Donovan, the New York attorney who negotiated the release of the Cuban Freedom Fighters, had so many talks with Fidel Castro that the two men became rather friendly.

As they neared what looked to be their final agreement, Castro confided to Donovan: "Thank goodness there is one American I can talk to. If we get this finished, I'm going to tell the world that you are one American we could get along with."

"If we ever do conclude it," remarked Donovan. "Please don't tell anybody what you think of me, Fidel. Bacause with friends like you, I don't need enemies."

Fresh Approach To Space

Members of the Senate Space Committee were surprised when they got a telephone call from new space chairman Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, asking whether it would be OK to hold a meeting on last Thursday.

They were surprised because the late chairman Bob Kerr never game them more than an hour or two notice when he called a meeting.

"If you can't be there, give me your proxy," he would notify them.

When they asked what the meeting was about, the reply wouludl be, "I'll tell you when you get there."

Chairman Anderson is adopting a different approach.

Louisiana Tax Czar

Shreveport oilmen who did their best to defeat Russell Long of Louisiana for re-election are singing another tune, now that Russell has become No. 2 man on the powerful Senate Finance Committee. They know he can chop down the 27½ per cent oil depletion loophole if he wants to. So they've been approaching the Senator's close friend, Joe Cawthorn.

"Is Russell going to stand pat on the 27½ per cent depletion?" they asked. "Won't you talk to Russell and see if he needs any campaign contributions?"

"You better not let Russell know how you feel," advised Cawthorn. "He knows all too well who was against him in the last election. And if he knows you're for him now, he might change his mind and cut down on oil depletion."

U.S. On The Brink Of 'War' With Gen. De Gaulle

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

No one has quite admitted it as yet; but the fact remains that the European policy of the Kennedy administration has been brought to a jarring, shuddering halt by Gen. de Gaulle.

The aim was to "wait to do business with Europe." For two years, this has been the strongest of several reasons cited by the Kennedy policy-makers for not doing business with the intransigent de Gaulle. And for two years, the hope has been that this larger, more amiable Europe, with which business could be done, would come into being with Britain's admission to the European Common Market.

The aim has been blocked, the hope has been frustrated, by de Gaulle's brutal veto on Britain's admission. Furthermore, the protests of the other five members of the Common Market have been pallidly ineffectual; and the Germans, long our warmest European friends, have now interrupted their protests to sign the new Franco-German accord.

In these circumstances, at least for the time being, doing business with the European Common Market means doing business with de Daulle. Yet de Gaulle's actions can only be interpreted as sharply hostile to the U. S. His almost openly announced eventual objective is to eliminate American influence from Europe's sacred soil.

The first impulse of the Kennedy administration has been to retaliate in kind. Eyes roll piously heavenwards. Strong denials are instantly and probably sincerely entered, when the question is asked: "Are we now going to war against de Gaulle?" Our policy, it is stated, is always to leave an open chair at the conference table, which the General will be welcome to occupy whenever he wishes to talk with the President.

Yet consider the actions which are being taken, or are now being contemplated. First of all, despite the total disarray produced by de Gaulle's veto against Britain, our able Trade Act negotiator, former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, has already left for Europe to get the European-American trade and tariff talks going.

It is accepted as almost certain that when and if serious talks begin, the French negotiators will do everything in their power to make life harder for Herter. But the intention is to try to surround and checkmate the French, by seeking to organize a pro-American united front of the Italians, Germans, Belgian, Dutch, and Luxembourgers.

Secondly, the multi-lateral deterrent, which the British approved at Nassau, is a fine bright red rag to the Gaullist bull. Knowing this, we have already sought and won the approval of the Germans and the Italians. And we are going to go on pressing forward with the multi-lateral deterrent scheme in talks with other NATO nations, come hell or high water.

Finally, if the going gets too rough, there is talk about asking the Germans, point blank, to choose once and for all between France and the United States. For the Germans, there could be no more agonizing choice. For Gen. de Gaulle, there could be no more infuriating act.

Right there is the central point that must be faced.

The American actions now under way or under contemplation in Europe really add up to going to war against de Gaulle, whatever one may say about open chairs. At any rate, de Gaulle will think that the U. S. has declared war upon him, and that is what mainly matters.

There are two reasons why this is a profoundly serious and dangerous prospect. In the first place, if we seem to be going to war on de Gaulle, he will move on to the next stage. From seeking to limit our influence in Europe, he will proceed to active retaliation. And he can do us very serious damage in this way, by ordering the Bank of France to use its power against the dollar on the world markets, for instance.

There are things of the same sort we can do against de Gaulle —temporarily crippling his nuclear deterrent scheme, for instance, by refusing to supply France with the American tanker aircraft needed to give the French Mirage IV bombers the range they will otherwise lack.

As these examples may suggest, the second reason for worrying about an open political war between de Gaulle and the Kennedy administration is, quite simply, that it will be very difficult to keep within bounds.

Such a contest, if permitted to develop, will be a fight with no holds barred.

Hence the only sensible American objective, in case of war, will be nothing less than breaking up the European Common Market. That is the only truly effective, truly decisive way of isolating de Gaulle, the only sure way of doing business with the rest of Europe without worrying about de Gaulle's strange quirks and grandiose views.

It can be seen, then, why careful stock-taking and honest fact-facing are now urgent. Above all, if we mean to take the actions that de Gaulle will interpret meaning war to the knife, it is vital not to cherish any illusions about where those actions must lead. A wholly new situation confronts the U. S. and some months given to studying it will not be time wasted.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

INVENTIVE THINKING — If you think you have an inventive mind and want to know what to devote your energies to, contact the National Inventor's Council, in the Department of Commerce, in Washington. They've just issued a new bulletin on things that need inventing.

The council is composed of scientists, engineers and research officials of the Army, Navy and Air Force. They don't say how a thing should be invented, but rather the kind of thing that is needed.

Says the council: We need some method of keeping troops' eyes from tearing when they work around Diesel engines, parachutes that can be steered better, and tires that are more blow-out proof under rigorous combat conditions. We need a remote control method of rescuing men drowning at sea, something to keep pilots and space flyers from getting dizzy, something to keep them from getting "seasick" in flight.

We also need a fool-proof way to automatically warn pilots of military and civilian aircraft that they're on a collision course with another plane in time for them to do something about it — or better yet, to find a device that will instantly take over control of both aircraft and guide them away from an air accident.

You get the idea. Nothing is too far out for the council. And, incidentally, they don't put these lists together for light reading. The council has unbounded faith in the ingenuity of American inventors. Their idea is to stimulate the kind of original, inventive thinking that will open the way toward solution of some of the toughest problems now facing the technical minds in government.

It's Colder In French

By John Crosby

PARIS.

I'm an old connoisseur of weather stories. "Blizzards Howl Across Great Plains." There's a headline yo ucan get your teeth into: "Midwest Paralyzed by Arctic Blasts. No Relief In Sight." Nothing like a weather story because it has no politics, no religion, and it strikes at all ages.

I think the first newspaper story I ever read, as a wee tot, was a weather story—for a very simple reason: if it got cold enough in Wisconsin, they closed the schools. This didn't happen often. It had to get damned cold in Wisconsin before they closed the schools. We'd sit in our overcoats, declining Latin verbs in our shrill frozen voices, and believe me there's nothing colder than a Latin verb in an overcoat. Ever since that's been my criterion for cold: until they close the schools it isn't really cold. Consequently when I read here that the schools were closed in Normandy, I knew we had a real winter on our hands.

The French are pretty good at the weather story bit, too, and sometimes, I think it sounds colder in French. "Un vent glacial a souffle hiver sur Paris." Doesn't that sound cold? My favorite French weather word is gele. Everything has gele-ed here. The Rhine has gele-ed. The Danube has gele-ed in Budapest. The Seine has gele-ed. My feet are gele-ed and that takes lots of froideur.

French has some wonderfully cold words. Verglas, for instance, which just sounds colder and more slippery than ice.

Le verglas perturbs the life economic. La vie ralents in Paris because of the froid. The factories are abandonnees, the maisons are inert. It says in the newspapers: "Ce froid glacial constitue une veritable catastrophe."

Somehow weather always sounds much worse in the newspapers than it does out the front window. There's nothing more satisfying than to read about someone else's lousy weather from a good safe distance. Here in Paris we've been reading about how the froideur paralyse the Midwest. At the same time the Times reports: "Temperature fell so low in Switzerland that the hardy monks and trusty dogs of St. Bernard retreated to the valley from their Alpine monastery."

That's a real weather sentence. It's got a famous place name like St. Bernard, a famous animal, humans — and it's far away. A great weather sentence is something like: "Temperature fell so low in the Pyrenees that the wolves are coming out of the forests and attacking the peasants in the villages."

That's got peasants, wolves, hunger — and it's a long way from Chicago. In the Pyrenees they like to read: "Blizzards paralyze Midwest, cutting rail lines and tying up shipping."

When I was in California, the newspapers revelled in headlines like: "Citrus Crop Threatened By Frost In Florida." Distance lends verisimilitude. Somehow weather up close never seems that bad. I've walked through many a city that is "paralyzed" by cold, or "lashed" by the winds of the hurricane, forced or battered by storms, and all the rest of it, and things never seemed all that bad.

I just got back from Switzerland where the weather was terribly picturesque in the newspapers. Avalanches. Record cold. Towns cut off. Villages paralyzed. Well, it was winter, all right. No doubt about that. Snow on the roofs. Cold.

While in Gstaad I read with delicious appreciation about dropping bales of hay to fed the sheep in Britain. I'm sure the British were reading about the threat of avalanches in Switzerland. Other people's weather is more fun to read about. The U. S. Weather Bureau had to stick its big nose in our business and predict severe cold in Europe for the next 30 days. Now why predict stuff like that, U. S. Weather Bureau? Whyn't you mind your own business? Predict some record cold for Colorado or Maine and leave us alone. We got more weather than we know what to do with without having you ship us more.

Me, I like to read about the chutes de neige, the froid toujours rigoureux, the glace bloque les rives, the vent glacial souffle sur les littorals. My God, what a cold language French is!

The other day one of the French papers came out with a headline: "Brrr..." and the headline writer was promptly rebuked by a newspaperman on the Tribune Libre who wrote: "The newspaper people think that in reading 'it's cold' or 'cold discended on France' the public would not have the necessary maturity to think that the cold would have an effect on his physical well-being. On the other hand, 'Brrr...' requires him to shiver, to chatter his teeth. The reader is not supposed to have enough sense to make the relation between a headline and his body."

Sewing On Disjoined Parts Difficult Operation

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Headlines were made recently when a man lost his hand in an accident and surgeons sewed it back into place. This meant connecting all the disjoined blood vessels, nerves, tendons and other structures—a difficult and time consuming operation. Speed is important because, with each passing minute, tissues die, nerve cells degenerate, and clots develop in the arteries, veins, and capillaries.

These news stories are followed by letters from readers describing experiences of their own. A woman from Chicago Heights, Ill., told of her mother whose thumb was almost chopped off when she was a pre-schooler. The physician sewed it back in place. "It left a horrible scar and was a little stiff, but usable."

This is not uncommon but as a rule the tip of the digit is cut and in the case just mentioned, the part is not severed completely. The small piece of connecting skin or tissue may carry enough blood to nourish the part until healing occurs.

I worked in a first aid station when I was a senior medical student. A man came in with his ear dangling by a few shreds and I sewed it back in place. It "took" but my work went for nought because the man was injured fatally four months later when he attempted to even the score.

Mrs. M. M. writes: "Recently you had an article on a new hot water cure for warts. My 11 year old son started the treatment the next day. He had at least 40 warts, large and small, on his hands. Two weeks after he started soaking the hands in hot water each night, we could see a change. He continued the procedure, but just two or three times a week, and his warts have all disappeared."

It is difficult to evaluate any wart treatment because suggestion also enters the picture. It is surprising how often these lesions disappear with a little hocus-pocus. On the other hand, heat alters the gowth of tumors and should affect warts also. The use of ultrasound waves is another wart remedy that was introduced recently.

MEAL SCHEDULES

C. J. writes: How much time should there be between meals, and is the body affected by eating meals too close together?

REPLY

There is no set time. In the animal kingdom, eating when hungry is the rule. Our present schedules are man made and coincide with the hours when we become hungry. We all know individuals who thrive on two meals a day, a few on only one, and others on four or five. It is an individual problem which we fit into our scheme of living.

SCAR TISSUE

M. S. writes: What causes adhesions after surgery?

REPLY

Adhesions represent scar tissue that develops over areas that were irritated or infected. They rarely cause trouble unless an abdominal scar pulls on the intestine, causing a kink or obstruction. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this subject.

EAT WHAT AGREES

B. A. writes: Are there certain foods, such as cabbage and onions, a person cannot eat after having the gall bladder removed?

REPLY

Only if the individual has an idosyncrasy to these foods that is unrelated to the gall bladder condition.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

The staff at an upper Park Avenue hospital recall with relish the day one of the biggest doctors on the staff shook a pampered patient by the arm, looked about at the lavish baskets of fruit and flowers in the room, and announced, "You have now occupied this room for four weeks, though you know there is a long waiting list. So I have just had a definite consultation about your case with Doctor Rodgers, Doctor Lippman, Doctor Shannon, and Doctor Hayes — and we all will give you exactly twenty minutes to get the heck out of that bed!"

David Green, in a Cosmopolitan article on "news slanting," cites the famous series of headlines in a Paris journal reporting the day-to-day progress of Napoleon's escape from his first exile in Elba:

First Day: "The Corsican Monster Has Landed in The Gulf of Juan."

Second Day: "The Cannibal Approaches Grasse."

Third Day: "The Usurper Has Entered Grenoble."

Fourth Day: "Bonaparte Cheered by Lyons Populace."

Fifth Day: "Napoleon Awaited Eagerly in Fontainebleau."

Sixth Day: "His Imperial Majesty Returns in Triumph to Paris."

One of the greatest New Year's Eve parties ever given in New York was hosted by the late editor of Vanity Fair, Frank Crowninshield. Printed invitations read, "Admit Bearer and One Wife."

30 Homeless In Blaze At Rowlesburg

Damages Estimated At $100,000

ROWLESBURG, W. Va.—About 30 persons were left homeless and property damage was tentatively estimated at $100,000 when fire destroyed a two-story brick building covering nearly half a city block of this Preston County community.

Firemen from Rowlesburg, Bruceton Mills and Kingwood fought the fire from about midnight Thursday until nearly 7 a. m. yesterday before bringing it under control.

The structure housed a number of businesses, including furniture and sporting goods stores and a state liquor store. The building also contained warehouse facilities in the rear and upstairs in addition to five apartments.

The adjoining home of Si Farris, owner of the structure, also was destroyed. An observer said the heat was so intense that it cracked windows in buildings across the street and melted the tops of gasoline pumps nearby.

Authorities said the fire was believed to have started from an overheated flue in one of the apartments.

W. Va. Alpine Event Begins

DAVIS, W. Va. (UPI) — The 1963 West Virginia Alpine Festival got underway Friday at nearby Thomas and although there is plenty of snow, plenty of wind caused a switch in the ski-slopes for the Governor's Centennial Cup races.

Officials said heavy winds blew the snow off Weiss Knob so all skiing events were switched to Cabin Mountain where the slopes were pronounced in excellent shape.

The weekend of activity features the Cup races and the Centennial Trophy for ice-skaters. The ice-skating event will be held at Mallow's Lake near here.

The State Centennial Commission called the festival one of its biggest events during the state's 100th birthday celebration.

A Gluehwein Party, buffet dinner and Alpine Ball were scheduled Saturday night. Trophies will be presented and the 1963 Centennial Alpine Queen will be selected at the Ball in the Davis gym.

Officials said three other ski events were on tap. They included two slalom races and a cross-country race, beginning and ending at Blackwater Lodge.

Citizens Group Gives Support On School Issue

THOMAS — A committee of six representing citizens of Thomas met in Charleston Tuesday in connection with the closing of Mountaineer Senior High School building January 14 after a structural engineer inspected it and found it unsafe for school purposes, according to Dale Duncan, committee chairman.

Meeting with the citizens' group and its attorney were the State Superintendent of Schools, the State Fire Marshal and the engineer whom the Tucker County Board of Education had previously employed.

The Tucker County superintendent of schools (Stelman Harper) had been invited to be present but did not appear, he said.

Mr. Duncan said the engineer (W. C. Haworth, Charleston) stated, in the presence of all, that shoring up one wall from the basement to the roof would make the building safe until more permanent repairs could be made in seasonable weather.

The state fire marshal, he reported, stated that primary fire hazards could be remedied in a short time and if the Board of Education would write a "letter of intention" saying the other fire hazards would be eliminated in the near future, he would permit the building to be used again.

The state superintendent of schools, Mr. Duncan reported, agreed that the building could be operated under those conditions.

He said the Tucker County Board of Education has indicated it would make no such statement of intention and is moving the necessary school equipment from Thomas to the Mountaineer junior high school building in Davis with vigor in order to open high school classes by Wednesday, January 30.

The civic committee, Mr. Duncan said, is attempting to block the closing of the school building, which they feel the Board of Education will try to make permanent condition.

He said the building was closed January 14 and that elementary school children are using quarters in Davis. High school classes have not been resumed, he said. The Citizens Committee claims to represent all adults in Thomas. Business is being conducted by a 15-member executive committee headed by Mr. Duncan.

30 Homeless In Blaze At Rowlesburg

Damages Estimated At $100,000

ROWLESBURG, W. Va.—About 30 persons were left homeless and property damage was tentatively estimated at $100,000 when fire destroyed a two-story brick building covering nearly half a city block of this Preston County community.

Firemen from Rowlesburg, Bruceton Mills and Kingwood fought the fire from about midnight Thursday until nearly 7 a. m. yesterday before bringing it under control.

The structure housed a number of businesses, including furniture and sporting goods stores and a state liquor store. The building also contained warehouse facilities in the rear and upstairs in addition to five apartments.

The adjoining home of Si Farris, owner of the structure, also was destroyed. An observer said the heat was so intense that it cracked windows in buildings across the street and melted the tops of gasoline pumps nearby.

Authorities said the fire was believed to have started from an overheated flue in one of the apartments.

W. Va. Alpine Event Begins

DAVIS, W. Va. (UPI) — The 1963 West Virginia Alpine Festival got underway Friday at nearby Thomas and although there is plenty of snow, plenty of wind caused a switch in the ski-slopes for the Governor's Centennial Cup races.

The weekend of activity features the Cup races and the Centennial Trophy for ice-skaters. The ice-skating event will be held at Mallow's Lake near here.

The State Centennial Commission called the festival one of its biggest events during the state's 100th birthday celebration.

Fort Hill Cagers Sweep Season Series With Martinsburg, 70-54

Billy Dean Gets Back In Action, Grabs 26 Points

Sentinels End Losing Streak At Three Games

By TED TROXELL

Billy Dean returned to the Fort Hill lineup last night after a week-long hospital stay, and sparked the Sentinels to a 70-54 home court victory over Martinsburg which brought their three-game losing streak to an end.

The sharp-shooting senior forward had been confined to Memorial Hospital with a bronchial condition, and a slight concussion which he suffered in the Beall game two weeks ago. Fort Hill lost that battle, 67-64, and then dropped WMI contests to Mt. Savage and Allegany with Dean out of action.

Dean scored 26 points last night in leading the Sentinels to their ninth victory in a dozen games, and a sweep of the season series with the Bulldogs, who bowed by a 59-38 score earlier in the campaign at Martinsburg.

17 In First Half

Fort Hill held a mere three-point 31-28 edge at halftime, and it was due largely to Dean's outside bombing. Hitting on his jump shot with consistency, Dean scored 17 points in the first half, 13 of them in the second period.

He grabbed a rebound and converted it into two points as the third quarter got under way, and the Sentinels were off and winging on a second half splurge which saw them outscore the visitors, 39-26.

Martinsburg led only once in the contest. That was in the opening seconds when Jim Shields fired in a long-range jumper which Dean quickly countered.

Three straight field goals by the Bulldogs' Stewart, Dick Johnson and Jim Burris tied the score at 11-all as the first quarter ended, but Pat Wilson hit on a layup after the second period tipoff and Fort Hill was never headed after that.

DelaGrange Gets Hot

Vince DelaGrange, who was held scoreless in the first two periods, was the big man for the Sentinels' potent second half attack. The 6-foot-3 pivotman tossed in eight field goals and matched Dean's feat of tallying 17 points in a half.

Dean finished with 11 field goals in 21 attempts, and converted four of seven shots from the foul line to account for his game-high output. DelaGrange was 8-22 from the floor. Butch Hare collected ten points in the second half and wound up with 13.

The Sentinels, who had much the better of it under the boards, fired away at will from the floor and before the night was over took 82 shots. They hit on 30 of them for a .366 percentage.

Martinsburg matched the Sentinels in field goals in the first half with 13, but could manage only nine after intermission. The Bulldogs showed a 22-58 shooting mark of .377.

Burris led the Bulldogs in scoring with 17 points, while Johnson collected 10. The loss dropped Martinsburg into the .500 class at 6-6.

Elimination Bout Set To Determine Loi's Successor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Chairman Emile Bruneau of the World Boxing Association's World Championship Committee announced Friday that an "elimination" would be ordered to determine a successor to the retired junior welterweight champion, Duilio Loi of Italy.

Loi retired Thursday night at Milan, Italy, because "the old spark is gone."

Bruneau of New Orleans said the four men who probably will participate in the elimination are ex-champion Eddie Perkins of Chicago, Battling Torres of Mexico, Jose Stable of Cuba and Ben Medina of Fresno, Calif.

Before that quartet could be named definitely, Bruneau pointed out, he must check with Tony Petronella of Providence, R.I., chairman of the WBA's rating committee to make certain they would be the high four contenders after two other high 140-pounders had deserted and dropped down to the lightweight (135-pound) division.

The two who are dropping down, Bruneau said, are West Indian Bunny Grant and Louis Molina of San Jose, Calif., who are gunning for a shot at the lightweight crown now.

Kasko was the starting shortstop in 1961 when the Reds won the National League pennant.

County Basketball League To Begin Play On Monday

Five Teams Ready To Operate, Sixth Expected To Enter

The Allegany County Basketball League will get off to a long-delayed start Monday, with five teams definitely in the fold and another one likely to enter before the 1963 schedule is drawn up.

Three teams from the Tri-Towns will participate this year, and will be joined by the Sports Shoppe and Wilson Hardware of Cumberland, and possibly a Frostburg entry.

The Tri-Towns teams entered the Papermakers, Boal's Funeral Home and the Devon Club. The latter organization will be made up primarily of the same players who last year copped the league championship under the banner of the Westernport American Legion.

Don Moran will coach the Devon Club, the Papermakers will be headed by Joe Thompson, and former Bruce High standout Bill Wright is in charge of the Boal's aggregation.

Bob Pence, who has been associated with the league since its beginning, is coach of the Wilson Hardware team which last year finished second, and John Eversole will be handling the reins of the Sports Shoppe quint which wound up in third place last season.

Chances are good that a team made up primarily of former Beall High School and Frostburg State Teachers College players will be entered by Bill Henaghan.

Games will be played on Monday and Thursday nights. Tenatative plans call for the Monday night contests to be staged at Fort Hill High School, and the Thursday night contests to be played at the Beall High gymnasium in Frostburg.

Park Director Would Cancel Eastern Open

Hook Declares PGA Has Not Cooperated

BALTIMORE (AP) — The director of forests and parks for Baltimore, Gus Hook, said Friday he would recommend against holding the Eastern Open Professional Golf Tournament here this year.

Hook was directed last week by the city's Park Board to make one last ditch effort to change the date for the tournament, which the Professional Golfers Association scheduled in Mid August.

But Hook said Friday: "As far as I'm concerned, the tournament is dead."

The parks director was critical of the PGA. "I place the blame square on the shoulders of the PGA," he said. "To think they have given us so little cooperation and consideration after 13 years on the tour is disgusting."

Eastern Open officials had claimed that the mid August dates granted by the PGA for the Eastern Open were poor because the cost of getting a golf course in shape for a tournament that time of year is prohibitive and it is difficult to draw a crowd since many people take vacations in August.

Tournament officials also claimed the big name pros would skip the Eastern Open because of the dates proposed for it.

"These are the worst possible dates on the summer tour," said Hook. "Evidently, our history with the tour does not mean a thing.

"Also, speaking for myself, I've become fed up with the constant gripes of the touring pros. It didn't start out this way. It seemed like the boys on tour were pleased with the tournament at the outset. But the last few years have been sickening."

Hook said he would recommend to the Park Board that the 13th annual Eastern Open be canceled.

Senators Hire Bucky Harris

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Senators got at least a psychological boost Friday when they hired Bucky Harris in their struggle to escape 10th place in the American League.

The 66-year-old Harris won two pennants and a world's championship as "boy wonder" manager and second baseman with the old Senators in 1924-25.

He never has been associated with a last place team in more than 40 years as player, manager and business executive.

General Manager George Selkirk said Harris would be one of his top aides for player evaluation and special assignments.

"We need another man with exceptional ability to appraise talent," Selkirk said, adding that Harris would work with chief scout Jack Sheehan.

Harris held a similar job the past two seasons with the Chicago White Sox. Specifically, his new job will involve scouting major league teams in Florida during spring training and working out of Washington during the season evaluating players on the major league level.

Pitcairn Island in the Pacific, first inhabited by the mutineers of the Bounty, is only two square miles in area.

Fort Hill Cagers Sweep Season Series With Martinsburg, 70-54

Billy Dean Gets Back In Action, Grabs 26 Points

By TED TROXELL

Billy Dean returned to the Fort Hill lineup last night after a week-long hospital stay, and sparked the Sentinels to a 70-54 home court victory over Martinsburg which brought their three-game losing streak to an end.

The sharp-shooting senior forward had been confined to Memorial Hospital with a bronchial condition, and a slight concussion which he suffered in the Beall game two weeks ago. Fort Hill lost that battle, 67-64, and then dropped WMI contests to Mt. Savage and Allegany with Dean out of action.

Dean scored 26 points last night in leading the Sentinels to their ninth victory in a dozen games, and a sweep of the season series with the Bulldogs, who bowed by a 59-38 score earlier in the campaign at Martinsburg.

17 In First Half

Fort Hill held a mere three-point 31-28 edge at halftime, and it was due largely to Dean's outside bombing. Hitting on his jump shot with consistency, Dean scored 17 points in the first half, 13 of them in the second period.

He grabbed a rebound and converted it into two points as the third quarter got under way, and the Sentinels were off and winging on a second half splurge which saw them outscore the visitors, 39-26.

Martinsburg led only once in the contest. That was in the opening seconds when Jim Shields fired in a long-range jumper which Dean quickly countered.

Three straight field goals by the Bulldogs' Stewart, Dick Johnson and Jim Burris tied the score at 11-all as the first quarter ended, but Pat Wilson hit on a layup after the second period tipoff and Fort Hill was never headed after that.

DelaGrange Gets Hot

Vince DelaGrange, who was held scoreless in the first two periods, was the big man for the Sentinels' potent second half attack. The 6-foot-3 pivotman tossed in eight field goals and matched Dean's feat of tallying 17 points in a half.

Dean finished with 11 field goals in 21 attempts, and converted four of seven shots from the foul line to account for his game-high output. DelaGrange was 8-22 from the floor. Butch Hare collected ten points in the second half and wound up with 13.

The Sentinels, who had much the better of it under the boards, fired away at will from the floor and before the night was over took 82 shots. They hit on 30 of them for a .366 percentage.

Martinsburg matched the Sentinels in field goals in the first half with 13, but could manage only nine after intermission. The Bulldogs showed a 22-58 shooting mark of .377.

Burris led the Bulldogs in scoring with 17 points, while Johnson collected 10. The loss dropped Martinsburg into the .500 class at 6-6.

Elimination Bout Set To Determine Loi's Successor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Chairman Emile Bruneau of the World Boxing Association's World Championship Committee announced Friday that an "elimination" would be ordered to determine a successor to the retired junior welterweight champion, Duilio Loi of Italy.

Loi retired Thursday night at Milan, Italy, because "the old spark is gone."

Bruneau of New Orleans said the four men who probably will participate in the elimination are ex-champion Eddie Perkins of Chicago, Battling Torres of Mexico, Jose Stable of Cuba and Ben Medina of Fresno, Calif.

Before that quartet could be named definitely, Bruneau pointed out, he must check with Tony Petronella of Providence, R.I., chairman of the WBA's rating committee to make certain they would be the high four contenders after two other high 140-pounders had deserted and dropped down to the lightweight (135-pound) division.

The two who are dropping down, Bruneau said, are West Indian Bunny Grant and Louis Molina of San Jose, Calif., who are gunning for a shot at the lightweight crown now.

Reds Sign Kasko

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Eddie Kasko signed his 1963 baseball contract Friday with the Cincinnati Reds.

Kasko was the starting shortstop in 1961 when the Reds won the National League pennant.

County Basketball League To Begin Play On Monday

Five Teams Ready To Operate, Sixth Expected To Enter

The Allegany County Basketball League will get off to a long-delayed start Monday, with five teams definitely in the fold and another one likely to enter before the 1963 schedule is drawn up.

Three teams from the Tri-Towns will participate this year, and will be joined by the Sports Shoppe and Wilson Hardware of Cumberland, and possibly a Frostburg entry.

The Tri-Towns teams entered the Papermakers, Boal's Funeral Home and the Devon Club. The latter organization will be made up primarily of the same players who last year copped the league championship under the banner of the Westernport American Legion.

Don Moran will coach the Devon Club, the Papermakers will be headed by Joe Thompson, and former Bruce High standout Bill Wright is in charge of the Boal's aggregation.

Bob Pence, who has been associated with the league since its beginning, is coach of the Wilson Hardware team which last year finished second, and John Eversole will be handling the reins of the Sports Shoppe quint which wound up in third place last season.

Chances are good that a team made up primarily of former Beall High School and Frostburg State Teachers College players will be entered by Bill Henaghan.

Games will be played on Monday and Thursday nights. Tenatative plans call for the Monday night contests to be staged at Fort Hill High School, and the Thursday night contests to be played at the Beall High gymnasium in Frostburg.

Park Director Would Cancel Eastern Open

Hook Declares PGA Has Not Cooperated

BALTIMORE (AP) — The director of forests and parks for Baltimore, Gus Hook, said Friday he would recommend against holding the Eastern Open Professional Golf Tournament here this year.

Hook was directed last week by the city's Park Board to make one last ditch effort to change the date for the tournament, which the Professional Golfers Association scheduled in Mid August.

But Hook said Friday: "As far as I'm concerned, the tournament is dead."

The parks director was critical of the PGA. "I place the blame square on the shoulders of the PGA," he said. "To think they have given us so little cooperation and consideration after 13 years on the tour is disgusting."

Eastern Open officials had claimed that the mid August dates granted by the PGA for the Eastern Open were poor because the cost of getting a golf course in shape for a tournament that time of year is prohibitive and it is difficult to draw a crowd since many people take vacations in August.

Tournament officials also claimed the big name pros would skip the Eastern Open because of the dates proposed for it.

"These are the worst possible dates on the summer tour," said Hook. "Evidently, our history with the tour does not mean a thing.

"Also, speaking for myself, I've become fed up with the constant gripes of the touring pros. It didn't start out this way. It seemed like the boys on tour were pleased with the tournament at the outset. But the last few years have been sickening."

Hook said he would recommend to the Park Board that the 13th annual Eastern Open be canceled.

Bob Fichtner collected 19 points to lead the Hyndman offensive. Steve Stouffer contributed 17, Charles Bush 14, Gary Harold 13 and Don Logue 11.

The Indians' one-two scoring punch of Ralph Wilson and Bobby Robertson accounted for 40 points. Wilson grabbed 10 field goals and added two free throws to finish with 22 points, while Robertson came through with 18. Terry Crabtree contributed 13 to the winning attack.

Steve Nixon was Oldtown's top bomber with 19 points, Scott Dixon canned an even dozen. The loss was Oldtown's sixth in ten games.

Hammer Scores Winning Fielder

A layup by John Hammer with 30 seconds left last night gave Franklin's Panthers a come-from-behind 40-39 win over the Petersburg Vikings in a PVC game played at Petersburg.

The Panthers scored their sixth win in a row and tenth in 12 starts this season. Their last defeat had come at the hands of Petersburg, 67-43, in a holiday tournament at the Vikings' cage quarters.

Franklin trailed almost all the way before Hammer came through with his game-winning goal. The Panthers trailed at the end of each period and were behind 30-35 as the final frame got started.

A pair of field goals by Jim Brodengeyer accounted for the Vikings' only points in the disastrous fourth period.

Richard Hartley led the winners in scoring with nine points, and Hammer and Jimmy Edwards had eight apiece. Johnny Koontz led Petersburg (10-4) with 11, and Brodengeyer tossed in nine.

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics, leading from tapoff to final buzzer, defeated ice cold St. Louis 113-98 Friday night for their second National Basketball Association win over the Hawks in two days.

The back court tandem of Bob Cousy and Sam Jones led the Boston attack with 20 and 21 points, respectively, while second line guards John Havlicek and K. C. Jones combined for numerous steals to keep the pressure on St. Louis.

Senators Hire Bucky Harris

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Senators got at least a psychological boost Friday when they hired Bucky Harris in their struggle to escape 10th place in the American League.

The 66-year-old Harris won two pennants and a world's championship as "boy wonder" manager and second baseman with the old Senators in 1924-25.

He never has been associated with a last place team in more than 40 years as player, manager and business executive.

General Manager George Selkirk said Harris would be one of his top aides for player evaluation and special assignments.

"We need another man with exceptional ability to appraise talent," Selkirk said, adding that Harris would work with chief scout Jack Sheehan.

Harris held a similar job the past two seasons with the Chicago White Sox. Specifically, his new job will involve scouting major league teams in Florida during spring training and working out of Washington during the season evaluating players on the major league level.

Pitcairn Island in the Pacific, first inhabited by the mutineers of the Bounty, is only two square miles in area.

Duke Blue Devils And West Virginia To Tangle At Durham Today

Bill Maphis To Start For Mountaineers

Replaces Catlett, 14th Game Of Series Will Start At 2:15

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI) —Coach George King said Friday that hot-shooting sophomore Bill Maphis would start in place of defensive specialist Gale Catlett when West Virginia meets Duke here Saturday.

Maphis will be getting his second starting assignment of the season when the two nationally ranked powers meet here in a game scheduled to get underway at 2:15 p.m.

The Romney native started against Kentucky in the finals of the Kentucky Invitational but didn't make a field goal all night.

Starred In Tech Game

However, his play in the last several games, especially in the 86-83 win over Virginia Tech, earned him his second starting shot. Maphis scored 18 points and pulled down 9 rebounds in that game.

King said Maphis is still bothered by an old knee injury but he "doesn't worry about it like he used to.

"There are a few things he still can't do because of the knee but he's a natural rebounder and a real good shot," King said.

Duke will sport a pair of the best forwards in the nation in All-American Art Heyman and Jeff Mullins.

King said Heyman and Mullins are the "best pair" of front men "we'll ever meet in one game." Heyman is averaging 25.7 points a game and Mullins almost 20 points.

Mike Wolfe will get the defensive job of attempting to put the damper on Heyman while Maphis will take Mullins.

Thorn Averaging 22.7

West Virginia's back-court duo of Rod Thorn and Jim McCormick lead the Mountaineer attack as Thorn is hitting for 22.7 points a contest and McCormick 15.3.

However, Mike Wolfe has come on strong and is hitting at a 12.3 point per game clip while center Tom Lowry is averaging 11.1.

West Virginia has beaten Duke only three times in 13 games, by 101-63 in the 1958-59 season, in 1952 by 95-74 when Dick Groat played for the Blue Devils and 87-82 in the 1957 Birmingham Classic.

Keyser, 12-0, Plays Sentinels Here Tonight, Allegany To Host LaSalle In 84th Of Series

Hagerstown Visits Trojans; Potomac State At Altoona

Keyser High School's undefeated Golden Tornado blows into town to do battle with Fort Hill's Sentinels and Allegany High School's Campers entertain LaSalle's Explorers in an intra-city game tonight.

Coach "Eck" Miers' quint comes here with a 12-0 record and is one of the two undefeated teams in the tri-state area this season, the other being Paw Paw which also has 12 scalps dangling from its belt.

Fort Hill will be playing its second game in as many nights, having met Martinsburg last night and was 7-3 prior to that contest.

Keyser and Fort Hill meet only once this season and in their only game with Allegany the Mineral countians whipped the Campers, 74-67. Allegany beat Fort Hill on the Sentinels' court, 58-53.

Clash In 84th Game

The Allegany-LaSalle game at Campobello will be the 84th of their series in which the Campers have won 50 and LaSalle 33. LaSalle, however, has won nine of the last 12 games in this series and made sweeps in 1962, 1960 and 1958. Allegany's last double victory was in the 1956 series. Last season's LaSalle won by scores of 67-50 and 57-53 in overtime.

LaSalle is the defending city champion, having posted a 4-0 record last season, but is having an off year and will be the underdog tonight. Coach George Geatz's team is 4-6 to date while the Campers have copped 8 out of 12 games.

Allegany leads the city championship race with 1-0 by virtue of its victory over Fort Hill. The Sentinels are 1-1, having beaten LaSalle, 74-45 and lost to the Campers while LaSalle is 0-1.

In the third high school game in the area tonight, the West Virginia School for the Deaf will play host to the Maryland School for the Deaf (Frederick) at Romney.

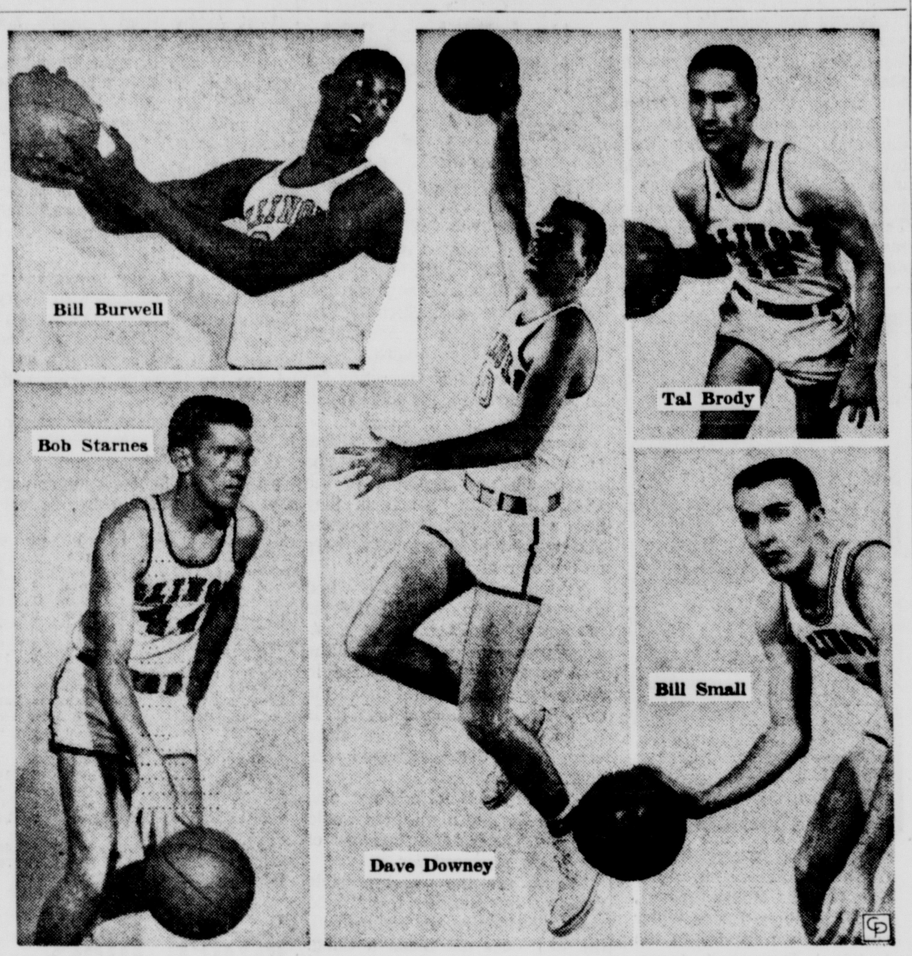
Today at 2 p. m., Allegany Community College will entertain Hagerstown Junior College in a Tri-State Junior College Conference game on the Frederick Street court.

The Trojans (1-11) lost the opener to Coach Irv Easterday's Nighthawks from the Hub City 88-63 and have dropped eleven games in a row.

Catamounts At Altoona

Potomac State College's Catamounts, idle since January 19, invade Pennsylvania tonight to play Altoona Campus in the final game of their season series. Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's cagers (8-3) opened the current campaign with a 103-64 decision over the Blair countians.

Coach Carl Hartman's Shepherd College Rams journey to Montgomery, W. Va., tonight to play West Virginia Tech in a state conference contest.



TACKLE BEARCATS AT CHICAGO — With a record of 12-1, the University of Illinois, top ranked team in the Big Ten, and ranked No. 3 nationally, meets the Cincinnati Bearcats, the nation's No. 1 quint, tonight in the second game of a doubleheader at Chicago Stadium. Cincinnati has a 14-0 record and a 32-game winning streak extending back to January 1962. Topping the Illinois cast, shown above, are forward Dave Downey and center Bill Burwell. The team is coached by Harry Combes, who has produced three Big Ten champs in his 15 years at the helm. Chicago Loyola, ranked No. 2 nationally, plays Santa Clara in the first game of the twin bill which is expected to attract 18,000 spectators.

Nation's Top Quints Meet At Chicago

Cincy And Illinois In Feature Battle

CHICAGO (AP)—The most brilliant basketball fireworks of the collegiate season will explode in the jam-packed Chicago Stadium Saturday night as the nation's top three teams are displayed before 18,000 fans.

The big attraction of the double feature is No. 1 ranked Cincinnati (14-0), regarded as a Missouri Valley Conference title shoo-in, vs No. 3 rated Illinois (12-1), heavily favored to dethrone Ohio State in the Big Ten.

The No. 2 team in the current Associated Press national poll, unbeaten Chicago Loyola (17-0), tangles in the curtain raiser with Santa Clara, which has a modest 9-4 over-all mark, but leads the West Coast Athletic Conference at 3-0.

The program is the greatest college cage fare here since the bygone days when the Illinois Whiz Kids, George Mikan-led De Paul and Bob Cousy-fired Holy Cross cavorted before packed houses in the Stadium.

Pittsburgh Signs Rookie Infielders

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates signed rookie infielders Gene Alley and Lenny Merullo to 1963 contracts Friday.

Alley, 21-year-old shortstop from Richmond, Va., batted .281 in 88 games for Asheville, N.C., of the Carolina League.

Merullo, 20, of Reading, Mass., is the son of former Chicago Cubs shortstop Lenny Merullo. A second baseman, young Merullo batted .267 last year in 100 games for Batavia, N.Y., of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Jack Nicklaus Is Eliminated In Frisco Open

Cupit's 137 Leads Rodgers By Stroke

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U. S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus was eliminated from the first tournament since he turned pro as Texan Jacky Cupit grabbed the midway lead in the $50,000 San Francisco Open Golf Tournament Friday with a 36-hole score of 137.

The 21-year-old Nicklaus, bothered by an ailing left hip, carded a second round 73 for a 149 total—not low enough to stay in the field as it was cut to the low scoring 75 pros and 10 amateurs. The two-time National Amateur champion had been in the money in the 28 straight tournaments he'd played since becoming a pro in Nov. 1961.

Cupit Has 70 Round

Cupit, 24-year-old youngest brother of a golfing family and co-leader with Art Wall in the opening round, took undisputed hold on first place with a 1-under-par 70 over the Harding Park course.

Cupit dropped birdie putts of 16 feet at the fifth hole, 9 feet at the 15th and 18 at the 16th, but three-putted the ninth and missed the green at the 11th.

That left him just one stroke ahead of chunky Phil Rodgers, who also had a 70 for a 138 total.

Bunched at 139 were Jack Burke, Wall, who had a 72 for his second round, Charlie Sifford, Bob Rosburg, Billy Casper and Miller Barber.

Burke and Rosburg shot second round 69's, Casper and Barber 70, and Sifford 71.

Palmer Shoots 142

Nicklaus was the only one of golf's big three to miss the cutoff as Arnold Palmer shot a 69 for 142 and Gary Player stayed in with a 73 and 147 total.

Schoeppner Risks Unbeaten Record

DORTMOND, Germany (UPI)—Former European light-heavyweight boxing champion Erich Schoeppner of Germany risks his unbeaten record when he goes against Von Clay of Philadelphia, Pa., Saturday night.

Schoeppner has fought 38 times as a pro and has yet to suffer defeat. He was stripped of his European crown by the European Boxing Union for failure to defend when ordered, but has a chance to win it back later this year from Italy's Guilio Rinaldi with whom he has been officially matched.

Clay comes in as a substitute for Eddie Cotton of Seattle, Wash., who injured his left hand in a fight with Mauro Mina at Lima, Peru last week.

Angels Sign Pair

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A pair of shortstops — Jim Fregosi and Joe Koppe — have signed their 1963 contracts with the Los Angeles Angels, General Manager Fred Haney announced Friday.

Uelses Heads Field In Boston A.A. Meet

BOSTON (UPI)—The first appearance of former pole vault king John Uelses since his amateur suspension was lifted tops a heavy field for the 74th annual Boston Athletic Association track meet Saturday night.

Uelses, now a collegian studying at La Salle College in Philadelphia, broke vaulting's 16-foot barrier while in the Marines last year. Using a controversial fibreglass pole, Uelses vaulted 16 feet, ¼ inch at the Millrose Games in New York and 24 hours later leaped a then world record of 16 feet, ¾ inch at the BAAA meet.

The record later fell to University of Colorado graduate student Don Meyers at 16 feet, 1¼ inches while the current world mark, established last week, is 16 feet 2½ inches by Finland's Pentti Nikula.

Mrs. Roy Campanella Is Taken By Death

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (UPI) — Mrs. Ruth Campanella, estranged wife of crippled former baseball star Roy Campanella, died suddenly Friday in her home here.

Police said Mrs. Campanella was talking on the telephone when she was fatally stricken, apparently with a heart attack.

Mrs. Campanella, 40, had been separated from her husband, former star catcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers who was partly paralyzed as the result of an auto crash in 1958.

Clay, Jones Sign For Bout In New York

Scrap At Garden Set For March 13

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight contenders Cassius Clay of Louisville, Ky., and Doug Jones of New York have been signed for a 10-round non-televised fight at Madison Square Garden, Wednesday, March 13, matchmaker Teddy Brenner announced Friday night.

"The winner of this fight between the two outstanding young contenders will definitely be in line for a shot at the heavyweight title," Brenner emphasized.

Without disclosing terms for the March match, Brenner said manager William Faversham, Jr., of Louisville had signed the March contract for Clay, and manager Alex Koskowitz of New York had signed for Jones.

"There is a possibility that this great fight, although not televised to homes, may be sent throughout the country on closed-circuit television to theaters," Brenner added.

In their latest fights, 21-year-old Clay — ranked third among heavyweight contenders by the World Boxing Association — knocked out big Charlie Powell of San Diego, Calif., Thursday night in the third round just as he had predicted, before a record indoor Pittsburgh crowd of 11,238.

And 25-year-old Jones — rated fifth among contenders — scored a major upset on Dec. 15 by knocking out challenger Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., in the seventh round of their nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden.

That was Jones' 21st victory in 25 professional bouts, which included 12 knockouts, three defeats and one draw. He never was stopped.

Jones weighed 185 pounds that December night. Thursday night Clay scaled 204 as he scored his 17th straight professional victory and his 14th knockout.

Duke Blue Devils And West Virginia To Tangle At Durham Today

Replaces Catlett, 14th Game Of Series Will Start At 2:15

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI) —Coach George King said Friday that hot-shooting sophomore Bill Maphis would start in place of defensive specialist Gale Catlett when West Virginia meets Duke here Saturday.

Maphis will be getting his second starting assignment of the season when the two nationally ranked powers meet here in a game scheduled to get underway at 2:15 p.m.

The Romney native started against Kentucky in the finals of the Kentucky Invitational but didn't make a field goal all night.

Starred In Tech Game

However, his play in the last several games, especially in the 86-83 win over Virginia Tech, earned him his second starting shot. Maphis scored 18 points and pulled down 9 rebounds in that game.

King said Maphis is still bothered by an old knee injury but he "doesn't worry about it like he used to.

"There are a few things he still can't do because of the knee but he's a natural rebounder and a real good shot," King said.

Duke will sport a pair of the best forwards in the nation in All-American Art Heyman and Jeff Mullins.

King said Heyman and Mullins are the "best pair" of front men "we'll ever meet in one game." Heyman is averaging 25.7 points a game and Mullins almost 20 points.

Mike Wolfe will get the defensive job of attempting to put the damper on Heyman while Maphis will take Mullins.

Thorn Averaging 22.7

West Virginia's back-court duo of Rod Thorn and Jim McCormick lead the Mountaineer attack as Thorn is hitting for 22.7 points a contest and McCormick 15.3.

However, Mike Wolfe has come on strong and is hitting at a 12.3 point per game clip while center Tom Lowry is averaging 11.1.

West Virginia has beaten Duke only three times in 13 games, by 104-63 in the 1958-59 season, in 1962 by 95-74 when Dick Groat played for the Blue Devils and 87-82 in the 1957 Birmingham Classic.

Keyser, 12-0, Plays Sentinels Here Tonight, Allegany To Host LaSalle In 84th Of Series

Hagerstown Visits Trojans; Potomac State At Altoona

Keyser High School's undefeated Golden Tornado blows into town to do battle with Fort Hill's Sentinels and Allegany High School's Campers entertain LaSalle's Explorers in an intra-city game tonight.

Coach "Eck" Miers' quint comes here with a 12-0 record and is one of the two undefeated teams in the tri-state area this season, the other being Paw Paw which also has 12 scalps dangling from its belt.

Fort Hill will be playing its second game in as many nights, having met Martinsburg last night and was 7-3 prior to that contest.

Keyser and Fort Hill meet only once this season and in their only game with Allegany the Mineral countians whipped the Campers, 74-67. Allegany beat Fort Hill on the Sentinels' court, 58-53.

Clash In 84th Game

The Allegany-LaSalle game at Campobello will be the 84th of their series in which the Campers have won 50 and LaSalle 33. LaSalle, however, has won nine of the last 12 games in this series and made sweeps in 1962, 1960 and 1958. Allegany's last double victory was in the 1956 series. Last season's LaSalle won by scores of 67-50 and 57-53 in overtime.

LaSalle is the defending city champion, having posted a 4-0 record last season, but is having an off year and will be the underdog tonight. Coach George Geatz's team is 4-6 to date while the Campers have copped 8 out of 12 games.

Allegany leads the city championship race with 1-0 by virtue of its victory over Fort Hill. The Sentinels are 1-1, having beaten LaSalle, 74-45 and lost to the Campers while LaSalle is 0-1.

In the third high school game in the area tonight, the West Virginia School for the Deaf will play host to the Maryland School for the Deaf (Frederick) at Romney.

Today at 2 p. m., Allegany Community College will entertain Hagerstown Junior College in a Tri-State Junior College Conference game on the Frederick Street court.

The Trojans (1-11) lost the opener to Coach Irv Easterday's Nighthawks from the Hub City 88-63 and have dropped eleven games in a row.

Catamounts At Altoona

Potomac State College's Catamounts, idle since January 19, invade Pennsylvania tonight to play Altoona Campus in the final game of their season series. Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's cagers (8-3) opened the current campaign with a 103-64 decision over the Blair countians.

Coach Carl Hartman's Shepherd College Rams journey to Montgomery, W. Va., tonight to play West Virginia Tech in a state conference contest.

The team is coached by Harry Combes, who has produced three Big Ten champs in his 15 years at the helm. Chicago Loyola, ranked No. 2 nationally, plays Santa Clara in the first game of the twin bill which is expected to attract 18,000 spectators.

Nation's Top Quints Meet At Chicago

Cincy And Illinois In Feature Battle

CHICAGO (AP)—The most brilliant basketball fireworks of the collegiate season will explode in the jam-packed Chicago Stadium Saturday night as the nation's top three teams are displayed before 18,000 fans.

The big attraction of the double feature is No. 1 ranked Cincinnati (14-0), regarded as a Missouri Valley Conference title shoo-in, vs No. 3 rated Illinois (12-1), heavily favored to dethrone Ohio State in the Big Ten.

The No. 2 team in the current Associated Press national poll, unbeaten Chicago Loyola (17-0), tangles in the curtain raiser with Santa Clara, which has a modest 9-4 over-all mark, but leads the West Coast Athletic Conference at 3-0.

The program is the greatest college cage fare here since the bygone days when the Illinois Whiz Kids, George Mikan-led De Paul and Bob Cousy-fired Holy Cross cavorted before packed houses in the Stadium.

Jack Nicklaus Is Eliminated In Frisco Open

Cupit's 137 Leads Rodgers By Stroke

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U. S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus was eliminated from the first tournament since he turned pro as Texan Jacky Cupit grabbed the midway lead in the $50,000 San Francisco Open Golf Tournament Friday with a 36-hole score of 137.

The 21-year-old Nicklaus, bothered by an ailing left hip, carded a second round 73 for a 149 total—not low enough to stay in the field as it was cut to the low scoring 75 pros and 10 amateurs. The two-time National Amateur champion had been in the money in the 28 straight tournaments he'd played since becoming a pro in Nov. 1961.

Cupit Has 70 Round

Cupit, 24-year-old youngest brother of a golfing family and co-leader with Art Wall in the opening round, took undisputed hold on first place with a 1-under-par 70 over the Harding Park course.

Cupit dropped birdie putts of 16 feet at the fifth hole, 9 feet at the 15th and 18 at the 16th, but three-putted the ninth and missed the green at the 11th.

That left him just one stroke ahead of chunky Phil Rodgers, who also had a 70 for a 138 total.

Bunched at 139 were Jack Burke, Wall, who had a 72 for his second round, Charlie Sifford, Bob Rosburg, Billy Casper and Miller Barber.

Burke and Rosburg shot second round 69's, Casper and Barber 70, and Sifford 71.

Palmer Shoots 142

Nicklaus was the only one of golf's big three to miss the cutoff as Arnold Palmer shot a 69 for 142 and Gary Player stayed in with a 73 and 147 total.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates signed rookie infielders Gene Alley and Lenny Merullo to 1963 contracts Friday.

Alley, 21-year-old shortstop from Richmond, Va., batted .281 in 88 games for Asheville, N.C., of the Carolina League.

Merullo, 20, of Reading, Mass., is the son of former Chicago Cubs shortstop Lenny Merullo. A second baseman, young Merullo batted .267 last year in 100 games for Batavia, N.Y., of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

The signings brought to 26 the number of Pirates now under contract.

Uelses Heads Field In Boston A.A. Meet

BOSTON (UPI)—The first appearance of former pole vault king John Uelses since his amateur suspension was lifted tops a heavy field for the 74th annual Boston Athletic Association track meet Saturday night.

Uelses, now a collegian studying at La Salle College in Philadelphia, broke vaulting's 16-foot barrier while in the Marines last year. Using a controversial fibreglass pole, Uelses vaulted 16 feet, ¼ inch at the Millrose Games in New York and 24 hours later leaped a then world record of 16 feet, ¾ inch at the BAAA meet.

The record later fell to University of Colorado graduate student Don Meyers at 16 feet, 1¼ inches while the current world mark, established last week, is 16 feet 2½ inches by Finland's Pentti Nikula.

Schoeppner Risks Unbeaten Record

DORTMOND, Germany (UPI)—Former European light-heavyweight boxing champion Erich Schoeppner of Germany risks his unbeaten record when he goes against Von Clay of Philadelphia, Pa., Saturday night.

Schoeppner has fought 38 times as a pro and has yet to suffer defeat. He was stripped of his European crown by the European Boxing Union for failure to defend when ordered, but has a chance to win it back later this year from Italy's Guilio Rinaldi with whom he has been officially matched.

Clay comes in as a substitute for Eddie Cotton of Seattle, Wash., who injured his left hand in a fight with Mauro Mina at Lima, Peru last week.

Angels Sign Pair

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A pair of shortstops — Jim Fregosi and Joe Koppe — have signed their 1963 contracts with the Los Angeles Angels, General Manager Fred Haney announced Friday.

Clay, Jones Sign For Bout In New York

Scrap At Garden Set For March 13

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight contenders Cassius Clay of Louisville, Ky., and Doug Jones of New York have been signed for a 10-round non-televised fight at Madison Square Garden, Wednesday, March 13, matchmaker Teddy Brenner announced Friday night.

"The winner of this fight between the two outstanding young contenders will definitely be in line for a shot at the heavyweight title," Brenner emphasized.

Without disclosing terms for the March match, Brenner said manager William Faversham, Jr., of Louisville had signed the March contract for Clay, and manager Alex Koskowitz of New York had signed for Jones.

"There is a possibility that this great fight, although not televised to homes, may be sent throughout the country on closed-circuit television to theaters," Brenner added.

In their latest fights, 21-year-old Clay — ranked third among heavyweight contenders by the World Boxing Association — knocked out big Charlie Powell of San Diego, Calif., Thursday night in the third round just as he had predicted, before a record indoor Pittsburgh crowd of 11,238.

And 25-year-old Jones — rated fifth among contenders — scored a major upset on Dec. 15 by knocking out challenger Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., in the seventh round of their nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden.

That was Jones' 21st victory in 25 professional bouts, which included 12 knockouts, three defeats and one draw. He never was stopped.

Jones weighed 185 pounds that December night. Thursday night Clay scaled 204 as he scored his 17th straight professional victory and his 14th knockout.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Law office of Edwin M. Horchler, 116 South Liberty Street, Cumberland, Maryland.

Nellie F. Miller vs. Chester G. Miller, No. 26,212 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of these proceedings is to procure the passage of a decree divorcing A VINCULO MATRIMONII the Complainant, Nellie F. Miller, from the Defendant, Chester G. Miller; the Bill of Complaint states: That the couple were married in Moorefield, West Virginia, on the 7th day of February, 1944, and lived together as man and wife until on or about the 26th day of May, 1959; that one child was born of said marriage, namely Thomas Gordon Miller on the 22nd day of January, 1947, which said child has been previously committed by Order of this Court to Rosewood School for Retarded Chuldren; that the Party complained against has abandoned the Party complaining, that such abandonment has continued for more than 18 months, is deliberate and final and is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation.

That when these proceedings were instituted both Parties hereto were residents of the State of Maryland and had been residents for several years prior to the time of desertion, and that the Complainant is still a resident of Allegany County, Maryland, but that when a summons was issued against the Defendant, he could not be found for service thereof upon him and a second summons was thereupon issued the same being returned non est as the record will show that both summonses were returned non est.

It is, thereupon, this 24th day of January, 1963, ORDERED, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, that a copy of this Order be inserted in one of the newspapers published in Allegany County, Maryland, once each week for four (4) successive weeks before the 25th day of February, 1963; giving notification to the Defendant of the object and substance of these proceedings to the Defendant, and warning him to be in this Court either in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 28th day of March, 1963, to answer and show cause, if any he may have, why the relief herein-prayed ought not be granted.

Seabees Note Advancement

Two promotions of enlisted men and a change in status of two officers have been announced by Cdr. Gerard P. Calhoun, commanding officer of Naval Reserve Construction Battalion 5-7 (Seabees).

Advanced to construction apprentices from construction recruits were David H. Adams, and William F. See, both of this city and both seniors at Fort Hill High School. They were advanced following successful examination.

Lcdr. William C. Hall (CEC, UNSR), an engineer at Amcelle Plant of Celanese Fibers Company, has been named the new executive officer of the division as an outgrowth of his recent promotion from lieutenant. Lcdr. Hall is a graduate of the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Lt. Robert F. Varney. (CEC, USNR) of Landover Hills, Md., has been named the new administrative officer.

Cdr. Calhoun also announced that Lcdr. Hall has been designated commanding officer of Company C. when Mobile Construction Battalion 23, of which the local division is a component, conducts active duty training in early March at Camp LeJeune, N.C.

The division has been joined by three new men, Cdr. Calhoun said. They are James H. Atkinson, electrician's mate third class, who is cross-rating to construction mechanic automotive, James F. Combs, a senior at Fort Hill High School, and Roy F. Miller, of Somerset, a junior at Somerset High School, both recruits.

College Choir Appears Here Today

Westminster College's Concert Choir will sing at the First Presbyterian Church, today at 7:30 p.m. The choir is making its 11th annual tour under the direction of Clarence J. Martin, chairman of the department of music at Westminster.

Raymond H. Ocock is serving as accompanist for the group.

The repertoire of the 37-voice choir includes Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols," C. G. Wagner's "Blessing, Glory, and Wisdom," Vaughan Williams' "The Hundredth Psalm," and other selections by William Schuman, Aaron Copeland, J. S. Bach, and William Billings.

Famed Broadway Songwriter Dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Otto A. Harbach, 89, famed Broadway songsmith who wrote love lyrics that grandmother sang and granddaughter is still singing—such as the sentimental "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes"—died Thursday.

Harbach, called the dean of Broadway librettists, wrote the lyrics of operettas like "The Firefly," "No, No, Nanette," "Desert Song," and "Roberta," and some of the most famous torch songs that have survived three generations.

From his pen flowed the unforgetable words to more than 1,000 songs — including the haunting "Indian Love Call" and the happy "Gianinna Mia."

Other songs included "The Night Was Made For Love," "I Won't Dance," "One Alone," "Riff Song," "Sympathy," "Who" and "Cuddle Up a Little Closer, Lovey Mine."

Board Takes Action On Furlough Plan

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday took action in connection with the announced plans of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory to reduce the work force.

Letters will be sent to Sens. J. Glenn Beall and Daniel B. Brewster, Gov. J. Millard Tawes and Reps. Charles McC. Mathias and Carlton Sickles urging them to continue efforts to alleviate the situation if possible.

The commissioners also announced that plans for the new Pinto bridge across the Potomac River into the rocket research facility will be pressed.

Last week the county board passed a motion to notify the State Roads Commission of Maryland to proceed with preliminary plans for the proposed bridge.

The cost of the preliminary plans are not to exceed $12,000. Commissioner Robert Little Ebert, who made the motion for the preliminary plans procedure, said that they are needed as a basis for discussion with the State Roads Commission of West Virginia on that state's participation in the proposed bridge.

Arizona's plant life ranges from the sub-tropical organ pipe cactus of the southwestern desert to the snowbank of the San Francisco Mountains at 12,000 feet.

County Receives Retreat Budget

Raymond Messmer, superintendent of Sylvan Retreat, submitted a proposed budget to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday for the operation of the mental institution for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

The total budget for the upcoming year is $186,243.12, up from the $171,558.04 in the current budget.

Largest item in the budget is for salaries. The current salary budget is $124,595.04 and the proposed new budget item is $138,418.12.

Current operating costs are $46,963 while the new budget item for operating the facility is $47,825.

The budget for the Retreat does not include the new addition to kitchen facilities and an elevator. The board has asked bids on these improvements, which will be opened early next month.

Voted Against Declaration

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Sen. Thomas Worthington, whose home has been preserved and opened to the public in Chillicothe, Ohio, was the only Ohio congressman to vote against the declaration of the War of 1812.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — A rush call to Diana Dors took her back to London where she is wanted to play Richard Burton's girlfriend in "Very Important Persons." Although London is her home, Diana and her husband Dickie Dawson, and their baby, have baby, have been living in Hollywood. She's been successful here on television, and he's been doing nightclub work.

There's a funny switch in the plot of "Very Important Persons." Elizabeth Taylor and Burton are married, but there's a lot of extra-marital goings on — Liz with Louis Jourdan, and Burton with Diana.

One of the funniest indications of how popular Fred MacMurray is happened at Bing Crosby's golf tourney. When it looked like golfer Fred had hit his ball into a difficult lie, a fan gave it a gentle kick into a better position!

I'm sure Walt Disney would have done the same thing because of the sensational business "Son of Flubber" is doing at the box-office. This comedy is topping their previous smash, "Absent-Minded Professor" by 10 per cent. Does Walt have another movie on tap for Fred? You just bet your life. The script nearing completion is "The Son-In-Law of Charlie MacCready" — and you can bet it is funny.

The young wife of Alan Ladd, Jr., was badly burned when she was cooking eggs Benedict for Laddie's breakfast. Six stitches were necessary in her face. I asked Sue Ladd about her daughter-in-law's accident.

"It seems everything happens at once," said Sue. "The automobile crash I was in, then Alan's gun accident, and now Patty."

I reminded her of the old saying that everything happens in "threes."

"Oh, we're not superstiitous," she said. "In fact I was in TWO automobile accidents. But we're sure everything is going to be all right now."

When blonde, green-eyed Lena von Martens was a leading photographer's and fashion model in Paris, warmed by the admiration of admirers at Maxime's and the Ritz, I bet she never thought being a movie actress could be as hard as it is. Just signed for the second femme lead in "The Fall of the Roman Empire" (Sophia Loren is top), Lena has been working with the Samuel Bronston company in the Sierra Guadarrama Mountains, 40 miles from Madrid, where the wintry battle scenes are being shot on the snow covered slopes of the mile high vacation spot.

As frozen as she is, Lena is free of one worry: She doesn't have to brush up on her English because she speaks it fluently along with Finnish, Swedish, German and Spanish.

Doesn't seem possible that wonderfully funny comedienne Imogene Coca has never made a movie. Although she's queened it on TV and in nightclubs for years, Imogene swears she's never had a single movie offer.

"And I had to get this one through pull," she laughs. "My husband King Donovan is directing Jayne Mansfield and Marie McDonald in 'Promise Her Anything' for Tommy Noonan. So I just turned the heat on King and made him promise me at least a cameo bit — and he's come through." With comediennes very much in vogue again, Martha Raye and Carol Burnett to name two, we bet this isn't Imogene's last movie fling.

After a switch to a downbeat movie in "Main Attraction," Pat Boone's decided he'd rather do his clean, refreshing Boone-type of entertainment. So he's bought "Pebble Beach," an original story by Dick Overstake, for his own company.

The story is about a professional golfer who travels with tournaments all over the country. His wife, a golf widow, is a little fed up with being just that, and gets into one of the tournaments. Pat will offer Bing Crosby a cameo role, and Bing just might be interested in this kind of story. Golf is so popular that Pat should have no trouble in casting his picture.

450 Cuban Refugees To Get Vacation In United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The avy said Thursday that a small number of the 450 Cuban refugee-workers held at its Guantanamo Ray base are being permitted to take U.S. vacations.

In a carefully worded statement, issued in response to an inquiry, the Navy said the refugee-workers "are expected to return to Guantanamo."

Until now these Cubans have been prisoners-at-large on the base, unable to return to Cuba for political reasons and refused Navy permission to go elsewhere.

Some 450 of the refugees have been at Guantanamo for more than two years. A few are recent arrivals who escaped Cuba by crossing the fence surrounding this base or by swimming in through the harbor entrance. To remain,they must work.

Graduates Are Working

CHICAGO (AP)—The U.S. Department of Labor reports through Commerce Clearing House that the national unemployment rate as of October 1961 among high school graduates was 16 per cent, among high school dropouts 30 per cent.

Honestly, Now

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP) — A proposal by a Beckley newspaperman to change the name of this state to "Lincoln" has received the overwhelming support of one small mountain community.

Its name: Abraham.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Law office of Edwin M. Horchler, 116 South Liberty Street, Cumberland, Maryland.

Nellie F. Miller vs. Chester G. Miller, No. 26,212 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of these proceedings is to procure the passage of a decree divorcing A VINCULO MATRIMONII the Complainant, Nellie F. Miller, from the Defendant, Chester G. Miller; the Bill of Complaint states: That the couple were married in Moorefield, West Virginia, on the 7th day of February, 1944, and lived together as man and wife until on or about the 26th day of May, 1959; that one child was born of said marriage, namely Thomas Gordon Miller on the 22nd day of January, 1947, which said child has been previously committed by Order of this Court to Rosewood School for Retarded Children; that the Party complained against has abandoned the Party complaining, that such abandonment has continued for more than 18 months, is deliberate and final and is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation.

That when these proceedings were instituted both Parties hereto were residents of the State of Maryland and had been residents for several years prior to the time of desertion, and that the Complainant is still a resident of Allegany County, Maryland, but that when a summons was issued against the Defendant, he could not be found for service thereof upon him and a second summons was thereupon issued the same being returned non est as the record will show that both summonses were returned non est.

It is, thereupon, this 24th day of January, 1963, ORDERED, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, that a copy of this Order be inserted in one of the newspapers published in Allegany County, Maryland, once each week for four (4) successive weeks before the 25th day of February, 1963; giving notification to the Defendant of the object and substance of these proceedings to the Defendant, and warning him to be in this Court either in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 28th day of March, 1963, to answer and show cause, if any he may have, why the relief herein-prayed ought not be granted.

Seabees Note Advancement

Two promotions of enlisted men and a change in status of two officers have been announced by Cdr. Gerard P. Calhoun, commanding officer of Naval Reserve Construction Battalion 5-7 (Seabees).

Advanced to construction apprentices from construction recruits were David H. Adams, and William F. See, both of this city and both seniors at Fort Hill High School. They were advanced following successful examination.

Lcdr. William C. Hall (CEC, UNSR), an engineer at Amcelle Plant of Celanese Fibers Company, has been named the new executive officer of the division as an outgrowth of his recent promotion from lieutenant. Lcdr. Hall is a graduate of the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Lt. Robert F. Varney, (CEC, USNR) of Landover Hills, Md., has been named the new administrative officer.

Cdr. Calhoun also announced that Lcdr. Hall has been designated commanding officer of Company C. when Mobile Construction Battalion 23, of which the local division is a component, conducts active duty training in early March at Camp LeJeune, N.C.

The division has been joined by three new men, Cdr. Calhoun said. They are James H. Atkinson, electrician's mate third class, who is cross-rating to construction mechanic automotive, James F. Combs, a senior at Fort Hill High School, and Roy F. Miller, of Somerset, a junior at Somerset High School, both recruits.

College Choir Appears Here Today

Westminster College's Concert Choir will sing at the First Presbyterian Church, today at 7:30 p.m. The choir is making its 11th annual tour under the direction of Clarence J. Martin, chairman of the department of music at Westminster.

Raymond H. Ocock is serving as accompanist for the group.

The repertoire of the 37-voice choir includes Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols," C. G. Wagner's "Blessing, Glory, and Wisdom," Vaughan Williams' "The Hundredth Psalm," and other selections by William Schuman, Aaron Copeland, J. S. Bach, and William Billings.

Famed Broadway Songwriter Dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Otto A. Harbach, 89, famed Broadway songsmith who wrote love lyrics that grandmother sang and granddaughter is still singing—such as the sentimental "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes"—died Thursday.

Harbach, called the dean of Broadway librettists, wrote the lyrics of operettas like "The Firefly," "No, No, Nanette," "Desert Song," and "Roberta," and some of the most famous torch songs that have survived three generations.

From his pen flowed the unforgetable words to more than 1,000 songs — including the haunting "Indian Love Call" and the happy "Gianinna Mia."

Other songs included "The Night Was Made For Love," "I Won't Dance," "One Alone," "Riff Song," "Sympathy," "Who" and "Cuddle Up a Little Closer, Lovey Mine."

Board Takes Action On Furlough Plan

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday took action in connection with the announced plans of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory to reduce the work force.

Letters will be sent to Sens. J. Glenn Beall and Daniel B. Brewster, Gov. J. Millard Tawes and Reps. Charles McC. Mathias and Carlton Sickles urging them to continue efforts to alleviate the situation if possible.

The commissioners also announced that plans for the new Pinto bridge across the Potomac River into the rocket research facility will be pressed.

Last week the county board passed a motion to notify the State Roads Commission of Maryland to proceed with preliminary plans for the proposed bridge.

The cost of the preliminary plans are not to exceed $12,000, Commissioner Robert Little Ebert, who made the motion for the preliminary plans procedure, said that they are needed as a basis for discussion with the State Roads Commission of West Virginia on that state's participation in the proposed bridge.

Arizona's plant life ranges from the sub-tropical organ pipe cactus of the southwestern desert to the snowbank of the San Francisco Mountains at 12,000 feet.

County Receives Retreat Budget

Raymond Messmer, superintendent of Sylvan Retreat, submitted a proposed budget to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday for the operation of the mental institution for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

The total budget for the upcoming year is $186,243.12, up from the $171,558.04 in the current budget.

Largest item in the budget is for salaries. The current salary budget is $124,595.04 and the proposed new budget item is $138,418.12.

Current operating costs are $46,963 while the new budget item for operating the facility is $47,825.

The budget for the Retreat does not include the new addition to kitchen facilities and an elevator. The board has asked bids on these improvements, which will be opened early next month.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — A rush call to Diana Dors took her back to London where she is wanted to play Richard Burton's girlfriend in "Very Important Persons." Although London is her home, Diana and her husband Dickie Dawson, and their baby, have been living in Hollywood. She's been successful here on television, and he's been doing nightclub work.

There's a funny switch in the plot of "Very Important Persons." Elizabeth Taylor and Burton are married, but there's a lot of extra-marital goings on — Liz with Louis Jourdan, and Burton with Diana.

One of the funniest indications of how popular Fred MacMurray is happened at Bing Crosby's golf tourney. When it looked like golfer Fred had hit his ball into a difficult lie, a fan gave it a gentle kick into a better position!

I'm sure Walt Disney would have done the same thing because of the sensational business "Son of Flubber" is doing at the box-office. This comedy is topping their previous smash, "Absent-Minded Professor" by 10 per cent. Does Walt have another movie on tap for Fred? You just bet your life. The script nearing completion is "The Son-In-Law of Charlie MacCready" — and you can bet it is funny.

The young wife of Alan Ladd, Jr., was badly burned when she was cooking eggs Benedict for Laddie's breakfast. Six stitches were necessary in her face. I asked Sue Ladd about her daughter-in-law's accident.

"It seems everything happens at once," said Sue. "The automobile crash I was in, then Alan's gun accident, and now Patty."

I reminded her of the old saying that everything happens in "threes."

"Oh, we're not superstiitous," she said. "In fact I was in TWO automobile accidents. But we're sure everything is going to be all right now."

When blonde, green-eyed Lena von Martens was a leading photographer's and fashion model in Paris, warmed by the admiration of admirers at Maxime's and the Ritz, I bet she never thought being a movie actress could be as hard as it is. Just signed for the second femme lead in "The Fall of the Roman Empire" (Sophia Loren is top), Lena has been working with the Samuel Bronston company in the Sierra Guadarrama Mountains, 40 miles from Madrid, where the wintry battle scenes are being shot on the snow covered slopes of the mile high vacation spot.

As frozen as she is, Lena is free of one worry: She doesn't have to brush up on her English because she speaks it fluently along with Finnish, Swedish, German and Spanish.

Doesn't seem possible that wonderfully funny comedienne Imogene Coca has never made a movie. Although she's queened it on TV and in nightclubs for years, Imogene swears she's never had a single movie offer.

"And I had to get this one through pull," she laughs. "My husband King Donovan is directing Jayne Mansfield and Marie McDonald in 'Promise Her Anything' for Tommy Noonan. So I just turned the heat on King and made him promise me at least a cameo bit — and he's come through." With comediennes very much in vogue again, Martha Raye and Carol Burnett to name two, we bet this isn't Imogene's last movie fling.

After a switch to a downbeat movie in "Main Attraction," Pat Boone's decided he'd rather do his clean, refreshing Boone-type of entertainment. So he's bought "Pebble Beach," an original story by Dick Overstake, for his own company.

The story is about a professional golfer who travels with tournaments all over the country. His wife, a golf widow, is a little fed up with being just that, and gets into one of the tournaments. Pat will offer Bing Crosby a cameo role, and Bing just might be interested in this kind of story. Golf is so popular that Pat should have no trouble in casting his picture.

450 Cuban Refugees To Get Vacation In United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The avy said Thursday that a small number of the 450 Cuban refugee-workers held at its Guantanamo Ray base are being permitted to take U.S. vacations.

In a carefully worded statement, issued in response to an inquiry, the Navy said the refugee-workers "are expected to return to Guantanamo."

Until now these Cubans have been prisoners-at-large on the base, unable to return to Cuba for political reasons and refused Navy permission to go elsewhere.

Some 450 of the refugees have been at Guantanamo for more than two years. A few are recent arrivals who escaped Cuba by crossing the fence surrounding this base or by swimming in through the harbor entrance. To remain, they must work.

Graduates Are Working

CHICAGO (AP)—The U.S. Department of Labor reports through Commerce Clearing House that the national unemployment rate as of October 1961 among high school graduates was 16 per cent, among high school dropouts 30 per cent.

Honestly, Now

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP) — A proposal by a Beckley newspaperman to change the name of this state to "Lincoln" has received the overwhelming support of one small mountain community.

Its name: Abraham.

River Group To Meet Here Early In May

Will Discuss Water Quality

The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin voted yesterday afternoon to hold its spring meeting in Cumberland early in May.

This action was taken at the conclusion of the ICPRB winter meeting held at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, Va.

Carl J. Johnson, executive director of the commission, said the theme of the spring meeting will be "Water Quality Control in the North Branch of the Potomac." Conservationists from Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania will cooperate in the program, he said.

Mr. Johnson had said in his talk opening the winter meeting Thursday morning that despite significant progress in recent years the North Branch does not yet have a good quality water.

Review Is Needed

"We need to review this progress, present status and plans and intentions of the municipalities, counties, states and industries involved and seek to establish some quality objectives and time schedules," the director said in his talk.

Closing the meeting yesterday was a talk by G. Louis Heller, director of the National Capital Regional Council. Mr. Heller, a native of Altoona, Pa., and a graduate of Penn State University, recently came to Washington from Illinois, where he had a similar planning position for three counties of that state.

He said his group has recommended some modifications in the Wolman-Geyer report on sewage and sewerage development in the capital area, but that the Wolman Geyer recommendations do not basically conflict with long-range plans for development of the Washington metropolitan area.

Changes Proposed

The Wolman-Geyer report was made before any long-range urban expansion program had been adopted, and Drs. Wolman and Geyer based their report on assumptions that expansion of the urban area would continue in an irregular, sprawling pattern.

But in 1962 there came the "Year 2000" plan which envisioned a more orderly expansion of the capital's suburbs in the form of corridors radiating from the central hub.

The star-shaped pattern thus formed would have high-rise apartments and other "high-density" developments along the corridors, with intervening spaces of low-density development.

To reconcile the Wolman- Geyer recommendations with the long-range report, the planners have proposed that some sewer lines be made limited-access facilities. This was done because the availability of a sewer line naturally attracts building. The planners' reasoning is that if the areas between the corridors are to be kept open, then access to any sewer lines in those areas must be limited.

VA Loans Now Are Available

The Veterans Administration has announced it now has funds available for veterans who wish to purchase homes under the direct loan program.

Thomas G. Kilduff, assistant state service oficer for the Maryland State Veterans Commission here, said the VA has notified him of the available funds and said there is no waiting list at the present time.

Veterans interested in obtaining loans should contact Mr. Kilduff at his office on the first floor of the County Building on Union Street for the necessary forms and other information.

Mr. Kilduff said there is usually a waiting list for the loans and now is a good time to make application for a home loan. The maximum direct loan for veterans is $15,000.

Unprotected Water Meters Are Frozen

Thirty water meters have frozen and burst during this week's cold wave, Water Commissioner G. Ray Light reported yesterday.

In most cases, the meters froze for lack of proper protection from the weather. In several cases, they were located in unheated areas or in cellars near an open window.

Mr. Light said a warning is given the first time this occurs and that customers are billed for the cost of repairs after that.

CUF Agency Aids Persons With Polio

Endeavoring to meet the needs of medically and financially indigent residents of Allegany and Mineral counties no matter what their illness, the Health Research and Services Foundation of County United Fund yesterday reported that $3,233 has been spent for three Allegany County residents afflicted with polio during the past two years.

This sum was expended through the direct services committee of HR and SF, which makes direct payments of cash to cover medical bills incurred by those financially unable to meet the expenses themselves.

Dr. Donald B. Grove, president of HR and SF, in the annual statistical report of this CUF agency, said a total of $38,128.77 was expended in 1962 with an overhead expense of only $140.44.

"Every other penny," he said, "was used for direct services, tumor clinics at Memorial Hospital, the Poison Control Center at Sacred Heart Hospital, Allegany County Commission on Alcoholism, equipment grants to area hospitals, and the polio programs and chest clinic programs in Mineral County.

Success In Mineral County

In regard to Mineral County, where not one polio case has been reported since HR and SF has been supporting the polio vaccine program there, a total of $632.31 was spent last year to help the Mineral County Health Department carry on its anti-polio program.

HR and SF has spent $4,800 for polio inoculations for Mineral County residents since it began its financial help in 1960.

Recently, an official of the Mineral County Health Department wrote to CUF: "The polio vaccine that CUF has bought for Mineral County's use has been invaluable. We are very pleased to announce that we have not had a new polio case reported for over three years. Thank you for the wonderful help."

In addition, HR and SF set up chest clinics in Mineral County. A total of $1,000 was spent for this project over a two-year span, 1961 and 1962.

This, also, was cited by Mineral County health officials:

"The chest clinic program set up through County United Fund has been a great help in diagnosing many problem cases of tuberculosis, cancer, etc."

J. Kenna Burke, a member of Potomac State College faculty, vice president of HR and SF and chairman of the Mineral County Health Department, said such programs in Mineral County would be impossible without CUF.

"New Lease On Life"

"Some residents," he said, "have been given a new lease on life with referrals by chest clinics to Dr. James Walker, of Charleston, outstanding chest and heart specialist who conducts clinics here four times a year."

Speaking as health department chairman, Mr. Burke said, "The value of CUF canot be overestimated. Without it, the polio and chest programs would be impossible!"

"HR and SF," Dr. Grove said, "as an agency of CUF, operates on funds from its anual budget allocation, just as do the 29 other participating agencies. Money for these budgets," he added, "come from CUF's once-a-year fund campaign."

Services Planned By Local Church

Evangelist John Gavazzoni will be the special speaker and musician next week at Davis Memorial Methodist Church, Oldtown Road.

Services will be held Monday through Friday at 7:30 each evening. The young evangelist is a native of Johnstown, Pa. and has preached extensively throughout the East.

Special music to be presented will include the Youth for Christ Ensemble, which will sing Tuesday and Friday nights. A local chalk artist, Ken Korns, will draw on Wednesday night. Rev. Richard A. Budden is pastor of the church.

Teamsters To Ask 43-Cent Boost In Regional Pact

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Teamster President James R. Hoffa told owners of 500 independent trucking companies in a four-state area Friday that his union is asking a 43-cent hourly wage increase for truck drivers in a proposed new regional contract.

Hoffa spoke to the owners from Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey,Maryland and Delaware. The pay boost from $2.70 an hour to $3.13 was contained in a 44-page document.

It was the first meeting between the union negotiators and the owners. Hoffa said the meeting was to present union proposals, and to discuss policies and "our mutual problems."

Hoffa came to Philadelphia last Tuesday to begin the negotiations. Members of his party said it was expected he would remain here for "about a month."

Supervisors Hear Talk On Research

Paul Herndon of the research and education section of the Appalachian Research Center, LaVale, a part of the National Resources Institute, yesterday afternoon spoke at the meeting of the Allegany Soil District Supervisors at the office of Joseph M. Steger, county farm agent.

The speaker explained that research is being conducted in game and fish management and forestry in the four westernmost counties of Maryland.

Mr. Herndon pointed out that the Center plans to work with school boards of the four counties in furthering natural resources study and its importance in the public schools system.

Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service office in Cumberland, gave a report on activities of the office since December 28, 1962.

Little field work was accomplished due to weather conditions, said Mr. Gordon. He reported that the annual goals and plan of operations have been completed for the year.

Stuart Delbrock, conservation technician, attended a two-week SCS training session at Coshocton, Ohio, which basically concerned engineering problems concerned with soil erosion control practices.

Basic planning is being done with R. W. Brown of Oldtown and revision of a basic plan on the Marion Weber 'arm. Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist, is gathering data for an Allegany Soil Survey report.

During yesterday's meeting, Wilbert Paul, chairman of the supervisors, distributed guide books for the district officials.

The book, published by the Soil Conservation Districts Foundation, is a guide with easy reference and reminder of the plans for action supervisors might consider.

Its aim is to make the supervisor's job easier and more productive by providing a record of plans and decisions.

3 Wills Admitted To Probate Here

Three wills were admitted to probate yesterday in Orphans Court in Allegany County Court House.

Minnie Kreiger Sisk, 21 Potomac Street, was named administratrix cta of the will of her father, Harry E. Valentine, who died December 24.

H. Webster Daugherty, Butler, Pa. was named executor of the will of his mother, Frances E. Daugherty, who died November 18.

Elected Officer

Lawrence S. Mirkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham J. Mirkin, 223 Schley Street, was recently elected vice president of the lower middler 10th grade class at Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy.

20-Year Road Report Due In Mid-February

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The State Roads Commission said Friday it will be around mid-February before a 20-year highway needs study is ready for presentation to the Maryland General Assembly.

The delay in the report, originally expected late this month, gave rise to speculation here that the legislature will do little or nothing about adopting a program at this session.

Any program which would accelerate highway construction is expected to be costly, requiring increases in the gasoline or motor vehicle taxes, and legislators are already leery about this prospect.

The later the report is received, the more difficult will be the chances of a program being adopted at this session, most observers believe.

The leaders of the general assembly expressed different opinions.

House Speaker A. Gordon Boone, D-Balto County, said he doubted seriously the legislature would approve this year any roads program that would increase taxes.

Senate President William S. James, D-Harford, said: "It is of such public importance that even if it doesn't arrive until mid-February, we'll have to concentrate on it and try to come up with something."

James said, however, he personally would not favor, trying to adopt any program at this session that went beyond four years.

A spokesman at the State Roads Commission said Friday the report is being delayed for a rechecking of technical information as well as a recomputing of cost factors. "This is a mammoth thing, and the figures must be right," he said.

The report will cover what officials regard as the highway needs of the state and its political subdivisions over the next 20 years, along with emphasis on the first four years of construction.

Possible means of financing it are to be included in the report.

Union Sues To Block Merger

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit-based Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employes filed a civil suit in federal court here Friday in an attempt to block the merger of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio railroads.

Named as respondents in the suit are the United States Government and the Interstate Commerce Commission. The union charges that the ICC exceeded its authority in approving the merger last Dec. 17, and that the decision was not in the public interest.

It contended the merger would abolish 3,107 jobs in the next five years.

The union asks that a three-judge court be assigned to hear the case and meanwhile an interlocutory and temporary restraining order be granted.

The case is scheduled to go to a federal judge next Monday.

Worker Barred From Selling To His Employer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson says a public official and employe of the Mineral County Court cannot legally sell contracts to supplies to the County Court which employs him.

Robertson's opinion, written for State Civil Defense Director William J. Mathews, said that Mineral County civil defense director Raymond W. Lee did have the right to sell to other government agencies, but not to the County Court.

Robertson said he believed a judge would view as illegal any sales contract between the County Court and Lee.

Urban Renewal Discussed At Meeting Here

Interest in urban renewal for Cumberland and communities of Allegany County was indicated Thursday night at the Court House when about 35 persons attended a meeting arranged by C. Lee Renaud, county planner.

Richard Gucker, chief of local planning of the Maryland State Planning Commission, was guest speaker and explained the advantage of frequent meetings at which time officials could exchange ideas and discuss mutual problems in connection with urban renewal.

Mr. Renaud, who showed a film on urban renewal in Philadelphia and how that city's problems were solved with citizen participation, reported that Thursday's meeting was one in a series of sessions planned in the county.

Following the film presentation he gave a resume of the accomplishments of the County Planning and Zoning Commissions and distributed an information sheet on the planning program to those in attendance.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney, Mayor Joseph James of Frostburg, Mayor Ray Wilt of Westernport, and members of the planning commissions of the three communities attended.

Also present were members of the Urban Renewal Board, Housing Authority and other interested persons.

Tulsa Students Give Up Vacation Time To Practice

One of the outstanding musical organizations to visit Cumberland each year is the University of Tulsa Modern Choir. This year's concert will be given at Fort Hill High School Auditorium at 8:15 p. m. today.

The tour of the Tulsa Modern Choir is the culmination of an intensive week of eight-hour-a-day rehearsals. The second week of their scheduled Christmas vacation is devoted to the preparation for the tour.

In addition to perfecting the music, much time is devoted to the intricate staging and lighting sequences used in the concert.

The director, Arthur D. Hestwood, professor of voice, University of Tulsa, will be assisted by Mrs. Hestwood, and Gene Rhoades, director of the Tulsa Boys Chorus, as well as by Richard Chronister, former chairman of The University's Piano Pedagogy Department, the arranger for the choir's many selections. Ronnie Young, last year's choir president, will be in charge of choreagraphy and staging.

The appearance of the University of Tulsa Choir will again be under the sponsorship of the Cumberland Lions Club. Tickets may be secured from any member.

Senate Action Set On Repeal Of Unit System

Survey Indicates Enactment Of Bill

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Legislative action is expected to be completed next week on a bill abolishing the unit-vote system Maryland has used since 1910 to nominate statewide candidates in primary elections.

Small - county legislators who once found it weighted politically in their favor, no longer consider it worth battling over.

The house passed the repeal bill 122-9 earlier this week. An informal survey of senators showed Friday it also should have no trouble in that chamber, even though a determined effort could kill the bill to base primaries on popular votes alone. Senators from small counties outnumber those from metropolitan areas 19-10.

Sen. Frederick C. Malkus, Jr., D-Dorchester, chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, said he will take up the bill for committee action next week and bring it to the floor.

Shore May Oppose

Malkus, a stout for of legislative reapportionment and past attempts to repeal the unit vote system, agreed the measure would probably win approval of a majority of senators.

Its chief opposition is expected from senators representing the Eastern Shore. Most of those from Southern and Western Maryland have indicated they will vote with metropolitan areas to repeal the rule, which no longer carries the impact it once had.

The system, now used only by Georgia and Maryland, has guaranteed less populated areas a strong voice in nomination of candidates for governor, U.S. senator and other statewide offices.

Each county and Baltimore City legislative district is allotted the same number of seats at the state party conventions that it has in the legislature. A candidate who wins a county's popular vote, receives all of its unit votes at the state convention.

Tips Balance

There have been several occasions of candidates polling the popular statewide vote and losing the nomination on units. In 1950, the Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, John Marshall Butler, and the Democratic candidate for governor, William Preston Lane Jr., were both nominated on unit votes after losing the popular total.

Small - county lawmakers who have long favored the unit system can see it has now outlived its usefulness.

A court-ordered reapportionment of the house of delegates last year, temporarily adding 19 seats for metropolitan areas, tipped the total balance to urban areas in the unit system. The pendulum will swing even further with a permanent reapportionment of the house.

"The unit rule is now meaningless," said Sen. George E. Snyder, D-Washington, one of those who plans to vote for repeal.

"There's no point in waiting for the courts to tell us to abolish it," observed Sen. George R. Hughes, R-Allegany.

The Supreme Court now has under consideration a test of Georgia's unit vote law, which a lower federal court held to be unconstitutional since it discriminated against populous areas.

Interceptor Cost Study Being Made

Bowling Green Plan Approved By HHFA

The Allegany County Sanitary Commission, Inc., has asked its engineering consultants to investigate the economic feasibility of tying into the Cumberland sewage treatment plant instead of constructing separate treatment facilities for the Bowling Green and Cresaptown sanitary area.

Playford Aldridge, commission chairman, said the order for the study was given to the firm of Matz-Childs and Associates on Tuesday.

The study will involve the cost of moving sewage by interceptor from Cresaptown and Bowling Green by sewers to Cumberland.

Mr. Aldridge said action on such a plan would be contingent upon working out arrangements for treatment with the Mayor and Council of Cumberland.

The commission yesterday was notified by the Housing and Home Finance Agency that plans for the Bowling Green sanitary area, which extends from the city line to Potomac Park, have been approved.

The notice was received in a letter from Cornelius J. Daly, regional HHFA director.

Mr. Aldridge said the plans have also been approved by the State Health Department and that a federal grant of some $89,000 has been approved for the project. The grant will be matched by funds from the state and the sanitary area.

He said preliminary plans for the Cresaptown sanitary area project are in the final stages and are being revised to include plans for use of interceptors rather than a separate treatment plant.

A federal grant of about $67,000 has been approved for this project, and matching funds from the state will become available when plans are approved by the State Health Department.

Peace Corps Exam Set Today

Peace Corps placement tests will be given today at the Cumberland Post Office at 8:30 a. m. in Room 331.

Those who take the tests will be considered for new Peace Corps projects in Latin America, Africa, the Far East and in the Near East and South Asia.

Applicants must be American citizens who are at least 18 years of age. Interested persons who have not yet filled out a Peace Corps questionnaire may take the tests and complete the questionnaire after the test.

Two types of placement tests will be given. One is for men and women who would like to teach in the Peace Corps at the secondary and college levels for which a bachelor's degree is required, although the applicant need not be an accredited teacher. The general examination is for all other Peace Corps assignments. However, an applicant who chooses the test for teachers may take an additional test in the afternoon in order to be considered for other positions as well.

Ice Skating Is Good Here

Up to 150 persons, mostly youngsters, enjoyed good ice skating at the Gephart School rink last night.

Recreation Department workers flooded the area again after skating was over, and an excellent surface is expected again tonight if the cold weather holds.

Good use was being made yesterday by South Cumberland youngsters of the Candoc recreation area on the C&O Canal.

States Righters Lose Tilt Aimed At High Court

Chemical Test Hearing Tuesday

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — States rightists in the Maryland House of Delegates lost Friday what liberals charged was a blow aimed at the Supreme Court for its decisions on school integration and reapportionment.

A resolution to put the Maryland Legislature on record favoring an easier method for states to propose amendments to the federal constitution developed into a debate on philosophy and principles.

The vote of 66-57 was six shy of the majority needed.

The resolution calling upon congress to hold a convention to consider giving states direct procedure for making amendments to the constitution was recommended along with two other proposals by the Council of State Governments.

The amendment sought would permit two-thirds of the states to propose changes in the constitution. Without any action by congress, they then would be submitted to the states and become part of the constitution if ratified by three-fourths.

Killed In House

The three resolutions, the other two of which directly concern the Supreme Court, are being introduced in many other state legislatures this year.

"This is an assault by malapportioned legislatures on the Supreme Court of the United States," protested Del. Dennis H. Marshall, D-Prince Georges.

His county was one of Maryland's four largest which were granted increased representation in the house last year as the result of court order. The Supreme Court in a Tennessee decision last April said courts could consider legislative apportionment and a rash of state actions followed.

The two other resolutions recommended by the Council of State Governments propose to eliminate federal judicial authority over the apportionment of state legislatures and establish a court of the union to review Supreme Court decisions relating to states rights.

They were killed in the House Judiciary Committee, but all three still are to be acted on by the Maryland Senate.

Attacks Resolution

Del. Royal Hart, D-Prince Georges, attacked the convention resolution as the work of "a coalition that wants to weaken the Supreme Court." He identified the sponsors as protestors against the 1954 court order forbidding racial discrimination in public schools and reapportionment.

"Do we want to stand with those for states' rights or behind those for progress?" asked Del. John W. Hardwicke, R-Harford. "This resolution goes back to pre-Civil War days."

While Del. Thomas H. Lowe, D-Talbot, defended the resolution as "not quite as frightening as expressed," he declared there "has been a little too much encroachment by judicial fiat into what already is limited states rights.

"This is not a states' rights fight, but one of checks and balances between federal and state governments."

As chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Lowe said he was obligated to urge adoption of its favorable report.

Congress Would Call

The federal constitution now provides for Congress to call a convention to consider constitutional amendments if asked by two - thirds of the states.

However, while many states have passed such resolutions over the years, no convention has been called.

The Council on State Governments said it is because of the ambiguities in the outlined procedure. The resolution defeated in the Maryland House sought to induce congress to hold a convention so a clearer method could be put in the constitution.

The stage was set in the house for another struggle over chemical tests for auto drivers suspected of being drunk.

A bill to suspend the licenses of drivers refusing to take a test went through semi-final reading without a word this afternoon. Later, Del. Frank N. McCourt, D-Balto 2nd, moved to reconsider the bill so he could oppose it. The time was set for next Tuesday.

At present, drivers arrested for intoxication may refuse to submit to a chemical test without facing any penalty unless convicted in court without such evidence.

River Group To Meet Here Early In May

Will Discuss Water Quality

The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin voted yesterday afternoon to hold its spring meeting in Cumberland early in May.

This action was taken at the conclusion of the ICPRB winter meeting held at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, Va.

Carl J. Johnson, executive director of the commission, said the theme of the spring meeting will be "Water Quality Control in the North Branch of the Potomac." Conservationists from Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania will cooperate in the program, he said.

Mr. Johnson had said in his talk opening the winter meeting Thursday morning that despite significant progress in recent years the North Branch does not yet have a good quality water.

Review Is Needed

"We need to review this progress, present status and plans and intentions of the municipalities, counties, states and industries involved and seek to establish some quality objectives and time schedules," the director said in his talk.

Closing the meeting yesterday was a talk by G. Louis Heller, director of the National Capital Regional Council. Mr. Heller, a native of Altoona, Pa., and a graduate of Penn State University, recently came to Washington from Illinois, where he had a similar planning position for three counties of that state.

He said his group has recommended some modifications in the Wolman-Geyer report on sewage and sewerage development in the capital area, but that the Wolman Geyer recommendations do not basically conflict with long-range plans for development of the Washington metropolitan area.

Changes Proposed

The Wolman-Geyer report was made before any long-range urban expansion program had been adopted, and Drs. Wolman and Geyer based their report on assumptions that expansion of the urban area would continue in an irregular, sprawling pattern.

But in 1962 there came the "Year 2000" plan which envisioned a more orderly expansion of the capital's suburbs in the form of corridors radiating from the central hub.

The star-shaped pattern thus formed would have high-rise apartments and other "high-density" developments along the corridors, with intervening spaces of low-density development.

To reconcile the Wolman- Geyer recommendations with the long-range report, the planners have proposed that some sewer lines be made limited-access facilities. This was done because the availability of a sewer line naturally attracts building. The planners' reasoning is that if the areas between the corridors are to be kept open, then access to any sewer lines in those areas must be limited.

VA Loans Now Are Available

The Veterans Administration has announced it now has funds available for veterans who wish to purchase homes under the direct loan program.

Thomas G. Kilduff, assistant state service oficer for the Maryland State Veterans Commission here, said the VA has notified him of the available funds and said there is no waiting list at the present time.

Veterans interested in obtaining loans should contact Mr. Kilduff at his office on the first floor of the County Building on Union Street for the necessary forms and other information.

Mr. Kilduff said there is usually a waiting list for the loans and now is a good time to make application for a home loan. The maximum direct loan for veterans is $15,000.

Unprotected Water Meters Are Frozen

Thirty water meters have frozen and burst during this week's cold wave, Water Commissioner G. Ray Light reported yesterday.

In most cases, the meters froze for lack of proper protection from the weather. In several cases, they were located in unheated areas or in cellars near an open window.

Mr. Light said a warning is given the first time this occurs and that customers are billed for the cost of repairs after that.

CUF Agency Aids Persons With Polio

Endeavoring to meet the needs of medically and financially indigent residents of Allegany and Mineral counties no matter what their illness, the Health Research and Services Foundation of County United Fund yesterday reported that $3,233 has been spent for three Allegany County residents afflicted with polio during the past two years.

This sum was expended through the direct services committee of HR and SF, which makes direct payments of cash to cover medical bills incurred by those financially unable to meet the expenses themselves.

Dr. Donald B. Grove, president of HR and SF, in the annual statistical report of this CUF agency, said a total of $38,128.77 was expended in 1962 with an overhead expense of only $140.44.

"Every other penny," he said, "was used for direct services, tumor clinics at Memorial Hospital, the Poison Control Center at Sacred Heart Hospital, Allegany County Commission on Alcoholism, equipment grants to area hospitals, and the polio programs and chest clinic programs in Mineral County.

Success In Mineral County

In regard to Mineral County, where not one polio case has been reported since HR and SF has been supporting the polio vaccine program there, a total of $632.31 was spent last year to help the Mineral County Health Department carry on its anti-polio program.

HR and SF has spent $4,800 for polio inoculations for Mineral County residents since it began its financial help in 1960.

Recently, an official of the Mineral County Health Department wrote to CUF: "The polio vaccine that CUF has bought for Mineral County's use has been invaluable. We are very pleased to announce that we have not had a new polio case reported for over three years. Thank you for the wonderful help."

In addition, HR and SF set up chest clinics in Mineral County. A total of $1,000 was spent for this project over a two-year span, 1961 and 1962.

This, also, was cited by Mineral County health officials:

"The chest clinic program set up through County United Fund has been a great help in diagnosing many problem cases of tuberculosis, cancer, etc."

J. Kenna Burke, a member of Potomac State College faculty, vice president of HR and SF and chairman of the Mineral County Health Department, said such programs in Mineral County would be impossible without CUF.

"New Lease On Life"

"Some residents," he said, "have been given a new lease on life with referrals by chest clinics to Dr. James Walker, of Charleston, outstanding chest and heart specialist who conducts clinics here four times a year."

Speaking as health department chairman, Mr. Burke said, "The value of CUF canot be overestimated. Without it, the polio and chest programs would be impossible!"

"HR and SF," Dr. Grove said, "as an agency of CUF, operates on funds from its anual budget allocation, just as do the 29 other participating agencies. Money for these budgets," he added, "come from CUF's once-a-year fund campaign."

Teamsters To Ask 43-Cent Boost In Regional Pact

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Teamster President James R. Hoffa told owners of 500 independent trucking companies in a four-state area Friday that his union is asking a 43-cent hourly wage increase for truck drivers in a proposed new regional contract.

Hoffa spoke to the owners from Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey,Maryland and Delaware. The pay boost from $2.70 an hour to $3.13 was contained in a 44-page document.

It was the first meeting between the union negotiators and the owners. Hoffa said the meeting was to present union proposals, and to discuss policies and "our mutual problems."

Hoffa came to Philadelphia last Tuesday to begin the negotiations. Members of his party said it was expected he would remain here for "about a month."

Supervisors Hear Talk On Research

Paul Herndon of the research and education section of the Appalachian Research Center, LaVale, a part of the National Resources Institute, yesterday afternoon spoke at the meeting of the Allegany Soil District Supervisors at the office of Joseph M. Steger, county farm agent.

The speaker explained that research is being conducted in game and fish management and forestry in the four westernmost counties of Maryland.

Mr. Herndon pointed out that the Center plans to work with school boards of the four counties in furthering natural resources study and its importance in the public schools system.

Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service office in Cumberland, gave a report on activities of the office since December 28, 1962.

Little field work was accomplished due to weather conditions, said Mr. Gordon. He reported that the annual goals and plan of operations have been completed for the year.

Stuart Delbrock, conservation technician, attended a two-week SCS training session at Coshocton, Ohio, which basically concerned engineering problems concerned with soil erosion control practices.

Basic planning is being done with R. W. Brown of Oldtown and revision of a basic plan on the Marion Weber 'arm. Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist, is gathering data for an Allegany Soil Survey report.

During yesterday's meeting, Wilbert Paul, chairman of the supervisors, distributed guide books for the district officials.

The book, published by the Soil Conservation Districts Foundation, is a guide with easy reference and reminder of the plans for action supervisors might consider.

Its aim is to make the supervisor's job easier and more productive by providing a record of plans and decisions.

20-Year Road Report Due In Mid-February

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The State Roads Commission said Friday it will be around mid-February before a 20-year highway needs study is ready for presentation to the Maryland General Assembly.

The delay in the report, originally expected late this month, gave rise to speculation here that the legislature will do little or nothing about adopting a program at this session.

Any program which would accelerate highway construction is expected to be costly, requiring increases in the gasoline or motor vehicle taxes, and legislators are already leery about this prospect.

The later the report is received, the more difficult will be the chances of a program being adopted at this session, most observers believe.

The leaders of the general assembly expressed different opinions.

House Speaker A. Gordon Boone, D-Balto County, said he doubted seriously the legislature would approve this year any roads program that would increase taxes.

Senate President William S. James, D-Harford, said: "It is of such public importance that even if it doesn't arrive until mid-February, we'll have to concentrate on it and try to come up with something."

James said, however, he personally would not favor, trying to adopt any program at this session that went beyond four years.

A spokesman at the State Roads Commission said Friday the report is being delayed for a rechecking of technical information as well as a recomputing of cost factors. "This is a mammoth thing, and the figures must be right," he said.

The report will cover what officials regard as the highway needs of the state and its political subdivisions over the next 20 years, along with emphasis on the first four years of construction.

Possible means of financing it are to be included in the report.

Union Sues To Block Merger

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit-based Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employes filed a civil suit in federal court here Friday in an attempt to block the merger of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio railroads.

Named as respondents in the suit are the United States Government and the Interstate Commerce Commission. The union charges that the ICC exceeded its authority in approving the merger last Dec. 17, and that the decision was not in the public interest.

It contended the merger would abolish 3,107 jobs in the next five years.

The union asks that a three-judge court be assigned to hear the case and meanwhile an interlocutory and temporary restraining order be granted.

The case is scheduled to go to a federal judge next Monday.

Worker Barred From Selling To His Employer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson says a public official and employe of the Mineral County Court cannot legally sell contracts to supplies to the County Court which employs him.

Robertson's opinion, written for State Civil Defense Director William J. Mathews, said that Mineral County civil defense director Raymond W. Lee did have the right to sell to other government agencies, but not to the County Court.

Robertson said he believed a judge would view as illegal any sales contract between the County Court and Lee.

Urban Renewal Discussed At Meeting Here

Interest in urban renewal for Cumberland and communities of Allegany County was indicated Thursday night at the Court House when about 35 persons attended a meeting arranged by C. Lee Renaud, county planner.

Richard Gucker, chief of local planning of the Maryland State Planning Commission, was guest speaker and explained the advantage of frequent meetings at which time officials could exchange ideas and discuss mutual problems in connection with urban renewal.

Mr. Renaud, who showed a film on urban renewal in Philadelphia and how that city's problems were solved with citizen participation, reported that Thursday's meeting was one in a series of sessions planned in the county.

Following the film presentation he gave a resume of the accomplishments of the County Planning and Zoning Commissions and distributed an information sheet on the planning program to those in attendance.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney, Mayor Joseph James of Frostburg, Mayor Ray Wilt of Westernport, and members of the planning commissions of the three communities attended.

Also present were members of the Urban Renewal Board, Housing Authority and other interested persons.

Tulsa Students Give Up Vacation Time To Practice

One of the outstanding musical organizations to visit Cumberland each year is the University of Tulsa Modern Choir. This year's concert will be given at Fort Hill High School Auditorium at 8:15 p. m. today.

The tour of the Tulsa Modern Choir is the culmination of an intensive week of eight-hour-a-day rehearsals. The second week of their scheduled Christmas vacation is devoted to the preparation for the tour.

In addition to perfecting the music, much time is devoted to the intricate staging and lighting sequences used in the concert.

The director, Arthur D. Hestwood, professor of voice, University of Tulsa, will be assisted by Mrs. Hestwood, and Gene Rhoades, director of the Tulsa Boys Chorus, as well as by Richard Chronister, former chairman of The University's Piano Pedagogy Department, the arranger for the choir's many selections. Ronnie Young, last year's choir president, will be in charge of choreagraphy and staging.

The appearance of the University of Tulsa Choir will again be under the sponsorship of the Cumberland Lions Club. Tickets may be secured from any member.

Senate Action Set On Repeal Of Unit System

Survey Indicates Enactment Of Bill

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Legislative action is expected to be completed next week on a bill abolishing the unit-vote system Maryland has used since 1910 to nominate statewide candidates in primary elections.

Small - county legislators who once found it weighted politically in their favor, no longer consider it worth battling over.

The house passed the repeal bill 122-9 earlier this week. An informal survey of senators showed Friday it also should have no trouble in that chamber, even though a determined effort could kill the bill to base primaries on popular votes alone. Senators from small counties outnumber those from metropolitan areas 19-10.

Sen. Frederick C. Malkus, Jr., D-Dorchester, chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, said he will take up the bill for committee action next week and bring it to the floor.

Shore May Oppose

Malkus, a stout for of legislative reapportionment and past attempts to repeal the unit vote system, agreed the measure would probably win approval of a majority of senators.

Its chief opposition is expected from senators representing the Eastern Shore. Most of those from Southern and Western Maryland have indicated they will vote with metropolitan areas to repeal the rule, which no longer carries the impact it once had.

The system, now used only by Georgia and Maryland, has guaranteed less populated areas a strong voice in nomination of candidates for governor, U.S. senator and other statewide offices.

Each county and Baltimore City legislative district is allotted the same number of seats at the state party conventions that it has in the legislature. A candidate who wins a county's popular vote, receives all of its unit votes at the state convention.

Tips Balance

There have been several occasions of candidates polling the popular statewide vote and losing the nomination on units. In 1950, the Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, John Marshall Butler, and the Democratic candidate for governor, William Preston Lane Jr., were both nominated on unit votes after losing the popular total.

Small - county lawmakers who have long favored the unit system can see it has now outlived its usefulness.

A court-ordered reapportionment of the house of delegates last year, temporarily adding 19 seats for metropolitan areas, tipped the total balance to urban areas in the unit system. The pendulum will swing even further with a permanent reapportionment of the house.

"The unit rule is now meaningless," said Sen. George E. Snyder, D-Washington, one of those who plans to vote for repeal.

"There's no point in waiting for the courts to tell us to abolish it," observed Sen. George R. Hughes, R-Allegany.

The Supreme Court now has under consideration a test of Georgia's unit vote law, which a lower federal court held to be unconstitutional since it discriminated against populous areas.

Interceptor Cost Study Being Made

Bowling Green Plan Approved By HHFA

The Allegany County Sanitary Commission, Inc., has asked its engineering consultants to investigate the economic feasibility of tying into the Cumberland sewage treatment plant instead of constructing separate treatment facilities for the Bowling Green and Cresaptown sanitary area.

Playford Aldridge, commission chairman, said the order for the study was given to the firm of Matz-Childs and Associates on Tuesday.

The study will involve the cost of moving sewage by interceptor from Cresaptown and Bowling Green by sewers to Cumberland.

Mr. Aldridge said action on such a plan would be contingent upon working out arrangements for treatment with the Mayor and Council of Cumberland.

The commission yesterday was notified by the Housing and Home Finance Agency that plans for the Bowling Green sanitary area, which extends from the city line to Potomac Park, have been approved.

The notice was received in a letter from Cornelius J. Daly, regional HHFA director.

Mr. Aldridge said the plans have also been approved by the State Health Department and that a federal grant of some $89,000 has been approved for the project. The grant will be matched by funds from the state and the sanitary area.

He said preliminary plans for the Cresaptown sanitary area project are in the final stages and are being revised to include plans for use of interceptors rather than a separate treatment plant.

A federal grant of about $67,000 has been approved for this project, and matching funds from the state will become available when plans are approved by the State Health Department.

Peace Corps Exam Set Today

Peace Corps placement tests will be given today at the Cumberland Post Office at 8:30 a. m. in Room 331.

Those who take the tests will be considered for new Peace Corps projects in Latin America, Africa, the Far East and in the Near East and South Asia.

Applicants must be American citizens who are at least 18 years of age. Interested persons who have not yet filled out a Peace Corps questionnaire may take the tests and complete the questionnaire after the test.

Two types of placement tests will be given. One is for men and women who would like to teach in the Peace Corps at the secondary and college levels for which a bachelor's degree is required, although the applicant need not be an accredited teacher. The general examination is for all other Peace Corps assignments. However, an applicant who chooses the test for teachers may take an additional test in the afternoon in order to be considered for other positions as well.

States Righters Lose Tilt Aimed At High Court

Chemical Test Hearing Tuesday

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — States rightists in the Maryland House of Delegates lost Friday what liberals charged was a blow aimed at the Supreme Court for its decisions on school integration and reapportionment.

A resolution to put the Maryland Legislature on record favoring an easier method for states to propose amendments to the federal constitution developed into a debate on philosophy and principles.

The vote of 66-57 was six shy of the majority needed.

The resolution calling upon congress to hold a convention to consider giving states direct procedure for making amendments to the constitution was recommended along with two other proposals by the Council of State Governments.

The amendment sought would permit two-thirds of the states to propose changes in the constitution. Without any action by congress, they then would be submitted to the states and become part of the constitution if ratified by three-fourths.

Killed In House

The three resolutions, the other two of which directly concern the Supreme Court, are being introduced in many other state legislatures this year.

"This is an assault by malapportioned legislatures on the Supreme Court of the United States," protested Del. Dennis H. Marshall, D-Prince Georges.

His county was one of Maryland's four largest which were granted increased representation in the house last year as the result of court order. The Supreme Court in a Tennessee decision last April said courts could consider legislative apportionment and a rash of state actions followed.

The two other resolutions recommended by the Council of State Governments propose to eliminate federal judicial authority over the apportionment of state legislatures and establish a court of the union to review Supreme Court decisions relating to states rights.

They were killed in the House Judiciary Committee, but all three still are to be acted on by the Maryland Senate.

Attacks Resolution

Del. Royal Hart, D-Prince Georges, attacked the convention resolution as the work of "a coalition that wants to weaken the Supreme Court." He identified the sponsors as protestors against the 1954 court order forbidding racial discrimination in public schools and reapportionment.

"Do we want to stand with those for states' rights or behind those for progress?" asked Del. John W. Hardwicke, R-Harford. "This resolution goes back to pre-Civil War days."

While Del. Thomas H. Lowe, D-Talbot, defended the resolution as "not quite as frightening as expressed," he declared there "has been a little too much encroachment by judicial fiat into what already is limited states rights.

"This is not a states' rights fight, but one of checks and balances between federal and state governments."

As chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Lowe said he was obligated to urge adoption of its favorable report.

Congress Would Call

The federal constitution now provides for Congress to call a convention to consider constitutional amendments if asked by two - thirds of the states.

However, while many states have passed such resolutions over the years, no convention has been called.

The Council on State Governments said it is because of the ambiguities in the outlined procedure. The resolution defeated in the Maryland House sought to induce congress to hold a convention so a clearer method could be put in the constitution.

The stage was set in the house for another struggle over chemical tests for auto drivers suspected of being drunk.

A bill to suspend the licenses of drivers refusing to take a test went through semi-final reading without a word this afternoon. Later, Del. Frank N. McCourt, D-Balto 2nd, moved to reconsider the bill so he could oppose it. The time was set for next Tuesday.

At present, drivers arrested for intoxication may refuse to submit to a chemical test without facing any penalty unless convicted in court without such evidence.

White Paper Probes Deep Soviet Secrets

By RUTH E. THOMPSON

How did Stalin die?

What would have happened to Russia—and for that matter to us—had he lived longer?

How did Khrushchev (last among Stalin's possible heirs as they filed in front of Lenin's tomb for the Stalin funeral oration) rise to power?

What does a grandmotherly little lady have to do with killing off the Stalin legend?

We'll have a rare opportunity to untangle some of the Kremlin's tangled skein of information, misinformation and mystery this week and next in an extraordinarily well-documented "White Paper" produced by NBC and narrated by Chet Huntley.

Part One, "The Death of Stalin," is being aired Sunday, January 27, on the NBC-TV Network from 10:00 to 11:00 p. m. (EST). Part Two, "The Rise of Khrushchev," will be shown a week later, Sunday, February 3. Much of the story is being told via actual film footage, some of it so rare it was not previously even known to have existed.

I hear, too, that in checking facts, NBC unearthed some new ones that will necessitate correcting the official history books.

You, The Judge And Jury

Some of the stories we'll be hearing have not been heard before. Some of the "testimony" is contradictory.

Special interviews have been filmed with former high ranking Communists who have now turned to the west, as well as a few who haven't! Government officials appear as well as international newsmen with long familiarity on Russian matters, like Joseph C. Harsch and Harrison Salisbury.

You'll hear evidence from many quarters: from a former Italian Communist who gives one set of facts, two currently high ranking Communists who give another version and finally the statement of a French official who heard Khrushchev himself discuss the subject. In fact by the time the evidence has been heard we'll know as much about this real-life cloak and dagger story as anybody—anybody outside the Kremlin, that is.

The NBC team, headed by Irving Gitlin, Executive Producer, and Fred Freed, Producer-Writer, has done a thorough job.

Network Has Ninety-Minute TV Newspaper

Chet Hagan of NBC News has been swamped with the challenging assignment of getting out a "90-minute television newspaper" every day to ease the drought of news for New Yorkers during the strike of all the city's dailies.

"We haven't lost sight of the human factor, though," says the swamped producer.

On the human side he saw that word got around fast of the plight of a group with the opposite complaint of his—too little work. It was the Lighthouse for the Blind who got the word to him in the first place that the two hundred blind news dealers idled by the strike would welcome ideas for interim employment. As the spokesman put it, "It takes two dollars a day to feed a guide dog."

Fiddles In Money

Jack Benny and his violin have raised more than three million dollars for the cause of good music through concerts in such hallowed halls as New York's "Carnegie."

Julie London In TV Smog

JULIE LONDON

Every silver lining has a dark cloud, as the lovely Julie London has discovered. Miss London has had six fat years singing commercials for a cigarette.

"But," she buts, "I've lost four or five dramatic things because of it. And some guest shots on programs which have cigarette sponsors. I had always done the Garry Moore show— but this year, no soap.

"I'm not about to turn down the commercials. There's good money in it and good exposure, too. The people can see me and hear me. I don't know if it helps my career, but it doesn't hurt it.

She's hoping that a forthcoming role on "The Eleventh Hour" will change that, and give her more chance to act. On that psychiatric adventure show she plays "a terribly neurotic singer —I don't know if it's type casting or not."

Susskind On TV: It's Getting Better

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — "Television is improving all the time."

Three guesses who said that. No, it wasn't Pollyanna, Billie Sol Estes or Ben Casey. It was David Susskind, once the fiercest television critic in captivity. He has mellowed—or television IS improving.

"Television today," Susskind continued, "has its brightest outlook in eight years. When you hear about such programs as Hubbell Robinson's history series, about the signing of Judy Garland and Danny Kaye and Phil Silvers and Mary Martin—what else can you think?

"And there are some good shows on the air now. I like many of the plays on the Alcoa Premiere and Dick Powell series. I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster and McHale's Navy are funny shows. The Defenders ought to get some kind of award for presenting fine adult dramas.

"Then there's NBC's repertory company coming. It isn't my repertory company, the one I've been trying to sell for five years, but it is a repertory company and I think it should be interesting."

DAVID SUSSKIND

Susskind points hopefully at the ratings, too. Although he (in common with millions of others) cannot understand what The Beverly Hillbillies is doing up there, he notes that The Defenders is in the top 20, that CBS Reports is doing well and that, in the cities where his own Festival of Performing Arts is shown, it, too, has a surprisingly high rating.

"What I think has happened," Susskind says, "is that the networks are putting as much effort into entertainment shows as they used to put only into public affairs shows."

As proof of this, he cites the CBS reaction to his proposed series, East Side, West Side, which would star George C. Scott as a social worker. Chances are this will be on in the spring or, at the latest, next fall. It is designed to be a high class dramatic effort.

"In my conversations with CBS," Susskind says, "I've been heartened to hear executives say things like, 'I don't care what it costs—get the best!' The attitude always used to be, 'Do it as cheaply as possible'."

White Paper Probes Deep Soviet Secrets

By RUTH E. THOMPSON

How did Stalin die?

What would have happened to Russia—and for that matter to us—had he lived longer?

How did Khrushchev (last among Stalin's possible heirs as they filed in front of Lenin's tomb for the Stalin funeral oration) rise to power?

What does a grandmotherly little lady have to do with killing off the Stalin legend?

We'll have a rare opportunity to untangle some of the Kremlin's tangled skein of information, misinformation and mystery this week and next in an extraordinarily well-documented "White Paper" produced by NBC and narrated by Chet Huntley.

Part One, "The Death of Stalin," is being aired Sunday, January 27, on the NBC-TV Network from 10:00 to 11:00 p. m. (EST). Part Two, "The Rise of Khrushchev," will be shown a week later, Sunday, February 3. Much of the story is being told via actual film footage, some of it so rare it was not previously even known to have existed.

I hear, too, that in checking facts, NBC unearthed some new ones that will necessitate correcting the official history books.

You, The Judge And Jury

Some of the stories we'll be hearing have not been heard before. Some of the "testimony" is contradictory.

Special interviews have been filmed with former high ranking Communists who have now turned to the west, as well as a few who haven't! Government officials appear as well as international newsmen with long familiarity on Russian matters, like Joseph C. Harsch and Harrison Salisbury.

You'll hear evidence from many quarters: from a former Italian Communist who gives one set of facts, two currently high ranking Communists who give another version and finally the statement of a French official who heard Khrushchev himself discuss the subject. In fact by the time the evidence has been heard we'll know as much about this real-life cloak and dagger story as anybody—anybody outside the Kremlin, that is.

The NBC team, headed by Irving Gitlin, Executive Producer, and Fred Freed, Producer-Writer, has done a thorough job.

Network Has Ninety-Minute TV Newspaper

Chet Hagan of NBC News has been swamped with the challenging assignment of getting out a "90-minute television newspaper" every day to ease the drought of news for New Yorkers during the strike of all the city's dailies.

"We haven't lost sight of the human factor, though," says the swamped producer.

On the human side he saw that word got around fast of the plight of a group with the opposite complaint of his—too little work. It was the Lighthouse for the Blind who got the word to him in the first place that the two hundred blind news dealers idled by the strike would welcome ideas for interim employment. As the spokesman put it, "It takes two dollars a day to feed a guide dog."

Fiddles In Money

Jack Benny and his violin have raised more than three million dollars for the cause of good music through concerts in such hallowed halls as New York's "Carnegie."

Julie London In TV Smog

JULIE LONDON

Every silver lining has a dark cloud, as the lovely Julie London has discovered. Miss London has had six fat years singing commercials for a cigarette.

"But," she buts, "I've lost four or five dramatic things because of it. And some guest shots on programs which have cigarette sponsors. I had always done the Garry Moore show— but this year, no soap.

"I'm not about to turn down the commercials. There's good money in it and good exposure, too. The people can see me and hear me. I don't know if it helps my career, but it doesn't hurt it.

She's hoping that a forthcoming role on "The Eleventh Hour" will change that, and give her more chance to act. On that psychiatric adventure show she plays "a terribly neurotic singer —I don't know if it's type casting or not."

Susskind On TV: It's Getting Better

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — "Television is improving all the time."

Three guesses who said that. No, it wasn't Pollyanna, Billie Sol Estes or Ben Casey. It was David Susskind, once the fiercest television critic in captivity. He has mellowed—or television IS improving.

"Television today," Susskind continued, "has its brightest outlook in eight years. When you hear about such programs as Hubbell Robinson's history series, about the signing of Judy Garland and Danny Kaye and Phil Silvers and Mary Martin—what else can you think?

"And there are some good shows on the air now. I like many of the plays on the Alcoa Premiere and Dick Powell series. I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster and McHale's Navy are funny shows. The Defenders ought to get some kind of award for presenting fine adult dramas.

Horses 'Worst Hams', Opines Actor

"The worst hams in Hollywood," says Larry Ward, "are the horses."

Ward will star as U. S. Marshal Frank Ragan in "The Dakotas," ABC's new television adventure series.

"I've yet to see a nag attempt less than a 'Charge of the Light Brigade' entrance when the signal is given for the cameras to roll," he explains. "Even when the beast isn't in the scene." Larry, who learned to ride in his home town, Columbus, Ohio, and on the bridle paths of Central and Van Cortland Parks, in New York City, further maintains that Hollywood trained mounts are so responsive to cues that they create difficulties for their actor-riders.

"You've got to be alert when aboard a professional steed," says Ward. "These horses are trained to stumble, fall, stamp about and buck—on cue. And when the buzzer sounds for a film take, they're ready to run through their repertoire of stunts at a signal."

The actor is so busy keeping track of his mount that following script directions is a problem, let alone acting.

"And while the actor is bumbling around," Ward continued, "his horse is performing with the aristocratic air of a thoroughbred, which he probably isn't."

According to Ward, the spirited and well-trained Hollywood horse responds best to a rider who is sure of his seat. This, he adds, is typical of riding horses in or out of Hollywood. The horse's idea, he quipped, is, Man doesn't belong 'up there' so get rid of him, and fast.

June Lockhart of the CBS Television Network's "Lassie" series represents the third generation of acting Lockharts.

Horses 'Worst Hams', Opines Actor

"The worst hams in Hollywood," says Larry Ward, "are the horses."

Ward will star as U. S. Marshal Frank Ragan in "The Dakotas," ABC's new television adventure series.

"I've yet to see a naq attempt less than a 'Charge of the Light Brigade' entrance when the signal is given for the cameras to roll," he explains. "Even when the beast isn't in the scene." Larry, who learned to ride in his home town, Columbus, Ohio, and on the bridle paths of Central and Van Cortland Parks, in New York City, further maintains that Hollywood trained mounts are so responsive to cues that they create difficulties for their actor-riders.

"You've got to be alert when aboard a professional steed," says Ward. "These horses are trained to stumble, fall, stamp about and buck—on cue. And when the buzzer sounds for a film take, they're ready to run through their repertoire of stunts at a signal."

The actor is so busy keeping track of his mount that following script directions is a problem, let alone acting.

"And while the actor is bumbling around," Ward continued, "his horse is performing with the aristocratic air of a thoroughbred, which he probably isn't."

According to Ward, the spirited and well-trained Hollywood horse responds best to a rider who is sure of his seat. This, he adds, is typical of riding horses in or out of Hollywood. The horse's idea, he quipped, is, Man doesn't belong 'up there' so get rid of him, and fast.

June Lockhart of the CBS Television Network's "Lassie" series represents the third generation of acting Lockharts.
